Council Proceedings.
Council met in regular session Monday evening. Mayor Brosius, Blowers, Clarke, H. F. Davidson, P. S. Davidson, McDonald and Rand, Recorder Nickelsen and Marshal Dukes.
A petition was presented asking for a reduction of the license fee for saloons. The present rates were much in excess of those charged by other towns of like size and were prohibitive in their effect. On motion of Councilman Clarke, the matter was referred to the committee on judiciary.
A petition was presented by J. S. Booth, asking for permission to erect bill boards. On motion of P. S. Davidson, the petition was referred to the committee on streets and public property, with instructions to investigate and report at next meeting as to where bill boards could be erected without inconvenience to the public.
Petition from property owners, asking for improvement of Oak street between Fourth and Park streets, was, on motion of Councilman Blowers, referred to committee on streets to ascertain the nature of improvements desired and report at next meeting.
Councilman McDonald, as chairman of committee on streets and public property, reported in regard to the plans for a new city jail, recommending a building 25x35 feet, with modern appointments. On motion of Councilman P. S. Davidson, the report was accepted.
The following bill was moving: J. W. Rigby, two days' work allowing jail, $4.
A communication from N. H. Wacker, read, stating that ordinance 52 had not been enrolled and recorded, and asking for information as to said ordinance. On motion of H. F. Davidson, the recorder was instructed to enroll such ordinance.
Councilman H. F. Davidson moved that the judiciary committee be requested to draft and report an ordinance at the next meeting providing for the printing of all ordinances in future.

The Story of the Fortune.
The Iowa State Reporter.
John W. Gates' story of how the steel trust was organized, with incidental references to his own remarkable career in the financial world, is told in The World Today. It was Gates who suggested to Mr. Morgan, when the Carnegie works were causing him a great deal of trouble, by threatening to build a large steel tube plant to compete with his National Tube company, that they unite and buy out the Carnegie interests and combine all the steel mills in one gigantic corporation. Mr. Morgan considered this proposition, and at his suggestion Mr. Schwab was called to a conference with Gates and himself, in which a plan was devised which Mr. Carnegie might consent to. Such was the inception of the first billion dollar combination in the world.
Mr. Gates, who conceived this plan, began his business career selling barb wire at a salary of $100 a month. To show his wire to advantage, he built the first corral in the state of Texas for the rangers. Barb wire was a new thing, and he soon decided that there was more money in making it than in acting as agent to introduce it. He accordingly formed a partnership with Arthur Clifford, and with a capital stock of $8,000 they set three machines going in St. Louis. "We declared dividends," Mr. Gates says, "of about 50 per cent per week. I would travel and sell the wire, come back, invoice it, bill it, paint it, market it and collect the money. I traveled for about two years. Our profit for the first year was $150,000."
The Southern Iron company was organized in 1882 with $50,000 capital, of which Mr. Gates owned nearly all. In 1884 a $250,000 mill was built in Pittsburg. One purchase of steel billets in England, owing to a sudden rise, netted Mr. Gates and his partners between $250,000 and $500,000. Aside from the profits on the manufacture from 1884 to 1887 were 500 per cent. Then came a bitter litigation with the Washburn-Mason company over patents, which cost Mr. Gates $1,000,000. But he finally bought his rivals out, and from that time began absorbing all the barb wire plants in the United States. In 1892 he organized the Consolidated Steel and Wire company, with a capital of $4,000,000. In 1895 the Federated Steel company, with a capital of $80,000,000. From that to the present the steel trust was but the logical step. At the average reader notes the jump in Mr. Gates' financial career, and estimates the profits there must have been in the steel business during the past twenty years, he will be inclined to believe that the American standard of wages could have been maintained in the steel mills, and the prices of steel reduced to meet foreign competition, without interfering with a reasonable profit on the capital invested. And as he dwells upon the fortuitous fact that the present trust was organized for the express purpose of getting rid of threatened competition, he will feel more kindly toward any sensible proposal for making steel a commodity to trade off in securing reasonable concessions from other countries.

Odell Notes.
School opened Monday with an enrollment of 53. The new teacher, Mr. Brown, taught four years at Dufur and comes with excellent recommendations. No doubt a successful school year will be the result of his labors.
The recent sale of Mr. Slingerland's ranch is simply a pointer as to what will take place on the East side in the near future.
There was a family gathering at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Joehimsen, last Sunday, at which 15 were present. A chicken dinner was served at 1 o'clock, ice cream at 2:30, after which old and young joined in playing games, and a good time was had.
Roscoe Miller is erecting a neat cottage on his 40-acre tract.
I wonder if the road master has been over the road in the vicinity of Tucker's bridge lately? Two things are essential in the upbuilding of every community—good schools and good roads. The former we have and the latter we could have with a little work. Time is money in this swift age, and Hood River is entirely too conspicuous and prosperous to be disgraced by such vile roads.
The opening day at the Little White Store last week was quite a success. Eight gallons of ice cream was served, and the neighbors really got acquainted with each other.

Ordinance 52—Why it was Not Enrolled.
Hood River, Oregon, September 6, 1902.—Editor Glacier: In answer to the kink of the secretary of the Hood River Electric Light, Power and Water Co., will explain how it happened that ordinance No. 52 was not enrolled. About 10th of August, 1902, I was ordered by the mayor to have all ordinances passed by the common council enrolled, as the new city charter provides. There were then on file in my office some 28 ordinances that had not been enrolled. I therefore took all the ordinances in my custody and gave them to a second party to copy in a book for that purpose, saying they would find a few ordinances missing, as some had been vetoed or tabled. The completion of the enrollment of said ordinances was made September 6, but for lack of time my attest was only attached to a few of the said ordinances passed, which had not already been approved in the original. The book was then given to the mayor, who approved the last two ordinances, passed September 1, and returned said enrolled copies for me to complete my attest, etc. All the original ordinance passed prior to September 1 having been duly approved or vetoed by the mayor, and as I thought were in my possession. Now, it turned out that ordinance No. 52 was not with those turned over for enrollment. Why? All ordinances passed are supposed to be printed, but the printing of private ordinances, like No. 52, must be paid for by the party in whose favor the ordinance is passed. Therefore I gave No. 52 after it had been duly approved to the editor of the Glacier to have it printed. Now it appears that the secretary of said Electric Light Co., when he found out that said company would have to pay for having said ordinance printed, told the editor of the Glacier not to print it; and this ordinance has been in the Glacier office since its approval, has remained there waiting to be printed, and is yet in said office. I'll admit I forgot about that ordinance not being printed or not being in my possession. If I had known it was yet in the Glacier office I would most assuredly have had it enrolled with the others, which can still be done and be as valid as the rest of the ordinances. But why should the secretary of the Electric Light Co. come to my office some days ago and ask to see the ordinance book, which he examined in company with his attorney? The kink registered at the last council meeting shows why. No mention was made to me at any time about ordinance No. 52 or any other ordinance by said party, but said secretary proceeded to write two sheets of typewritten matter to be presented to the council, trying to shove and saying that I "intentionally or otherwise" failed to have ordinance 52 enrolled. It is very apparent that this matter was brought up in the manner it was to cause a change in favor of the Electric Light Co. and to try to make the public believe that the Springwater Co. was using me, or that I was trying to favor said company, or in other words, accusing me of malfeasance in office. If the parties interested gain anything by their action they are welcome to it. I write this explanation in justice to myself, and respectfully ask that it be published. J. R. NICKELSEN, City Recorder.

Deep Wells in South Dakota.
According to a recent list of well borings in South Dakota over 400 feet deep, published in No. 61 of the Water Supply and Irrigation Papers of the United States Geological Survey, out of about 350 borings 65 are over 1,000 feet deep and two reach a depth of 2,500 feet, or nearly half a mile. The majority of these wells have strong artesian flows, with sufficient head to raise the water in open pipes from 100 to 500 feet above the surface. This great pressure is used to furnish power for a variety of purposes. At Aberdeen the sewage is pumped away by power derived from an artesian well; and elsewhere in the state electricity is generated for light and power purposes. The power from the wells can be easily controlled, and greatly adds to their value; its use does not interfere with subsequent use of the water for other purposes.
In Pennsylvania the average farm is 88.4 acres, and its average value $4,000, which is less than $50 an acre. Both in size and price Pennsylvania farms cannot be said to be anywhere up to the western standard.

The Toledo Blade.
Before the close of 1902 the Toledo Blade will be installed in its new building, with a new plant and equipment with facilities equal to any publication between New York city and Chicago. It is the only weekly newspaper edited expressly for every state and territory. The news of the world so arranged that busy people can more easily comprehend than by reading cumbersome columns of dailies. All current topics made plain in each issue by special editorial matter, written from inception down to date. The only paper published especially for people who do or do not read daily newspapers and yet thirst for plain facts. That this kind of a newspaper is popular is proven by the fact that the Weekly Blade now has over 178,000 yearly subscribers and is circulated in all parts of the United States. In addition to the news, the Blade publishes short and serial stories and many departments of matter suited to every member of the family. Only one dollar a year. Write for free specimen copy. Address The Blade, Toledo, Ohio.

"Sun Time" Is Not Accurate.
American Methodist Magazine would care to say that it keeps time with the sun. If it did this, it would be wrong just 361 days out of the year. That is to say, there are only four days in the year when the sun crosses the meridian exactly at 12 o'clock—April 15, June 14, September 1 and December 24. On all other days he varies from a fraction of a second to nearly sixteen minutes on both sides of the dot of noon.

Where Swearin' Is Essential.
Dooley in Sunday Oregonian.
"I don't believe in profanity, Hinnissy—not as a regular thing. But it has its uses as a regular thing. For instance, it is essential to some trades. No man can be a printer without swearin'. 'Tis impossible. I mind want I want to print' office where a friend iv mine be th' name iv Donovan held cases, an' I heard th' foreman say: 'What gentleman is settin' A thirty?' 'I am,' says a pale gentleman, with black whiskers who was at th' tobacco in th' rear iv th' room. 'Thi' says th' foreman, 'ye blankety-blank blacksmith, get a move on ye. D'ye think thi' is a anyoan incyclopedia?' he says. 'Irvybody swore at ivrvbody else at th' time boys ruin' around with type pratted innocent profanity, an' after awhile th' iditor come in an' he swore more than anybody else. But 'twas said to see he'd not larned th' thrade iv printin' an' he swore with th' ennyman an' inced they iv an ampoacher, though I mind say he had his good pints. I wish I cud rymember what it was he called th' Car iv Rooshya fr'dyin' jus' as th' paper was goin' to press. I cudn't find it since. But 't's slipped me mind."

Whitewash Spraying.
Professor J. Green of Ohio states that he has successfully destroyed the eye-to-seedling marks by spraying twice in succession with lime water made as thick as will work in the sprayer. The work is done in the fall after the dropping of the leaves. The oyster shell, tawny and wooly spores of aphids are becoming a ruin around with type pratted innocent profanity, an' after awhile th' iditor come in an' he swore more than anybody else. But 'twas said to see he'd not larned th' thrade iv printin' an' he swore with th' ennyman an' inced they iv an ampoacher, though I mind say he had his good pints. I wish I cud rymember what it was he called th' Car iv Rooshya fr'dyin' jus' as th' paper was goin' to press. I cudn't find it since. But 't's slipped me mind."
