Hood River Glacier

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1902.

In the appointment of M. P. Isenberg of Hood River as supervisor of the eastern and northern division of the Cascade forest reserve, the president has pleased the Grand Army of the Republic. Mr. Isenberg served as a soldier throughout the civil war, and his appointment will meet with the hearty approval of the old soldiers, by whom he is well known throughout the state. Mr. Moody's persistence in standing by the nomination of Mr. Isenberg in face of the opposition of the balance of the delegation, shows he is a stayer, and that when he goes for anything he goes in to win. Mr. Isenberg is not without experience in forestry work. The appointment is a just recognition by his party for services rendered. Mr. Moody and Mr. Isenberg are to be congratulated upon the outcome of the dispute over the filling of this important office.

The Baker City Herald tells of salt brush as a crop for the Alkali plains. It says: "If some experiments now being conducted by H. W. Smith, a Utah farmer, are carried to a point that will demonstrate the correctness of his theory, the state of Oregon will have cause to rise and call his name blessed. Not long ago Mr. Smith sent and secured some seeds of a plant which is popularly known as the Australian saltbrush. He has produced a small crop which he finds that his cattle eat with apparent relish and which seems to produce an abundance of nutriment. The best of it is that the brush grows on what has always been considered worthless alkali land, unfit for any purpose whatever. The salt-brush not only grows on this character of land and makes fodder, but it draws the salt from the soil, it is asserted, and makes other crops possible thereon."

It is said typhoid fever is particularly prevalent and malignant after a protracted drouth. If this be true the present waning summer conveys a menace that should be forestalled, if possible, by prompt and intelligently applied precautions on the part of the local health authorities and the general public. The householder should insist on the most scrupulous cleanliness about the place.

The Choctaw Indians of Mississippi who remained behind when the rest of the tribe moved to Indian Territory, seventy-two years ago, after the treaty of Dancing Rabbit Creek, have finally decided to take advantage of the offer made them of allotments in the Indian Territory, and will move there this fall, each getting 320 acres of land. The Indians number 2,203.

In Washington county farmers are hauling straw upon the roads with the very best results so far. The straw loosely spread upon the roads prevents deep dust from rising, and the roads do not wear into ruts. Straw roads would be costly in Hood River, where straw is worth $6 a ton.

Some one who has given attention to the improvement of the persimmon has succeeded in producing a variety named Gold Drop that is said to be early, extremely hardy, large and of good shape, fine yellow color, flesh melting and with very little pucker in it.

Wishing to verify the time-honored assertion that there's always room at the top, the junior editor of the Newberg Graphic has been to the top of Mount Hood.

Crapper Croppings.

A. T. and W. C. Dodge are busy building on their homesteads and are preparing to move on them the latter part of this month.

Charles Chandler just finished harvesting his crop of Gravenstein apples, which fell somewhat short of what he expected; but what he had were of good quality and sold readily at a fair price.

H. C. Hengst will commence harvesting his crop of King apples this week. He expects a good yield and a good price, as there are no finer King apples grown in the valley than he has in his orchards; in fact all the fruit grown on Mr. Hengst's farm is hard to beat. He takes the very best of care of his orchard and takes pride in keeping his farm neat and up-to-date. It will pay beginners in the fruit business to take a look over Mr. Hengst's farm and get advice from him in regard to fruit raising.

Fred Chandler and Charles Stranahan took a trip to Green Point on a fishing expedition last Saturday. They made a good catch for the time they were there.

Mrs. Grace Mosier and Miss Ellen Dodge went to the Willamette valley to pick hops two weeks ago. They write home that the hop crop is extra good this year and pickers are making good wages The growers are jubilant and easy to please on account of the high price they expect to get for their hops this year.

A. T. Dodge learns through the Oregonian that the little settlement at Dodge postoffice, which he established in 1894 and which has his name, has been completely wiped from the face of the earth by the forest fires raging there. Every one in the settlement lost everything they owned but their land.

Joe Hengst had a roaring fire down in the river bottom last Monday. He was burning the slashing on the Jones place. There were 45 acres in the slashing, and it made such a smoke that several of the neighbors came running down to the bluff, thinking that the whole earth was on fire; but Joe kept the fire under control so no one was damaged in the least. MR. IKEY.

Duke's Valley Items.

The diggers and the rattlers are returning to their winter quarters and the coyotes are on their regular run.

We are having some pretty smoky weather and need a rain to stop the fire.

A. J. Kessell is building on his homestead west of the valley.

William and Dennis Dodson are hauling wood to Hood River.

Harry Dodson returned from Stevenson where he has been at work in the logging camp. The fires had run them out of the woods.

Mr. Dodge is building on his claim.

Mrs. Carneyhan has gone to visit her daughter in Washington.

Quite a painful accident happened to Mrs. William Dodson last week. While she was trying to separate the cow and calf, the cow kicked her in the face and on the nose. She has black eyes as a result.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. McIntosh and Mr. and Mrs. F. Fouts were visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Cameron last Sunday.

I see Mr. L. of Mount Hood thinks my partner and I have run the rattlers out of Duke's Valley. Now it may be some have moved south, but we can spare more yet. I think the editor will agree with me, for he visited us and saw what Duke's Valley and Willow Flat can produce in the way of serpents. Now, Mr. L., if you have no diggers or coyotes we will divide with you again, for we are not a selfish people. I. K. E.

Belmont News.

Miss Idell Woodworth returned home from a three weeks' visit in Southern Oregon with friends and schoolmates.

The Belmont Epworth League held a social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Church on Wednesday evening. A good program was rendered, one of the leading features being a solo by Walter Isenberg, accompanied by Miss Ethel Church on the piano and W. A. Isenberg on the cornet.

Rev. David Dodge preached in the Belmont church last Sunday to a large and very appreciative audience.
