

FAIR NEXT WEEK.

Promises to be the Best Ever Held in Hood River.

As there will not be a subsequent issue of the Glacier before our approaching Horticultural Fair, we desire to say a few words in its behalf. So far as we can learn our fruit growers will be out in force on that occasion. Indeed, every one to whom we have spoken has promised an exhibit.

Not only apples and other fruits should be in evidence, but vegetables, grains, grasses and other products as well; so that our visitors from abroad may form a fair estimate of the resources and capabilities of our valley. If you have something a little better than usual, no matter what, in the fruit or vegetable line, or some natural curiosity that will prove interesting to instructive, bring it along. So many times individuals have gone away from public exhibitions saying, "I have better apples (or other commodity) at home than was on exhibition, I wish I had brought some of mine." Now is the time to choke off such lamentations. If you have anything of special merit bring it to the fair. Our apple growers, especially, should not forget that a few boxes of ripe apples under the tables to be given to visitors will be a winning card. "The proof of the pudding is in the eating." A nice, ripe juicy apple will appeal more forcibly through a visitor's palate, than whole boxes through the medium of his vision. Be sure, therefore, to bring along a box or two to advertise with in this manner. There is plenty of room for all, but let us fill the pavilion so full that it will indicate the necessity for larger quarters at our next fair.

The ladies, of course, will bring potted plants and cut flowers to beautify the pavilion.

The president and secretary are receiving numerous acceptances of invitations to be present, from some of the most distinguished citizens of our state, among the number, Governor-elect Chamberlain, Colonel Crooks and General Passenger Agent Craig of the O. R. & N. Co., Secretary of State Dunbar, and a host of others. Let us put in the pavilion such a display of Hood River's products as will startle our distinguished visitors and make as justly proud of our beautiful, fruitful valley.

Apples and Prices in the East.

Kansas City Packer.

New York, September 20.—Apple prices for American fruit have kept up remarkably well so far this season and nearly everybody who went in for exporting early apples made money. Buyers began to appear in the Hudson River districts several weeks earlier than is customary, and consequently the export season opened much earlier.

It was first thought among both the trader and the shippers that the season would start out with high prices and that these figures would continue up until fall, or until the Western fruit began to come East. But the buyers are cautious and within the past three weeks have shown a tendency to get out. Prices in the orchards are lower and many of the shippers have talked at selling and are consigning their fruit instead.

Wayne M. French, Simon, Shuttleworth & Co's of the market, a few days up the river. He says that in Columbia and Dutchess counties buyers for exporters are offering $1.25 to $1.50 for Greenings and Baldwins and where the seller cannot get $1.50 he consigns his fruit.

Last week in London, Kings brought $4.50 to $5, York Pippins sold for $3.25 to $3.75, Genittins went at $4.25 to $4.75. Deduct from these prices about $1 per barrel for freight, duty, etc., and the figures look up in fine shape for the shippers. The market is excellent at this writing for fine fruit, but is weak on all else and the latest cables state that much fruit is arriving in bad condition.

Referring to the conditions and prospects for the season Mr. Meeker said to the Packer man:

"This season should be a banner one for the shippers of the Hudson river valley. Everything seems to be coming their way. Our London advisers tell us to get all the river fruit we can, as they have reliable information that the Canadian crop will show up very badly, on account of scab and fungus. It is known that the crop in Virginia is a dead failure, and especially in the Albemarle pippin section. Therefore the upriver Newtowns will have it all their own way. The Nova Scotia crop is known to be almost nothing in comparison with other seasons, as the Annapolis valley will pan out hardly 15 per cent of a crop, and not a bit of it will be good quality. The Middle West reports apples as dropping and the California and Oregon supplies will not interfere much with the Eastern growers, as a different class of trade buys this output.

"There is one mistake these shippers make," he continued, "and that is, they are in too big a hurry to get their fruit on the market and to accomplish this they are in a hurry to pick their fruit before it is properly matured. Last week several shipments of Baldwins went over that had practically no color and it would have been a little hard to tell whether they were Greenings or Baldwins, they were so green. Fruit like this will not bring its full price and creates dissatisfaction on the other side. We would suggest that farmers let their fruit mature well before picking."

The following are the exports of apples from New York for the week ending September 18: To Liverpool, 28,895 bbls.; London, 2,764 bbls.; Glasgow, 13,424 bbls.; Total for the week, 45,085 bbls. against 3,408 bbls for the same period a year ago. To date this season there have been 116,707 bbls of apples sent abroad compared with 4,968 bbls up to this time a year ago.

Edward Williams of Albion sold his crop of apples in Murray to D. S. Bethwick of the Albion Cold Storage Co. for $1,800, the crop being estimated at about 1,200 bbls. Mr. Williams picks and draws the fruit and the purchaser does the packing.

The apple crop is fine in western New York. The fruit is holding on well, and little or no damage was done by the recent storms. The prices are very satisfactory. Many of the growers have sold their entire orchards at from $2 to $2.25 per acre, which is considered a high figure.

Albert Wood of Carlton Station, has sold his orchard for $7,000 and "pick it down." That means pick the fruit and put it in heaps. The orchard contains 23 acres.

Chicago, September 23.—Several parties from the street went to York State to buy apples but found the crop so badly affected with fungus they would not touch anything. The trade asserts that fungus is also prevalent in Michigan. The fungus does not hurt the apples for eating but does impair the keeping qualities. In Illinois the blight has not developed. It looks to the trade as though there would be a chance to buy cheap apples. It is learned here that number one apples are being bought in York State at from $2 to $2.50.

A Veteran Promoter.

D. H. Stearns, the wide-awake real estate man and general promoter of Portland, was a visitor in Hood River last Thursday. Mr. Stearns is a delegate, appointed by the governor, to the irrigation congress at Colorado Springs, convening next week. His mission to Hood River was to procure specimens of apples and views of orchards to take with him to the convention. He succeeded in getting all the apples he wanted and was loud in his praise of Hood River fruit. Mr. Stearns is a practical fruit man and knows good fruit and fruit trees when he sees them. He secured the services of L. Bradley, photographer, and succeeded in getting some good views of apple orchards in the valley. Several years ago, Mr. Stearns was in Omaha selling Oregon lands. He got acquainted with several ladies of the Women's Christian association of Omaha and found that the organization was in debt several hundred dollars. No one but Stearns could have seen anything in this to help him sell land in Oregon; but Stearns saw his chance. He immediately set to work to carry out a scheme that not only benefited the W. C. A., but it advertised Oregon, and especially Hood River. He informed the ladies that if they would give straw berry festivals for five nights, he would hire the hall, procure the berries and pay for the advertising. He then wired the Hood River Fruit Growers' Union for a number of crates of berries to be shipped each day for five days. The Oregon strawberry festival was thoroughly advertised. The ladies sold all the berries and paid off their debt, and in less than one month after the festival Stearns sold $60,000 worth of Oregon land.

Hood River Fair.
Portland Journal.

Hood River is to have a fruit fair, beginning October 8, and lasting four days. It will be one of the best ever held in the state, probably the best purely local affair. Those interested in fruit growing, and those interested in the growth and development of the state, will do well to attend it, for they will get an object lesson that will astonish them.

It is only a few years since Hood River began to be heard of as a fruit growing region, and in 1889 the first crate of strawberries was shipped from there. This industry has grown until this year above 65,000 crates were shipped, bringing in about $120,000. And this crop was grown on about 450 acres. This year's settings will largely increase the yield next year. It is expected that with an average crop it will reach 80,000 crates and perhaps approach the 100,000 mark.

Other fruits have received as much attention as strawberries and especially is this true of apples. Hood River apples are already famous, but they will be more celebrated as time passes. It requires from 6 to 8 years for orchard trees to get into good bearing, and there are thousands of young trees in the valley just beginning to yield.

All varieties of fruits belonging to the temperate zone are grown, but the apple is the chief product. We believe no better apples, taking the entire crop, are grown anywhere else in the world, and a visit to the Hood River fruit fair will leave one of the same opinion.

It is not even thought of attempting to describe the Hood River fruit. To appreciate it, it must be seen. At the same time, we advise those visiting the fair, to also take a drive out through the roads and see the orchards. The roads are splendid, the scenery grand, the air good enough to eat, the valley itself a delight to the eye, and the whole a combination never to be forgotten.

Announcements.
