How to Train Strawberry Vines.

Col. E. Hofer of the Salem Journal is an enthusiast upon strawberry culture; has made a study of growing strawberries for years, and is competent to give advice to new beginners. We copy below some rules he gives for propagating the plants, which will apply to Hood River as well as the Willamette valley, except that here we commence to set plants in July and August:

This month is the time to train the vines for new plants to set out early in the fall. If properly done, growers of strawberries can gain nearly a year's time on new acreage. It will pay all who expect to grow for the market to look after a good plant supply for next year. A few simple rules about raising strawberry plants may not be out of place:

1st—The best plants are obtainable only from new stock—that is plants set out last fall or this spring. Plants from older vines have not the vigor and vitality of growths from the younger stock.

2d—Do not make over one to four plants from a hill. By setting the first plants that run out and fixing them to the ground with a stone or lump of earth they will root immediately. All secondary runners starting from this new plant should be removed.

By this process you will get large strong plants with great root power and with a fully formed crown, and if set out as early in the fall as the ground will permit, you will get a profitable crop next spring. Plants grown in this way and set out in the latter part of September or early in October will look like a field a year old and bear nearly as much.

It will be argued that this is a great deal of work, and you will ask "Dose it pay?" I have tried both ways and am satisfied a trial will convince you. The old way of making strawberry plants was to let a plant set all the new plants it would—sometimes 20 to 50, and often a perfect mat of plants, none of them large and strong, and most of them puny, weak and emaciated. None of this kind of stock ever makes much of a crop the first year after planting. With such plants the rule is to wait a year for a crop. It takes a year to get them on their feet, to grow a crown that will produce fruit in profitable quantities, for all time such plants will never be as strong as if the vines had been trained and limited to producing on an average of two new plants to the hill.

As the runners have to be removed from each hill after the fruit is off, it is not much more work to train two plants for new stock. After picking, go through the rows you want to make plants from and remove all weeds, then go through and train the two strongest runners, laying a clod on the runner next to the first joint and pinching off the runner that is just starting. Train them with the rows so that you can run the cultivator through once in a while. One hand can train serveral thousand in a day, and each plant grown this way, if set out early in the fall, will produce 2 cents worth of fruit next year of the finest quality.

If such plants are grown near to where new acreage is to be laid out, they can be removed in the fall with the earth on the roots and never stop growing.

It will be said this means work but it is work that pays. We have been paying too little attention to getting plants started right and we have been growing too much poor product as a result. A weak plant will not only lose us a year in the crop but will never have the vitality and productiveness of a properly-trained plant. I am satisfied that it will pay any grower to raise his own plants in this way. The nurseryman who grows plants to handle by the thousands at $1.50 to $2.50 per 1,000, is doing it to meet competitive commercial conditions but the strawberry grower for profit must go to the beginning and grow his plants on correct priciples if he would get the greatest results.

Will Know Better Next Time.

James DeBord returned last week from his trip to the coast, and has again taken up his work in the barber shop. Jim went clam digging while at the coast. "A friend of mine invited me," said Jim, "and being 'easy' I went. We walked four miles in sand that reached just an inch above my shoe tops. But I enjoyed it. In course of time we hove in sight of a long low lying mud flat. Although we were early there were others ahead of us. Before going further we took off our shoes. This I proceeded to do with joy, for it reminded me of the days when I was a kid and used to wade through the frog ponds, while playing 'hookey' from school. We tied our shoes together, slung them over our shoulders and proceeded to hunt the festive clam.

"It was a pleasant sensation to feel the sticky, black mud oozing up between your toes like mud through a brick mill," continued DeBord. "Once and awhile a cold chill would sneak up my back, but I didn't mind a little thing like that. I remarked to my friend there must be a young whale burrying just a head of us, from the way the water was spouting up. Since then, I've concluded my friend must be some relation to the meanest man on earth for not telling me different. The spouting young whale looked good to me, so I crept up quietly and stuck my great toe down the hole in the mud. The next instant I jerked it back with a howl like the bloodhounds on a fresh scent of Tracy. I went two or three feet into the air and fell in a half dozen different direction all at once. The more I floundered around the deeper the mud seemed to get, and the clam was clinging to my toe like grim death to a nigger. No siree, I don't want any more clam digging in mine."

Oregon State Fair.

The premium list of the Oregon state fair is now out and being distributed among the farmers and breeders throughout the state. It carries $10,000 in cash premiums on live stock and agricultural products. Every farmer and breeder in the state is invited to bring something to the state fair this year and help swell the big exhibit that is already promised. The Southern Pacific company hauls all exhibits to and from the fair free of charge, which enables every one to send something to help the good cause along. To those who wish to take their families and spend a week at the fair, they will find one of the finest camp grounds on the coast, absolutely free. Any information regarding the fair will be gladly given by writing the secretary at Portalnd, Oregon. If you have not received a premium list, write for one at once.

The board of regents of the state university met last Saturday in Portland and elected Professor E. D. De Cou of Russellville, Ky., to the chair of mathematics of the University of Oregon, left vacant by the dismissal of Professor George Lilly, some months ago. Professor Irving M. Glen of the chair of early English and oratory, was also made dean of the school of music, vice W. Gifford Nash, resigned. O. F. Stafford was promoted from instructor in chemistry to an assistant professorship in that department, and was also placed in charge of the department pending the election of a successor to Dr. Arthur Lachman, who lately resigned to accept the position of head chemist for the United States in the Philippine Islands. A. P. McKinlay, a graduate of the University of Oregon, and for seven years professor of Latin at the Portland high school, was elected to the chair of Latin to serve during the three-year leave of absence obtained by Professor F. S. Dunn, who is at Harvard.

The Campers at Maple Dell.

At present there are thirteen camps here with a total population of 45.

Reverend Hollinshead of the Portland Centenary M. E. church was here last week.

John Mahone was with the Woodworth-Shaffer camp one day, and pitying them because of their lack of fish, he went out and brought in a deer.

Messrs. VanHyse, Woodworth, Shaffer, Fleming, Mr. and Mrs Ed Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Noah Bone, J. H. Ferguson, Norman Young, Pansy and Marjory Baker, Nellie Rogers, Mrs. Reese, Mr. Meldon and Mr. Kelly were at Lost lake fishing for water dogs recently.

Judge Henry still holds first place among the fishermen, with David Fleming a close second. G. D. Woodworth, however, is forging to the front. His marvelous success is the wonder of the whole camp. In seven days he has brought in nine fish, tomorrow's catch not included.

Henrys, Howes, McGuires, Hunts, Jacksons. Woodworths, Shaffers, Metcalfs, Castners, Fletchers, Holts, Shaws, and Bakers, besides those already mentioned, are "at home" at Maple Dell.

The women went out on a blooming dress parade. A number of snap shots were taken of the happy crown. They (the pictures) will be for sale at Bradley's.

The little girl of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Shaw of Portland was drowned Saturday afternoon, while Mrs. Shaw narrowly escaped. Much credit is due Walter McGuire, Mr. Holt and several sheepherders, whose names we failed to get, for their strenuous efforts in rescuing Mrs. Shaw and recovering the body of the little girl. Everything possible was done and blame attaches to no one. From the human view point it was an accident, but viewed by the eternal it is possibly a Providence the wisdom of which will be revealed in the coming days. H. C. S.

Rev. J. W. Jenkins, of Hood River delivered a very interesting lecture at the U. B. church Wednesday evening, on the "Island of Jamaica," where Mr. Jenkins spent over three years engaged in missionary work. The lecture was replete with information concerning the island, its people, manners, customs, religion, etc., and was very interestingly illustrated by a fine lot of stereopticon views. It is to be regretted that his audience was not larger, as all who attended express themselves well pleased. —Dufur Dispatch.

The reappointment of W. H. H. Dufur as forest supervisor of the north half of the Cascade reserve has been held up in the department of the interior because of objections from Representative Moody who simultaneously recommended the appointment of M. P. Isenberg to the office. As Mr. Isenberg is not agreeable to Senators Mitchell and Simon and Representative Tongue, this office will be held up at a season of the year when there is urgent need of a man to look after the affairs.—Shaniko Leader.

Frank S. Harding, president of the Oregon Press Association, has issued a call for the annual meeting of that organization. The convention will be held at Newport, August 14-17. It was at Newport that the association was first formed. An excellent programme has been arranged, and there promises to be an average attendance.

A gentleman who has just come up from Collins says bathing at the springs will likely begin tomorrow as the water of the Columbia has receded so that the springs can be reached. A good many people have been camping at the springs for some time waiting to take advantage of the curative qualities of the water.—Mountaineer.

James Bowman of Lexington, Ky., who for several years has been a sufferer from rheumatism, has been cured by lightning shock. In a storm lightning struck the house where he was. When he recovered from the shock he found he could use his legs and began to walk about the room for the first time in several years.

Petroleum as fuel on the locomotives of the Columbia Southern railway was tried experimentally, last Sunday, with such satisfactory results that the orders have been given for the equipping of all engines on the road with oil burners henceforth.

A New York man offered a dime for the return of his runaway wife, and she was so mad at his valuation of her that she came back at once and vowed to stick to him "forever," and now the joke is on him.—Telegram.

The official vote for governor at the recent election shows the following result: Chamberlain, democrat, 41,857; Furnish, republican, 41,581; Hunsaker, prohibitionist, 3,583; Ryan, socialist, 3,771. This makes Chamberlain's plurality 276.

The Saint Martin hot springs have been assessed this year at $17,000. The only business in the county patronized by outsiders shouldn't complain at paying the county's expenses.

One of the attractions at the state fair this year will be the Missouri giantess, standing 8 feet 4 inches in her stocking feet. She is direct from Missouri and will have to be shown.

The timothy hay market apparently will not be quite as good as last year. Buyers are now offering $9 per ton while the price last year was $10 per ton. —Forest Grove Times.

The mercury registered 102° in the shade at Fred Bailey's residence, four miles southwest of town at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Walla Walla is so "dry" a town lately that not only all saloons but ice cream and soda stands are tightly closed on Sundays.

Hon. John Michell, who holds a government position in Washington, is spending his vacation at his home in The Dalles.

John Masters of Washington county claims to have raised six tons of timothy hay on one acre of ground this year.

Hugh C. Bellinger of Portland, son of Judge C. B. Bellinger, has been named as naval cadet from Oregon.

The Harney County News is published by Mrs. F. E. Wilmarth and edited by her husband, F. E. Wilmarth.

Henry Hudson, a civil war veteran, died suddenly of heart disease on his farm at Dufur, July 26.

It may be hot enough for you now, but you will forget all about it next winter.

The Dalles will have a street fair and carnival this fall.

Plans are about perfected for a condensed milk factory at Forest Grove.

Will Let Us Down Easy.

E. M. Shutt, the well-known Eastern Oregon newspaper man is sending out the following letters addressed to his fellow workers:

The Heppner Times has been sold to A. J. Hicks, of Camas, Wash., who will take charge of the business on August 7. By the action of the voters of Morrow county in electing me sheriff, I am obliged to lay down the pen and take up the sword, for a short time at least. The object of this message is to thank you for your uniform courtesy and fraternal kindness to me during my thirteen years' newspaper experience in Eastern Oregon, and to bid you adieu for the time being. Should it become necessary for me at any future time to hang you or any of your friends, the memory of happy associations in the past will surely prompt me to let you down easy. But while the scaffold has its mission here on earth, it would pain me to see any newspaper man called up higher through such a medium.

May your future efforts be crowned with the success and prosperity which your energy and worth truly merit. Until my present work is ended and I again join you in the newspaper world, I bid you a fond farewell. Fraternally yours, E. M. Shutt.

J L Henderson	1,000
M J Henderson	1,000
Chris Dethman	1,000

Leslie Butler	500
J H Koberg	500
Total	$13,000

The new townsite owners paid out $14,000 in buying the property. The new owners do not constitute a corporation or company. The title rests in the trustee, N. C. Evans, who has authority to sign all legal papers for those having money invested. Butler & Co. will act as treasurer for the organization and John Leland Henderson, secretary. The townsite property consists of 248 lots and fractions of lots.

Brilliant Electrical Display.

The campers at Lost lake during the heavey thunder storm of last Wednesday night enjoyed seeing a brilliant electrical display, seldom witnessed in this part of the country. The storm continued for two hours, and the frequent flashes of lightning were brilliant in the extreme. Mount Hood was free from clouds at the time, and with each lightning flash the sides of the snowy peak were lighted up with a bright amathest, while the lake in front of the camps appeared like a sheet of fire. It was a sight long to be remembered. The rain and hail soaked things about the camp, but a little discomforture like that didn't bother people who could appriate the beauty of the storm. Those of the party camped at the lake were: David Fleming, Rev. H. C. Shaffer, G. D. Woodworth, of Hood River; Walter Holt and L. A. Shaw of Portland, and a couple of young men from The Dalles.

H. C. Crockett's Goats.

It is a wonder that more farmers in Hood River valley who have land to clear do not follow the plan of H. C. Crockett of the East Side. Mr. Crockett has 35 Angora goats. He fences about ten acres at a time and turns in his goats. The goats eat the foliage of the under brush and in a short time make it look like a fire had killed the growth. On young firs too large for them to pull down they will clean the bark if the trees are cut down for them. After the second year, when the brush will sprout again, if the goats are turned in they will effectually kill it. Mr. Crockett sold his mohair this year for 24 cents a pound in Portland. The average clip is four pounds to the goat. The goats will leave the best of pasture grass to trim a sapling of its foliage.

In Portland, July 30, 1902, to Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Hornung, a son.

In Hood River, August 4, 1902 to Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Mathews, a son.

C. L. Gilbert, county school superintendent for Wasco county, has made his report for the year ending June 13, 1902, and finds the total number of persons of school age in the county to be 4939—2482 males and 2457 females; the total number of pupils enrolled was 3199—1605 males and 1594 females. There are 160 teachers employed in the county—40 males and 120 females. There are 71 school houses in the county, six having been built during the year just closed. The total receipts of the school fund amounted to $78,900.04; the disbursements, $66,918.17, leaving a balance of $12,982.25. The estimated value of school houses and grounds is $116,295, with $16, 306.55 additional for furniture. The average male teacher's salary is $47; females, $40.

The death by drowning of the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs L. A. Shaw, of this city, in Hood river, Saturday evening, is one of the distressing incidents of the summer outing. An accident against which, as far as can be judged from the report of the occurrence, prudence could not prevail, the distressed parents have the sympathy of the large number with whom the summer camping fever has become epidemic. It was one of those painful domestic tragedies for which no one was to blame.—Oregonian.

Georgia is the peach state of the Union, having 7,660,000 peach trees. Next is Maryland, with 4,015,000, then New Jersey, with 2,700,000, and Delaware, with 2,400,000. Ten years ago Georgia was at the bottom of the list composed of these four states. Alabama and Mississippi are also becoming peach states. The South and Pacific coast will be the fruit regions of the United States.
