Where Rolls the Oregon.

Correspondence Oregon City Courier-Herald.

After a few days of activity in The Dalles we floated down to Hood River, where we spent Sunday. Hood River is famed the world over for her big red apples and luscious strawberries, and perhaps the readers of your columns will find a brief sketch of some interest. We are indebted to much valuable information to Hon. E. L. Smith, president of the Oregon state board of horticulture, who has been a resident of this valley for 26 years, has a lovely and prolific orchard of 50 acres, three miles above town, and he is enthusiastic over the future prospects for the Oregon fruit-growers if they can be induced to co-operate, for only in union is there strength. The individual producer is at the tender (?) mercies of commission sharks and diamond stud speculators.

One reason why Hood River fruit always commands good prices is that they have a well organized union and no competition among the producers.

Henry T. Williams, who owns extensive orchards in the Ozark mountains of Arkansas, and who recently purchased an 80 acre orchard in Hood River valley, says, in speaking of the strawberry industry here: "The demand exceeded the supply. Markets that wanted them could not be supplied, and had to go without. Commission men who wanted them on commission were told that nothing left this place except when paid for in advance or guaranteed. Dealers wanting to beat down the prices were told that if they were not good to stick by prices first given they would not get any. Never before was the grower king of the market. But one variety can be sold with favor and but from one place, the home of its adoption—Hood River. There are certain peculiar merits connected with this variety—the Clark's Seedling—that constitutes a chapter in horticulture, very remarkable. What it is that gives this berry its excellence here no one knows. The berry is not the same elsewhere. It carries for distances of 2,000 miles or more and holds firm to the end."

Several shipments that went to the Klondyke country are reported to have arrived there in good condition and sold like hot cakes at $5 a box. There were 40,000 crates of strawberries shipped from here this year—over 60 carloads. The cash returns to the growers was about $85,000; a deduction of $25,000 for picking and crates, leaves the growers about $60,000 clear of expenses. The entire acreage in strawberries in Hood River and White Salmon is about 350 acres, over $160 per acre net profit.

Space will not permit us giving the Hood River valley a proper description. The people here all seem prosperous. As an example of apple culture we will mention C. Dethman's orchard of five acres 11 years of age. He has mostly late winter varieties, and of course, exercises care in picking and packing, but for the last five years his apple crop from these five acres has brought him an average of $1400 in cash. Say, don't that beat raising 40 cent wheat.

Our thanks are due V. Winchell, a pioneer native son of Hood River valley, for a pleasant drive, and much of the information we gathered of the valley's pioneer history. The first settler located in Hood River valley in 1854. The first store building was erected in the town in 1881 by John Parker, now deceased. It is still standing and is occupied by Bone & McDonald, as a general merchandise store. The town was incorporated in 1894, and now has a population of 700 souls. An electric light plant has recently been placed in operation. It has a local telephone system, and is a live up to date town. It is 66 miles by rail from Portland. During the high water, the river steamers run right up to the town, but at low water as at present it is a mile from the landing. But after all is said about Hood River, she can't hold a candle to our native soil—Clackamas county. HOSS.

Nicolai Notes.

The congestion of railroad ties in the mill company's yards here has caused the mill to only run half time, and consequently many men have been thrown out of employment and have moved away.

A petition to take Con Repp's place into the Frankton school district is being circulated by W. A. Lockman. The petition was generally signed at Viento.

The Sunday school here still flourishes, notwithstanding the loss of much of our population. John Drill is superintendent and Miss Lulu Absten, secretary. Miss Absten is also a teacher in the Sunday school.

Mrs. Grant McCarn is quite low with consumption. Mr. McCarn is giving his entire time to caring for his sick wife. The family came here from Wisconsin last May. It was hoped that the change of climate would benefit Mrs. McCarn's health.

The mill company donated the winter's supply of wood for the branch school house here, known as the Columbia school. F. R. Absten, one of the board of directors, donated the hauling.

Miss Edna Brown is successfully conducting the Columbia school. She has 30 pupils enrolled, with an average attendance of 28.

Irvin Boggs, who worked in the mill here last winter, it is reported lost a leg that was cut off by the cars while traveling on the railroad, time and place not stated.

Dukes Valley Items.

This is the home of the rattlesnake, digger squirrel and coyote and is one of the prettiest little valleys in Oregon.

The farmers are all done sowing their fall crops and grain looks fine.

The big ditch is almost completed to Dukes Valley. There was some water in it last week, and the ditch slid out for several feet. We may get washed away next summer if the ditch is going to act like this.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Kassel are visiting in the valley from Roseburg, Ore. They came up overland and expect to locate here. They sold their farm near Roseburg. Mrs. Kassel is visiting her mother, Mrs. J. F. Dodson.

Dennis Dodson came home sick, last Sunday, from the Chenowith saw mill, but is getting better now.

Wm. Dodson, J. Kassel and H Dodson intend to go to work on the ditch soon. IKE.

Death of the Oldest Man.

London, Oct. 18.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Athens records the death at Khuti, Albania, of Ismail Hudjo, said to have been the oldest man in the world. It is said that he was 160 years old. His faculties were unimpaired, and he had all his teeth when he died. He leaves 200 descendants.

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 17.—Mrs. Ann Taylor, one of the historical characters of this city and state, died here yesterday, aged 110 years. For more than a century she had been addicted to the use of tobacco and liquor.

The greatest demand for fruit trees from the nursery, this year, appears to be for the apple and cherry, says Pacific Farmer.

A Union of Interests.

A fruit growers union at Salem is indispensible to protect the berry trade at both places. For instance, the Hood River berry is grown on the sandy bottom land about Salem, and is even a good crop on the heavier lands of Salem prairie in favorable locations. The so-called Hood River berry is Clark's seedling, and grows to the greatest perfection for the home market and cannery at Salem, and quite a number of crates were shipped from here last year. They were so large and fine in color and quality that they brought orders for more. One small shipment from Salem to a California town brought an order for a carload. The Clark's Seedling grown at Salem is probably not as good a shipping berry for distant markets as when grown at Hood River. But both places can produce fruit of such excellence and superiority that they have no need to fear of holding markets. The difference in price received by growers at the two places is so great that as Salem shipments increase they are bound to interfere with Hood River trade.

A meeting of the fruit growers of Salem and vicinity is to be held at Salem on Saturday, Nov. 23rd for the purpose of hearing a discussion of the merits of forming an union of interests locally and possibly of avoiding friction and competition with Hood River. Industrial agent Judson of the S. P. Co. expects to have some representative men from Hood River at that meeting to tell the growers here how it is done. THE JOURNAL believes that the Clark's seedling berries grown here can be handled under the Hood River brand with better results to growers of both sections.—Salem Journal.

Green Must Hang.

Murderer Green has given up all hope of escaping the gallows. State Senator E. M. Rands, his attorney, was up early this week and, it is reported, informed his client that he must suffer the extreme penalty. A night and day watch is now kept and will be maintained up to the day of Green's doom. The precise day of the execution has not yet been made public, but it is evidently near at hand, as Sheriff Totten is now planning to have cards printed inviting his friends to witness the gruesome event. About 200 of those favors will be distributed. The prisoner shows such a woful lack of courage as the day approaches for the execution that the sheriff has decided to construct a gallows in the woods adjacent to the town, and away from hearing distance of the condemned man.—Pioneer.

Death of Mrs. Snipes.

Mrs. Martha Snipes, wife of Geo. Shipes, died at her home three miles below The Dalles, Oct. 24th. Deceased's maiden name was Martha Imbler. She was born in Iowa, Feb. 25, 1835, and with her parents crossed the plains in '53. On their arrival at The Dalles she was married to Geo. Snipes on September 25th of that year, they having been the second couple married in Wasco county, and since then have made their home in this county. To Mr. and Mrs. Snipes 14 children were born, eleven of whom survive. She was a sister of Jesse Imbler of Hood River.

Spreads Like Wildfire.

When things are "the best" they become "the best selling." Abraham Hare, a leading druggist of Belleville, O., writes: "Electric Bitters are the best selling bitters I have handled in 20 years." You know why? Most diseases begin in disorders of stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels, blood and nerves. Electric Bitters tones up the stomach, regulates livery kidneys and bowels, purifies the blood, strengthens the nerves, hence cures multitudes of maladies. It builds up the entire system. Puts new life and vigor into any weak, sickly, run-down man or woman. Price 50c. Sold by Chas. N. Clarke, druggist.

County warrants registered prior to December 3, 1898, on which interest ceased after September 12, 1901, will be paid upon presentation to the treasurer of Wasco county.

First-class apples are selling in Portland at from $1 to $1.50 a box.

Milton will ship 50 carloads of apples. Buyers are paying $1.25 to $1.80 per box.

If anybody asks you what the evening wore on, tell him, "the close of the day."—Astorian.

A new case of diphtheria was reported to the city authorities this morning, that of a child of W. S. Woolsey, who resides in the Military Addition, near the end of the flume. The house was promptly quarantined. This is the first new case in nearly two weeks. The old cases are all well and only await the limit of the law for raising the quarantine. The flag was taken down from J. B. Goit's house yesterday. The quarantine will be raised on the remaining five old cases in a few days.—Dalles Chronicle.

"Best Winter Apples on Earth."

The Glenwood (Iowa) Opinion claims that its locality can produce the "best winter apples on earth." Glenwood is the county seat of Mills county, a southwestern county of Iowa, bordering on the Missouri river. The following extracts taken from the Opinion have a familiar sound:

Almost everyone is surprised at the number of apples being harvested in the vicinity of Glenwood. The season for summer apples was remarkably good. But in the winter apple crop is where we shine in this locality. It cannot be beat. The Opinion received a letter this summer from Frederic W. Taylor, director of consessions at the Pan-American exposition and who has also charge of the horticultural department. Mr. Taylor is an old Missouri valley horticulturist and took occasion in this letter to say that Glenwood was the center of the best apple country in the world. Coming from a man of such wide experience as a traveler this statement is worthy of consideration. Mr. Taylor means to say that nowhere in the world are there better apples produced than right here in Mills county. The Jonathan apples this season are something remarkable. The season is now at its best for this famous variety and they are being shipped from Glenwood by the train load. Carson Walker came to town Tuesday with some fine specimens which were quickly bought up by a Chicago house. The packers said that in all their experience, they had never seen as good Jonathan apples as Mr. Walker had on his palce.

The price of Jonathan apples, too, is surprising everybody, and is bringing great nuggets of gold into our midst.

This week the price is from $2.50 to $3. per barrel. The fact is that Glenwood is the only place where they can be found in any quantity. Palmer & Co. of Sioux City, and J. W. Stump of Chicago, saw the handwriting on the wall months ago and settled here. Now they are reaping a fine harvest. At some of our hotels the majority of the boarders are apple packers. Yesterday a man from New York happened along and threw up his hands in wild despair. He was too late. Most of the orchards have been bought up by western hustlers.

Mr. McFerron, a bricklayer who moved from Chicago to Glenwood a few years ago, is in great fortune this year. His apple orchard northwest of town is one of the most prolific in these parts. When he came here Mr. McFerron did not know a thing about orcharding. Wash Murphy gave him some pointers and he began slashing around with the pruning hook. At any rate he got the place cleaned up. This year he has been compelled to use props and scaffolding to keep the loaded limbs up.

W. M. Meyers of Tabor was a welcome Opinion caller this week and astonished us with bringing in some samples of the Wolf River variety of apples so large that six of them would cover the bottom of a half bushel basket. Mr. Meyers took them around to several apple packing establishments in Glenwood and was tickled to see the apple experts open their eyes and stop work to examine them. Six of these apples weighed an ounce and a half less than six pounds.

Astounding Discovery.

From Coopersville, Mich., comes word of a wonderful discovery of a pleasant tasting liquid that when used before retiring by any one troubled with a bad cough always insures a good night's rest. "It will soon cure the cough, too," writes Mrs. S. Himelburger, "for three generations of our family have used Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption and never found its equal for coughs and colds." It's an unrivaled life-saver when used for desperate lung diseases. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1 at Chas. N. Clarke's. Trial bottles free.

Call and See Us.

I have now taken charge of the cutting department of Mrs. Clark's Dress Making establishment, and we are now prepared to do general dress making, also ladies' tailoring. All old customers and also new ones are respectfully invited to call and examine our work and get our prices. I also conduct my Dress Cutting school in connection. Hours from 2 to 4 p. m. You should inquire into the merits of this work. JANE COATES.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

United States Land Office, Vancouver, Wash., Sept. 11, 1901.—Notice is hereby given that in compliance with the provisions of the act of congress of June 3, 1878, entitled "An act for the sale of timber lands in the states of California, Oregon, Nevada and Washington territory," as extended to all the public land states by act of August 4, 1892,

SIMON B. KREPS,

Of Fulda, county of Klickitat, state of Washington, has this day filed in this office his sworn statement No. 2050 for the purchase of the south west ¼ northeast ¼, and northwest ¼ southeast ¼ of section No. 11, in township No. 5 north, range No. 11 east, W. M., and will offer proof to show that the land sought is more valuable for its timber or stone than for agricultural purposes, and to establish his claim to said land before the Register and Receiver of this office at Vancouver, Washington, on Tuesday, the 26th day of November, 1901.

He names as witnesses: Haley D. Cole, Samuel M. Cole and John Myers of Fulda, Wash., and George W. Gilmer of Gilmer, Wash.

Any and all persons claiming adversely the above-described lands are requested to file their claims in this office on or before said 26th day of November, 1901.
