

Wood River Glacier

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1902.

NOTICE.

C. A. Hickie will have the business management of the Glacier during his absence from the city. S. F. Blythe.

THE FAIR.

The Hood River fair will open next Wednesday and continue four days. The different committees have been at work for the past two weeks or more, and everything seems to be working towards the most successful fair ever held in Hood River. The large pavilion is in readiness to receive exhibits. The premium list is printed in this issue of the glacier, and the premiums are well worth competing for. Every fruit grower should place an exhibition his choicest samples of fruit. Big pumpkins, squashes, potatoes and other vegetables, and grains and grasses, will be in evidence, showing what can be done in Hood River valley besides growing choice fruit. Many visitors from abroad will attend the fair, and if the hotels are filled to overflowing, private houses should be ready to accommodate the overflow. Apple buyers will be here, and apple growers should be prepared with samples to take orders for the sale of their fruit. Exhibitors who will have apples to sell this fall will find the fair a great help, and a good display of their fruit will be the best means of selling it.

"All is fair in love and war," was the motto of a trio from Clackamas county last week and it brought them grief. This was not "war" but "love." A young man eloped with a girl of just "sweet sixteen." They left Oregon City in the evening and proceeded to Woodstock where they staid overnight with a friend. Next morning the girl was left there and the young man and his friend went to the county clerk's office in Portland and applied for the necessary license. The girl's mother, a widow, had warned the officials in the meantime and they were prepared for the call. Both these young men readily took the required oath that the girl was a resident of Multnomah county and over eighteen years of age. The deputy sheriff, who was standing by, promptly arrested both of them and took them to the county jail. As the mother had requested the return of her daughter, the authorities sent out to Woodstock and had the girl brought in. The sheriff was kind enough to take her to his home rather than place her in the jail, till the Oregon City officer arrived to escort her home. The young men were in a more serious predicament, for both of them had willfully committed perjury and thus laid themselves liable to severe punishment. They did not get what they so richly deserved for, as the girl's mother did not care to prosecute the case further than to recover her daughter, the officials considered they were justified in releasing them without prosecution. It seems that such a flagrant case of perjury ought not to have been allowed to go unpunished. The statement that these young men are not the only ones who practice it, is not a sufficient excuse. They certainly have made a reputation for themselves in regard to their honor and veracity, even when under oath, that is not enviable and one which it will take time for them to overcome, should they have manhood enough about them to try. It is hoped that they have learned a lesson that will make better citizens of them.

Hood River Teacher's Association. The Hood River Teacher's Association met in the Hood River school Saturday, September 27, and effected their yearly organization. Principal C. D. Thompson presided over the business part of the programme. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Principal L. E. Bridges; vice president, Principal C. D. Thompson; secretary, Principal D. G. Gunnell; organist, Miss Brown; programme committee, Miss Shungel, and Messrs. Arneson and Gunnell. No teacher being able to furnish sufficient bonds to hold the office of treasurer, it was decided to make the office, after Sept. 30, a liability that the office may incur an "honorary" appendage to that of secretary. It is hoped that our superintendent has not made the mistake of his life.

The most interesting feature of the business session was a plan presented by Superintendent Gilbert and heartily endorsed by the association, the object of which is to stimulate a keen interest in school attendance and punctuality. The plan is outlined as follows: The teachers of the association are to furnish a beautiful banner, at the close of the school month ending October 24, the district having the highest per cent of attendance and punctuality will be awarded the banner, to be retained by that district until the close of the first month's competition. At the close of the school month ending October 24, the district having the highest per cent of attendance will be awarded the banner, to be retained by that district until the close of the first month's competition. These records will be compared this week, the banner awarded, and the facts published in the next issue of the glacier. The following schools represent the district of competition: Mt. Hood, Klondike, Odell, Rose Hill, Pine Grove, Crapper, Barrett, Frankton, Hood River, Viento, and Cascade Locks. The honor of capturing the banner and every child in the forthright competition. At the real home something to stir the pride, and to reward the efforts of those who receive it. This valley competition, together with the beautiful certificates of attendance which Superintendent Gilbert had lithographed in Chicago, and which will be issued by probably all the school districts to the individual students having perfect records, should stimulate the keenest activity in school attendance.

Business being disposed of, the new president presided over the educational part of the programme. This consisted of a study in White's Art of Teaching, which has been adopted by the association as the basis of its year's work. There was marked interest manifested in the plan of the year's work, and if the whole can be judged by the part, the winter's work of the association will be one of profit and delight. There is nothing so helpful to teachers as mutual and earnest consideration of problem and method, and the teachers of Hood River valley are alive to this fact. They wish to also understand that the association is not exclusive for teachers. Every parent who has the welfare of his child at heart, and who wishes to come into close sympathy and conference with his instructors; and any one who has been, or intends to be, a teacher, and who can aid, either by suggestion or presence, to the interest of the meetings, are especially invited to meet with the association.

The meeting adjourned to meet as the guests of Principal L. E. Bridges and assistants at the Barrett school, Saturday, October 18, at 2 p. m.

A Grand Calling Seattle Coast. Chosen and examined as you are, the duties which devolve upon you, dear school teacher, are almost beyond comprehension. The darlings of many homes, the pride of many households with their impressionable clay which will form ever and bear, deeds, are your emotions, your steadfastness of purpose, your interest in learning, your devotion to study—you yourself become them and you live in them after you have gone away. Your calling is grand. Your occupation is exalted. Your scholars will be what you are. They know what you are by what you do. Be courageous. Do your best. Do not get discouraged. It may be tedious, tiresome and dull, but the fruits in life are ever and ever yours. Let your joy; will glorify your soul's delight and magnify your spirit's eternal happiness more than mind can now know. You are in a position of great trust. Try not to betray it. You will not betray it if you try.

Modern Methods for Picking Chickens. Springfield, Ill.—Those who have never been in one of the branch dressing houses of a large poultry handler having state sanitary inspectors, and who are unaware of the systematic plans in force. The modern methods of chicken picking are interesting. A runway leads from the picking rooms to the coop, and the fowls are caught by means of a hook on a long stick. A sharp knife stuck into its mouth reaches the brain, causing instant death. The effect of penetrating the brain causes the feathers to relax, and they are easily picked off. A few are caught, stuck, hung up by the feet and picked before the flesh gets cold, the picker seeing to get all the feathers in a half dozen handfulls.

The men are paid by the head, and the experts make good wages at the business. An average day's work is about 125 chickens, but the swiftest man picks an average of 170 chickens daily. This man can pick a chicken in 15 seconds dry or in 12 seconds scalded. The second best man can pick a chicken in 17 seconds dry and 15 seconds scalded. The feathers of the fowls are all sold, those soiled by blood and water going to the farm for fertilizer and the better feathers, the white feathers, are mixed with duck feathers for pillows, etc., and the colored feathers are melted up and used in the manufacture of featherbone whips. The dressed poultry is shipped to the large markets. About 1500 bushels of dressed fowls are packed per week during the heavy run.
