

Hood River Glacier

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1902.

General G. E. Calkin, past commander of the B. A. R., department of Oregon, is mentioned for senior vice commander of the national department, to be elected at Washington City next month. It is a mistake to mention General Calkin for this office. He should be mentioned for national commander, and the delegation from Oregon should press his name for this office. There is no better material in the Grand Army for national commander than in the person of G. E. Calkin. He is looked up to more than any other man in the councils of the order in Oregon and will take his place as a leader in the national encampment. Oregon delegates should go for nothing less than capturing the commander from this department for next year. Palling in this, let them ask for the national encampment at Portland in 1903 and they'll get it.

It appears that Governor Geer has appointed Mr. Doseh to be commissioner from Oregon to the Japan exposition. It is not said whether Mr. Doseh will take with him the old exhibit that he has been hawking around the U. S. or not; but his expenses will reach about $5,000. Whether Oregon's big red apple will induce any more Japs to come here we cannot say, but we hope not. We have all the Japs we need. Will the legislature sanction this proceeding? We trust not.—Salem Journal.

W. J. Bryan interfered between two men who were fighting at a labor day picnic at Lincoln, Nebraska. A big man, crazed with liquor, was pummeling a small man. The big man drew a knife and revolver on Bryan, but the latter held him in his grasp and clung to his man till he had him overpowered. Mr. Bryan has not shaken hands for nothing all these years. He has a grip that is said to be all powerful.

A company has been incorporated at Binghamton, N. Y., to manufacture whisky and wine in a compressed form. By this process it is said a man can carry a good sized jag in his vest pocket. The company incorporates with a capital of $1,000,000, and drinks in tablet form will be on the market before Christmas. This invention will prove a great convenience to theatre-goers who find it necessary to go out between acts to "see a man."

Vermont failed to elect a governor at the recent election. The legislature will elect. The fight for governor was between the regular republican nominee and a bolting republican who ran upon a high license, local option platform. The balance of the republican ticket was elected by majorities ranging as high as 50,000.

A stock farm at Trembley, New Jersey, occupying 100 acres, has been abandoned because the mosquitoes so harassed the cattle that they ceased to give good milk, and many of them died. It is at Trembley that the largest brand of the insect is to be found.

Increased advertising patronage compels the Heppner Gazette to enlarge to an eight-page quarto, all home print. The Gazette is a neat, new sheet and Messrs. Warnock and Nichol, the publishers, are to be congratulated on their prosperity and enterprise.

The Lewis and Clark committee have finally decided the location for the expedition. The Gull's lake tract, at the foot of Willamette heights, is the unanimous choice of the committee. It includes an area of 270 acres, 155 of which are water and 115 land.

Mt. Hood Notes. Haying is about over in these parts for this year.

Forest fires are burning all over the valley at the present time, it being so dry that it is impossible to control a fire when it once gets started.

Joseph Dimmick stuck an axe in his foot last week and George Wenner wouldn't be outdone so he did likewise. Be careful, children when using a sharp axe.

We can hear the L. L. L. Co.'s donkey whistle every day now. They are doing a good business logging.

Jacob Wagonblast has been running his cooper twenty tons of hay per day. Hon. D. R. Cooper baled his second crop of 17 1/2 tons of clover, and David Wishart baled twenty tons, being his second crop. Several other neighbors intend baling some yet.

A. R. Thompson made a trip to Mt. Hood last week, looking after his sheep interests up here.

Since Ike and his friend have been brining the serpent's head, his snake-ship has moved south and made his appearance in the valley, where he also gets bruised on the head. There has been two killed here the past month, both being large rattlers. It is thought they would not have made their appearance here had not Ike and his friend in Duke's Valley formed a partnership for the purpose of braining him on the head—the serpent we mean. L.
