Last Friday evening, October 4th, a party of Eastern Stars drove out to the home of Lee Morse to surprise him, but as some of his neighbors called early in the evening, Lee "unsuspected." The occasion was his 50th birthday anniversary. One thing he did not suspect was a big rocker the party took along, which surprised him so words of thanks almost failed him. He said it was so comfortable he was afraid the rest of the family would have to do the farming for him. It has since been learned that he sits in it at his meals. Comfortably seated in it, he declared he was ready for anything the party might serve, but at the eighth course he threw up in his hands and declared he could eat no more, for if he did he would be in a worse condition than Sam Bartness, who proved to be "an able-bodied man with a small (7) appetite." Every one reported a jolly time. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Lee Morse, March Morse, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Morse, Orland Morse, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Cole and Lloyd, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Phelps, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Davidson and Helen, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Ellis, Mesdames Brocius, Yates, Haynes, Castner, Nickelsen and Childers. Extensive Oregon. From the Oregonian. Though Oregon is the oldest United States territory on the Pacific coast, it has the largest proportion of public land still open to settlement. More than half of its area, 34,185,967 acres, remains an appropriated and unsurveyed. Of this there are 2,500,000 acres surveyed and ready for entry by competent persons at the proper land office. There are six United States land districts in the state, with land offices as follows: The Dalles, La Grange, Burns, Lakeview, Roseburg and Oregon City. The reserved area of the state is 5,842,821 acres, and 21,389,712 acres are otherwise appropriated. More than half of the state is now surveyed and open for settlement than has been in any other state. The reserved area of the state has been taken by private owners. Like the Northwest territory between the Ohio river and the great lakes, Oregon is a mosaic of states. The present states of Oregon, Washington and Idaho, a part of Montana and a part of the province of British Columbia, were formerly in the Oregon country, which was a bone of international contention from the beginning of the century until the treaty of 1846 settled Northwest boundary matters between the United States and Great Britain. A provisional government for all of Oregon territory was organized in 1848, and the next year the United States law were extended over the region. In 1853 that part north of the Columbia river and the 46th-parallel was set off to form the territory of Washington, and 10 years later Idaho territory was created, thus reducing Oregon to its present dimensions. Oregon was formally admitted as a state into the Union in 1859. The next year its population numbered 52,465; last year the census showed a population of 413,530. Death of Thomas McDonald. Thomas McDonald was born in Danville, Ohio, January 6, 1833; died October 5, 1901, aged 78 years, 8 months and 29 days. Deceased moved to Indiana in 1845, where, in March, 1854, he was married to Harriet Easter Houser. In 1861 he enlisted in Company D, 6th regiment Indiana volunteers, in which he served three years in the civil war. He was taken prisoner at Murfreesboro, Tenn., and confinement in Southern prisons broke down his health, from which he never fully recovered. While in the army his only child, a daughter, died of typhoid fever. His wife died April 5, 1890. Since the death of his wife he made his home with his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. H. Pugh, and lived in Hood River the past eight years. In 1897 he visited relatives in Indiana and Missouri, and while in Missouri suffered a stroke of paralysis, which affected his mind and made him a helpless invalid till the day of his death. He was a member of the Methodist church and at the time of the building of the M. E. church in Hood River he was one of its trustees. He was a member of Canby Post G. A. R. and took an active interest in the work of the Grand Army while his health permitted. His pension at the time of his death was $16 a month. Funeral services were held at the M. E. church, October 7th, at 2 o'clock. Rev. F. R. Spaulding preached the sermon and was assisted in the service by Rev. J. L. Hershamer and Rev. J. W. Riggs. At the grave, in Idlewild cemetery, the last rites were observed by Canby post according to the ritual. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is not a mere stimulant and tonic. The colonel found them near Suplee, close to the boundary line between Grant and Crook counties.—Dalles Chronicle. Resolutions on the Death of McKinley. By Canby Post, No. 16, G. A. R. Whereas, President and Comrade William McKinley has represented the highest type of American manhood by a life in public and private which was pure and without a blemish; whose entire life was devoted to the benefit of his country and to the welfare of his fellow men; and whose untimely death is a national calamity and a source of deep grief to the people of the United States; and that his memory should be honored and his name kept before the people as a source of inspiration and example; Resolved, That we, the members of the G. A. R., do bow in grief at the death of him who was in the prime of life and usefulness, and in admiration of his noble and heroic life; and that we will endeavor to emulate his virtues and point our sons with pride to a character so noble, a life so pure, an ambition so high, and a goal so grand; and that we will strive to be as true to the first round in the climb for fame and honor, and reaching the summit only to be hurled down by the assassin's hand, as he has accomplished his mission. Resolved, That the system of anarchy that is responsible for the assassination of our president and comrade should be short lived. How long shall terrorist anarchists be allowed to breathe their treasonable and murderous utterances in this otherwise free and happy land? It is the madman's dream that the result of false teaching; it comes as the fruit of a system that has been permitted to grow. What an awful harvest! Comrades, our duty is clear—let us urge our legislators to enact laws more stringent to protect our shores from the venomous touch of the viper that came from a foreign land, and the society and government and persons all with whom it comes in contact. Legislate for the speedy retention of the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Let us not be deceived by the power those now in our midst who claim protection of freedom's flag but who are ready to give it up for a few dollars. We better come to our senses and realize that the only way to a good government is to have a good citizenry. Let us make a national day of mourning for the late General McKinley. Resolved, That we will do our best to prevent any attempts to hoist the red flag, shoot him on the spot. C. J. HAYES, E. L. CALKINS, W. H. HENDERSON, Committee. October 4, 1901. Obituary. Christina, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Dark, was born at Underwood, Wash., December 25, 1884; died at the same place, September 4, 1901, aged 16 years, 8 months and 10 days, after an illness of 11 days of pneumonia. During the last day she told her mother at the school entertainment that she had learned. Little Christina, or Christina, as she was generally called, was a very bright and sunny nature. Her time at school was very short, but while she remained she made rapid progress. The funeral was held from the school house, six of her school friends, dressed in white, acted as pall-bearers, and the school children attended in a body, and as she was consigned to the ground, the "Benediction of the Living Hands" after which the children marched around and dropped flowers into her grave. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Jacob Peak of Hood River. We wish to say that Christina was a bright, sunny and cheerful nature, and that we have been called to a greater school, where some day we hope to meet you in part no more. "There will be no parting from those that we love." No more sighing or shedding of tears. For no discord shall suffer that peaceful repose. Which flows through eternity's years. Ours we soon shall be called to this beautiful land. There to dwell with the just evermore. There to join in sweet songs with the friends that we love. Safe at home on the beautiful shore."
