Oregon Wins the Medal.

Henry E. Doch writes from Buffalo to the Oregonian as follows: "The Pomological Society of America, now in session, and the highest authority on fruits in America, has awarded Wilder medal to the State of Oregon for horticultural exhibits at the Pan-American Exposition. This is the greatest honor that can be bestowed on American fruits, and the Oregon delegation are correspondingly elated."

"The Pomological Society of America, which includes the British provinces, was founded some 70 years ago. Marshal P. Wilder, the veteran horticulturist in horticulture, was its first president, and for many years filled that important position. It included among its members, as now, all the noted fruit growers. In order to stimulate the production of new varieties as well as perfect fruit, the society gave money prizes, which however, for obvious reasons did not prove satisfactory, and they decided to award medals instead, and in honor of their president and promoter, the name 'Wilder medal' was given it. When Mr. Wilder died he left a fund of $1,000, the interest of which was to be devoted to silver and bronze medals for the best fruit, most perfect fruit; largest collection of fruits of any given pomological variety, etc., and to be awarded only by its own members for pure merit, which has been religiously carried out ever since."

The Hood River contributors were E. L. Smith, W. J. Baker and G. J. Gieseling.

Benson-Fosterin.
A pretty wedding occurred on Wednesday morning, September 25th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. Tostevin, when they gave away their only daughter, Miss Edith Marie, in marriage to Mr. Edward N. Benson; Rev. J. L. Hercher officiating.

The home was beautifully decorated with Oregon grape, smilax and cut roses. The bride was becomingly attired in white organdy and carried a bouquet of white roses and smilax. Immediately after the ceremony the happy wedded pair, with invited guests, repaired to the dining room, where an elaborate wedding breakfast was served, smilax predominating as table decorations. After the wedding repast, Mr. and Mrs. Benson were driven to the train, which they took for San Francisco, where they will spend about two weeks, when they will return to Hood River to reside permanently.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. N. Tostevin, Mr. and Mrs. James Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brown, Rev. and Mrs. J. L. Hercher, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Binn, Messrs. F. C. Brosius and G. E. Williams, Messrs. G. W. Graham, Chas. Tostevin, Clarence Gilbert and Arthur Rogers.

Bear Killed.
Flint Bradford and the Nealeigh killed a 300 pound bear almost within the city limits Sunday morning. The bear was first seen by H. M. Abbott's little three-year-old girl, who ran to the house one day last week and reported that she saw a cow up a tree. Mr. Abbott had also noticed that the fruit in his orchard was disappearing and had blamed the boys from town with taking it. Later F. H. Blagg saw the bear and reported to the Nealeigh. Nealeigh fired the shot that killed the bear. In this connection it might be added that some one who loves bears better than dogs poisoned Flint's faithful old bear dog Monday morning. By prompt action in administering antidotes Flint saved the dog's life, and he may live to fight bears another day.

Hard to Beat.
The fine display of corn and the big egg plant exhibited in the Glacier window during the past week came from the farm of W. P. Watson and were grown by him. The corn is of the Klondike, Kansas Dent and Golden Amber, all new varieties introduced by Mr. Watson. One ear of the Klondike corn measures 13 inches, the length advertised and illustrated in the catalogue of the eastern house from which he received the seed. The egg plant measures 2 1/2 x 4 inches. Mr. Watson says he can beat this monstrous growth after the corn has become acclimated. He will take this display to the Portland carnival.

Dalles Street Carnival.
For the above occasion this company will make low excursion rates for the round trip to The Dalles and return. From Hood River to The Dalles and return, 70 cents. Tickets on sale Sept. 30th to Oct. 5th, inclusive, good two days after sale. Children under 11 years of age, half fare. For further information, call on J. C. Clay, agent O. R. & N. Co., Hood River, Or.

Frankton Notes.
J. O. Eastman has commenced the erection of a substantial and commodious residence on his place on Phelps creek. Ward Tompkins, oldest son of Gilbert Tompkins, who recently purchased the T. E. Wickens ranch, came home last week. With Ward and Bert Mr. Tompkins has a good team and evidently will soon have his name in ship shape. He is preparing the ground for a new strawberry field.

W. S. Boorman took a trip to Sherman county last week. The Dalles City Saturday, found for Oregon City. He has been visiting his nephew, Wm. Ely, during the past two weeks.

Eben Boorman has his house nearly completed and will move into it in a few days, an agreed change from "tenting it" these showery days and nights.

Mr. Amen and family have moved into their new home on the state road.

Big Sale of Apples.
Leavenworth, Kas., Sept. 14.—An agent for a big New York fruit firm, has purchased the apples in the Wellhouse apple orchard at Fairmount, Kas., and Lees Summit, Mo. The orchards contain 450 acres of apples, and it is estimated they will yield about 16,000 bushels. The price for the apples on the tree to be $1.50 and $2.00 per barrel. The highest price is to be paid for Jonathans. The agent has also purchased the apples in the large orchards of John Storm and Mrs. O. S. Hunt. The apples will be packed in barrels and placed on the cars at a depth of 40 feet by George Krause of that city, while sinking a well near the old garrison.

Acient Order of the Red Cross.
Hood River lodge No. 10, A. O. E. C., will meet Friday night, Sept. 28th, in the I. O. O. F. hall. Action will be taken looking to the purchase of paraphernalia for the degree fund. It is important that every member should be present. Assessment No. 2 should be paid on or before the 28th and this will be a most convenient opportunity.

Sheep Herder's Reply.

Editor Glacier: In your issue of Aug. 26, 1901, you stated there were about 25,000 sheep making life weary for the settlers on the head waters of Neal creek. Now, the settlers who are worried the most are those who do not live there. They come to their homesteads and stay over night once in six months and go back home the next day. These same settlers like a piece of mutton at any time. The wheat hay of Mr. Rogers was not hurt by sheep; it was hurt by cattle and the hard winter. The fence was of brush and the snow of last winter matted it down so that stock could walk over it. There has not been any herder's tent pitched on or near Mr. Rogers' place this year. You quote several eggs of beer. I think that is a mistake, as sheep and wool are too low in price to afford any such luxuries. The boys who came up to cut Mr. Rogers' hay were his wife and daughter and the tools they brought to cut it were an umbrella and a fan. Now, the sheep men pay taxes and help support the county and I think they are entitled to some of the grass. As to Mr. Rogers' neighbors, I am not prepared to say, as they live in Hood river valley and I know but little about them. Sheep men have not injured settlers at the head waters of Neal creek, but range cattle have torn down fences and destroyed crops. Oro Bull.

Lo-le-pam-me.
(Indian name for Hood River.)
In ancient days, ere the foot of man came westward with the march of time, In peaceful quest of conquering clan, To dwell in earth's most lovely clime, A scene of quiet beauty lay.

Beneath Mr. Hood, A pleasant dale, And a silver stream did thread its way Through Lo-le-pam-me's lovely vale.

The giant firs, the waving pines And sturdy oaks in splendor grew, And twining honeysuckle vines Their gorgeous petals ready to view, Here Mr. Hood did spread her flowers, And fruitful blossoms did not fail Amid her brightly sun-kissed bowers In Lo-le-pam-me's lovely vale.

The strawberry then as now did grow, And Oregon grapes of purple hue, And dog-wood blossoms here did blow, And violets blue in aureole blue, There was a bridal day of earth and sky, When the dusky warrior made his trail Over the "bridge of the gods," his steps to try, Through Lo-le-pam-me's lovely vale.

The "bridge of the gods" was the red man's pride, According to legendary lore, He loved upon its rocks to ride A single spear from shore to shore, But Hood and Adams fought one day, And the giant bridge was tumbled down; And the river since has made its way Above its shattered fallen crown.

Mrs. Hood and Adams, with their snowy crests, And glacial slides, kept the summer cool, And warm winds fanned the winter's nests Of the birds that watched the red man's steps, He led an undisturbed way, Through ages long in this quiet dale, Till the Boston man did find his way To Lo-le-pam-me's lovely vale.

The pioneers of '41 To the land "where rolls the Oregon," Were treading Columbia's southern shore With nothing more to feed upon Than their faithful dog. They show him there, And while on the banks they shiver They fast upon a dog-meat fare, And call the stream "Dog river."

Long after this, in '66, 'Twas called Hood River by some few; And some did ask, Where do you fix This river that we never knew? And they did answer, "By the same name, That we called 'Dog river' on the trail; Above Cascade they've changed the name, And since 'tis Hood River without fail.

Then halt to Hood River's fruitful land, Where the bright red strawberries grow, With luscious fruits on every hand, And a climate no other place can know, Come ye who dwell beneath laboring skies, Or freezing where the snow lies on, And see what a glorious prospect lies In the land "where rolls the Oregon."

To a land where the chinook blows In winter time like breath of spring, And the bright chrysanthemum blossom glows, While the lark and robin joyous sing, Hesperus here by the Western sea, Where the luscious redskins never fail, And the fruits hang full on every tree In Lo-le-pam-me's lovely vale.
