The box factory will not be replaced at present, and only a temporary covering will be erected for the new planing machinery. An unfortunate incident of the fire was the absence of water in the flume at the time. A farmer living along the flume had unrightfully turned out the water the night before and was using it for irrigation. Had the water been in the flume the mill company would have easily saved $2,000 worth of cedar posts. The accident is to be regretted, but it will afford a valuable lesson to others.
