In making his collections at the end of the week one of his patrons said he had paid. "Guess not," said Thompson; "you didn't pay me." "No, I paid your partner; I gave it to the Lord—that is, to the church."

David Irwin, father of Mrs. Geo. F. Coe of Hood River, is 101 years old. He lives at Byron, Michigan, and expects to come to Oregon to visit his daughter as soon as he gets better of his rheumatism, of which he has been recently so severely afflicted that he has to go on crutches. He is a veteran of four wars and was a commissioned officer in the civil war. An enlarged photo of the old veteran taken at the age of 98, has recently been received by Mrs. Coe. It looks like a man in the prime of life. Mr. Irwin always shaved clean till the age of 95, when his mustache came out black, and since then he has continued to wear it.

We hope that his business affairs may be straightened out so that he can continue in business in Hood River.

Davenport Bros. Lumber Co. are building a platform eight feet wide across the Rogers place at Belmont, which will be used for taking lumber from the flume to be sorted and stacked, until seasoned, or is wanted for shipment. The rough lumber can be hauled from this point more readily than from the planer to any point in the valley, or it can be sent down the flume to the planer to fill an order for dressed lumber. This platform will greatly facilitate work in the yards of the Davenport Bros. Lumber Company. Thos. Calkins had a birthday party on the 22d of September. The young folks of the neighborhood gave him a genuine surprise. A very pleasant evening was spent and the supper, it is said by those in attendance, was the best ever sat down to in the valley on an occasion of work Friday morning.
