

Hood River Glacier.

FRIDAY, MAY 17, 1901.

The serious illness of Mrs. McKinley at San Francisco has caused the president to abandon his trip to the Northwest. As soon as Mrs. McKinley's health will permit he will return to Washington by the most direct route.

Homeless for Hood River.

Lewisville, Ind., April 29, 1901.—Editor of the Hood River: After a protracted illness of winter, which extended its biting frosts and chilling winds till towards the last of April, spring has come at last. The song birds and the green fields, the wheat fields present a perfect carpet of green, and promise a bountiful crop. Fruit trees are beginning to show their bloom. The main crop here is corn and hogs. Indiana is one of the best states producing states, but it takes a great deal of capital to insure success at farming. And for this reason it makes one think of the beautiful country towards the setting sun. For a man to come back here and endure the winters of this country after having spent 15 months in Hood River—well, he will have visions of mountain scenery and strawberry fields by day and at night he will dream that his bed is in the warm, sunny rooms of Mt. Hood, and that he is being carried away by the gentle chinook winds over flowery fields and babbling brooks; and when he awakens, find the fire gone down and that it is about ten degrees below zero in his room.

A. C. HELMS.

Paul Kruger, a Times-Mountain representative, recently visited Hood River and gave it a good write-up in his paper. We clip the concluding paragraphs:

After a trip of two days through Hood River valley one cannot but express the opinion that it is the paradise of Oregon. A valley of 25 miles in length and from three to 10 miles in width, nestled in the mountains, surrounded by dense forests and high hills, the climate permits of growing the finest quality of fruit and vegetables, where the atmosphere is as pure as pure can be, where the water is as if it flowed from the fountain of youth, and where indeed an ideal spot, a place where peace and plenty abound, and where content and happiness should ever prevail. But the products of the valley are yet in its infancy. In time the country will be set up into small tracts, and a farm of 100 acres that now supports one family will be subdivided and support perhaps a dozen. The productivity of the soil has no limit, and when it is taxed to the utmost, it will produce more of the luxuries and necessities of life than any section of like area in the world. Certainly Hood River valley has a wonderful future in store.

The Red Men's excursion to the Dalles last Sunday was a grand success in point of numbers. About 250 carloads passed Hood River, and judging from the way they set up, it was a howling success. The Dalles Chronicle says: "The large majority of the excursionists were plainly highly respectable people who conducted themselves as ladies and gentlemen should; but there was a rabble of toughs of both sexes that gave one the impression that Portland's notorious North End was taking an outing. Literally scores of these young toughs were drunk until they arrived here and kept drunk until they left. Their conduct while in the Dalles was a disgrace to the excursion and a disgrace to the town that owns them as residents."

Strawberry Notes.

J. P. Eagan of White Salmon presented Lou Morse with his first box of ripe strawberries May 11th.

The Salem Journal says: L. S. Coon of Dillard, Oregon, has made a success of growing the Excelsior strawberry for the Portland market. Tuesday, May 7th, the first crate of Oregon grown strawberries was received from him and he also had the first crate in the market last year. This variety is extremely hard and has the quality of a good shipping berry.

While the strawberry crop gives every promise of being larger than ever before in Hood River, the number of crates required and reported to the box factory is only 22,500. Every grower should estimate the crates he will require and send his order in, in time. It is estimated by the different companies engaged in shipping berries that the crop will not fall below 40,000 crates.

Hon. J. W. Morton was second in bringing in Hood River strawberries. He brought 8 boxes in on May 14th that were shipped by the union.

It is expected California berries will be out of the market next week. Florin, Cal., it is said, will ship 80,000 fifteen-crate boxes.

The union received half a crate of strawberries from J. P. Eagan of White Salmon, Wash., May 14th.

E. Locke brought in 16 pounds of strawberries and shipped them May 14.

A. R. Byrket of White Salmon shipped the first crate of strawberries from Hood River May 14th for the season of 1901.

The first box of Hood River strawberries for 1901 was brought in on Tuesday, May 14th, by D. N. Eversley and bought by the Davidson Fruit Co. for 50 cents. This was the first sale of strawberries in Hood River for the season of 1901.

The first Mt. Tabor strawberries for this season in the Portland market came in May 13th and sold for 25 cents a box.

May 14th, S. C. Zeigler brought in the first half crate of strawberries from White Salmon, the first half crate to arrive in Hood River for the season of 1901. The Davidson Fruit Co. paid $1 for the half crate. This is the sixth season that Mr. Zeigler has been first with a crate or half crate of berries in market in Hood River. Mr. Zeigler's wife presented him on Sunday with two boys and of course she feels that things are coming his way. Besides being first to bring in berries every year, Mr. Zeigler makes it a rule to pay in advance his subscription to the Glacier with his first strawberry money.

Fred Duthier of Underwood shipped a half crate of berries May 24th.

The first shipment of strawberries in Hood River this season was made on the 14th of May, consisting of three crates.

Mrs. N. C. Evans claims to be the "first man" to haul a half crate of Hood River strawberries to the depot. This season, having brought them in in the afternoon of May 15th.

The Hood River Spring Water Co. has proposed, if the city will lay a 4 inch main down Oak street from the connections of their 4-inch main with the laterals, that they will furnish water gratis for fire protection, flushing sewers and fire company practice. The company will further agree to shut off the water from their laterals in time of fire and turn all the water into the city's main. The proposition to be granted upon the condition that the city's mains are not to be tapped except for the purposes mentioned. It is estimated that to lay the mains and purchase a hosecart will cost the city not more than $1,500. With the pressure head of water, it is said, a stream of water could be thrown over the highest house on Oak street, and that the supply would last two hours. The proposition is well worth consideration by the council. It will give the fire protection needed, there is no cheaper plan can be devised.

H. D. Langille and his assistants in the geological survey, W. B. Cole and Bert Straubach, came up from below Viento on Tuesday and Wednesday went up the valley towards Mt. Hood. The snow was found to be too deep in the Cascade mountains to continue the work southward from the Columbia river, as at first intended.
