Hood River Glacier

FRIDAY, AUGUST 24, 1900.

The pamphlet descriptive of Hood River, issued by the Glacier in partnership with E. R. Bradley, is out. The publishers flatter themselves that it is not a bad piece of work to be turned out of country printing offices. The business men of Hood River responded generously to the request for ads and made it possible to get out the book, the work on which was all done at home. The cut, which fills the inside page of the cover, is a picture of the town of Hood River, taken from the north bank of the Columbia, with Mt. Hood showing in the distance. This picture is the work of L. Bradley, Hood River's photo artist. Mr. Bradley also furnished the excellent pictures of W. E. Sherrill and the M. E. church. The cuts were made by the Oregonian company. Three thousand copies of this little book have been printed. It is a fair statement of the conditions existing in Hood River today, and no one can say the picture is overdrawn. The pamphlet will be mailed to any address upon receipt of 10 cents.

The O. R. & N. Co. has purchased the property of the Ilwaco railroad. It is expected now that connections will be made with Portland by completing the railroad along the north bank of the Lower Columbia to Vancouver. The Oregonian says: "Whatever becomes of the Astor's railroad, those interests not represented in its ownership will want a separate outlet down the river. Supplemented with realization of all its building plans in the upper country, a railroad to the mouth of the river would give the O. R. & N. perfect facilities for marketing the products of the Columbia basin and distributing merchandise throughout it from Portland as a center."

Portland is making extensive preparations for the street carnival. Though gotten up under the auspices of the Portland lodge of Elks, the carnival will be a street fair representing the varied interests of the state of Oregon and the Pacific Northwest. Hood River fruit growers cannot afford to miss this opportunity to make an exhibit of their fruit. An attractive display of apples from Hood River would offer an inducement for apple buyers to purchase our large crop of winter apples. The farmers should furnish their exhibits in time for the opening day, Sept. 4th.

Oregon Historical Society.

A visit to the rooms of the Oregon Historical society, in the city hall at Portland, shows that the officers of the society have been very successful in the less than two years of its organization in securing a valuable museum of historical relics. Pioneers, native Oregonians, and all citizens who take an interest in the history of their adopted state will appreciate the efforts of the Oregon Historical society in endeavoring to gather into a place of safe keeping the relics of journeys across the plains and those relating to the primitive conditions of early life in Oregon. The society has two rooms filled with interesting pioneer relics, Indian relics and implements, old manuscripts, books and pictures of early day scenes.

Among the many valuable and interesting relics may be seen the first printing press ever used on the Pacific coast in the territory west of the Missouri river. The historic old press bears the stamp: "A Ramage Patent Printing, Copying and Seal Press, No. 11." The press has a platen 12 x 14¾ inches and will print a sheet 10 x 14 inches. The press was constructed in Boston, date unknown, and in 1819 was shipped to Honolulu by the American board of foreign missions of the Congregational church, who paid $450 for it. In Honolulu the press was used in printing tracts and missionary publications in the Hawaiian tongue. The old Ramage was shipped to Oregon at an early day and did service in a number of offices in the Willamette valley until it found its way into the state printing office at Salem, where it lay covered with dust and cobwebs until brought to light by the Historical society.

Another historical relic of more than passing interest is the ship chest of Capt Robert Gray. It will be remembered that Capt. Gray entered the Columbia river with his ship of the same name, May 11, 1792, and it was this event which made the Oregon country first known to the people of the United States. Capt. Gray was the first American to carry the stars and stripes around the world. A mirror of Capt. Gray's is also exhibited, and it produces a feeling of mingled awe for one to think, as he gazes into the mirror, that a hundred years ago the same glass reflected the features of the gallant American sailor.

A sword owned by General Sheridan while he was stationed at Fort Vancouver, and an arm chair made for him at the time, are exhibited here. Among the old manuscripts is a diary kept by one W. C. Hembree, during the campaign against the Yakima Indians in 1856. Hembree writes of two Indians captured by his party in the Walla Walla valley, how one was hung and the other turned loose with his head closely shaved. He remarks that the Indian with the shaved head seemed to be more concerned of his fate than the one hung.

The worthy object of the Oregon Historical society, as stated in its preamble of articles of organization, is: "The collection, preservation, exhibition and publication of material of a historical character, especially that relating to the history of Oregon and of the United States; to explore all places of deposit of archæological matter, to acquire documents, manuscripts and publications of every description; to obtain narratives and records of the pioneers of the Oregon Territory; to ascertain and preserve the Indian names of mountains, streams and localities in Oregon, and their interpretation and significations; to gather and preserve the Indian traditions relative to the history of the Pacific Northwest prior to white settlement; to maintain a gallery of historical portraiture and an ethnological and historical museum; to publish and otherwise disseminate information relative to the history of Oregon and of the original Oregon Territory; and in general to encourage and develop within this state the study of history.

"All material and property acquired [illegible] shall be this corporation shall be held by it in perpetual trust for the people of the state of Oregon.—Art. II, Articles of incorporation.

Anyone knowing of the whereabouts of any book, document, pamphlet, letter, diary, paper, weapon or utensil of any kind that has any relation to the early settlement of Oregon, meaning by that the original Oregon Territory, will confer a favor upon G. H. Himes, Asst. Sec., by notifying him. After such notification he will use all means possible to secure the article named, together with its attending history.

Has Been Guide Twelve Years.

O. C. Yocum, the guide at Government Camp, has been conducting parties up to the summit of Mt. Hood for the past 12 years. He is an old Portland photographer, and went out there legally on account of failing health. He went first to the foot of Mount Hood, in 1888, and has been there almost continuously ever since. He has been taking parties up Mount Hood every season, and never had an accident where his advice was followed. He is a thorough mountaineer, but according to recent reports his health is not so good as formerly, although he goes up to the summit several times every year. Mr. Yocum is 60 years old, and thinks he will retire as guide. He wants some young man who will learn the routes up the mountain and who will train to act as guide. During his 12 years' experience at the foot of Mount Hood, and acting as guide, Mr. Yocum has gathered quite a rich hoard of incidents concerning the various parties. He has kept the published accounts of all the ascents that have been made during that time, and intends to put them in shape for publication in book form. It will prove interesting to mountain-climbers.—Oregonian.

According to a cablegram to the Oregonian received Saturday, the O. R. & N. Co., with headquarters at Portland, was awarded the first prize, or grand gold medal, for the best exhibit of cereals at the Paris exposition.

"My baby was terribly sick with the diarrhœa," says J. H. Doak of Williams, Or. "We were unable to cure him with the doctor's assistance, and as a last resort we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. I am happy to say it gave immediate relief and a complete cure." For sale by Williams & Brosius.

A band of horses from Crook county, while being driven through the streets of The Dalles last Saturday night, for loading aboard the steamer Regulator, became frightened at the electric lights on Second street and stampeded. After a hard night's work, the four men in charge of the horses managed to round up all but four of the band.

The population of Greater New York, as indicated by the count just completed at the census office, is 3,437,202. This includes the population of the boroughs of Manhattan and Bronx, previously announced, and those of Brooklyn, Richmond and Queens. An approximate estimate of the increase since 1890 shows it to have been 37.9 per cent.

Attorney W. B. Presby was a candidate for the superior judgeship of Clarke, Cowlitz, Skamania and Klickitat counties, but was defeated for the nomination by the present incumbent, Judge Abe Miller, by one vote. Strange to say the vote that defeated him was that of a man who had promised to support Mr. Presby, and who had accepted the appointment of delegate on a platform instructing the delegates for Mr. Presby.

We have been asked a number of times what explanation there is for the fact that there are so few codlin moths in Oregon this year. We don't know but suppose some parasite has disposed of them. They were never so numerous as last year, and it often happens that when some insect pest becomes more than usually prevalent, its parasitic foes increase also at phenomenal speed and get away with it. A few years ago the woolly aphis became exceedingly prevalent in Western Oregon and then suddenly disappeared almost entirely, and has not even yet been up a very serious pest again.—Oregon Agriculturist.

"Through the months of June and July our baby was teething and took a running off of the bowels and sickness of the stomach," says O. P. M. Holliday, of Deming, Ind. "His bowels would move from 5 to 8 time a day. I had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy in the house and gave him four drops in a sup on at fe ers and got better at once. "Sold by Williams & Brosius.

"I had a severe attack of bilious colic, got a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy, took two doses and was entirely cured," says Rev. A. A. Power of Emporia, Kans. My neighbor across the street was sick for over a week, had two or three bottles of medicine from the doctor. He used them for three or four days without relief, then called in another doctor who treated him for some days and gave him no relief, so I discharged him. I went over to see him next morning. He said his bowels were in a terrible fix, that they had been running off so long it was almost bloody flux. I asked him if he had tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy and he said 'No.' I went home and brought him my bottle and gave him one dose, told him to take another in 15 or 20 minutes if he did not find relief, but he took no more and was entirely cured.
