The Boer armies are still in the field and able to harass the big British armies and cause them considerable trouble. The Boers captured over one thousand prisoners in the past two weeks. The British losses for the eight months of war, up to May 26th, are stated officially at 377 officers and 5,799 men killed in action and died of wounds and disease; 712 officers and 9,594 men wounded, and 178 officers and 4,878 men wounded, and 178 officers and 4,878 men missing and prisoners. In addition, 10,481 officers and men have been invalided to England exclusive of the wounded and sick in hospital in South Africa. The total estimated casualties of all kinds among the British troops, African natives and Indian attendants since the outbreak of the war are set down at 50,489. This is probably a larger number of men than the Boers ever had in the field.
