THURSDAY, JUNE 18, 1903.

Drunken Indian Shot Dead.

A couple of Indians made things lively Thursday night on the road between Lamar's store and J. H. Elmer's place, and Friday morning one of the red skins was found dead in front of the blacksmith shop with two bullet holes in his breast. A coroner's jury found death to have resulted from gunshot wounds inflicted by an unknown person. The evidence introduced went to show that the shooting was a case of justifiable homicide. A white man did the deed but no one knows who.

Thursday night two Indians, a father and son, called at Lamar's store and asked to buy cider, but "Peck" Ellison, the clerk, refused to sell them any, whereupon the Indians became abusive and Peck started to put the offenders out of doors. A scuffle ensued and Peck was on the bottom with two drunken Indians on top. Mr. Lamar pulled off the brutes, but not before they had torn Peck's sweater to shreds. One of the store windows was also broken. The Indians then started up the road and in front of the K. of P. cemetery they met Cop Henrich. They asked him for a match and as he put his hand into his pocket both Indians grappled with him. Cop had a pair of wire pliers in his pocket with which he promptly knocked the older Indian down. The marks of the pliers were plainly visible on the forehead of the dead man the next morning. Cop finally escaped.

The Indians continued their work until the wrong man was struck. It was 10 o'clock at night when three rapid shots were heard, two of which took effect in the breast of the old man and the third wounded the younger Indian in the side and forearm.

Night Watchman Allen was notified of the matter early Friday morning. He immediately notified Coroner Burget, who came down from The Dalles and impounded the following jury: Sen Fouts, and Winster, Frank Borton, Ernest Hemman, Hans Jochimsen, Bert Stranahan. The verdict was in accordance with the above account. Indian friends of the dead man took charge of the remains and shipped the body to the John Day country, where, when alive, "Big Billy," as he was known, was considered a bad Indian. He was about 60 years old, and his son John Dooley, is about 24.

Lively Runaway on Oak Street.

A runaway on Oak street Friday afternoon brought out more people in 60 seconds than a fire. The team was a pair of blacks from the Fashion livery stable. A bridle fell from one of the horses as the team left the stable and they started up street at a lightning speed. Jim Stranahan was holding the reins, but he quickly concluded the ground was a safer place than the seat behind the fiery steeds. Half a dozen people jumped to stop the horses and some one hurled a chair at them as they passed Barnes' porch. At Dallas' corner Fred Ingalls' team took fright and another runaway was narrowly averted. Fred held on to the lines while the horses and wagon executed a Maypole dance around the oak tree in the middle of the street with Col. Hartley fanning the animals with his hat. In the meantime the runaway team broke loose from the buggy in front of Hartley's house and the horses were caught half a block further on. The only damage was some ripped harness and two broken singletrees.

Transfer at the Locks.

On account of the high water in the Columbia river, the Cascade locks are closed for a few days, necessitating a transfer to the patrons of the steamer line, but instead of the former transferring around the old portage road over sand and rocks, the Regulator line has chartered a special train to run over the O. R. & N. track between Bonneville and Cascade Locks. The train is stationed at these points and on the arrival of steamer, passengers and freight are transferred to the train and promptly dispatched to the up and down boat as the case may be. The residents along the river and tributary country can congratulate themselves upon having a steamer line anxious to adopt methods to overcome such difficulties rather than revert to the wagon and old time oxen practice.

School Elections.

A very small attendance was had at the election held in the town school district Monday. Those present, however, took a deep interest in school matters, and the questions that are being agitated in regard to our school were thoroughly discussed. The question of a nine months school was left with the board of directors, as was also the 9th and 10th grades. Dr. L. H. Dumble was elected director for a term of three years to succeed C. A. Bell. L. N. Blowers declined a nomination as director and Dr. Dumble was elected by acclamation. C. E. Hemman declined the nomination for re-election as district clerk. F. B. Barnes was elected clerk by acclamation.

Following is the report of the district clerk for the past year:

Number of persons between four and twenty years of age residing in the district at the time of this report, 533; number of pupils between four and twenty years of age on register, 300; number of school age not attending any school, 86; average daily attendance, 298; number of teachers employed, 6; number of months taught during the year, 8; number of books in library, 545.

Teachers Meet in Portland June 24-29.

The western division of the State Teachers association will be held at Portland, June 24 to 29, 1903. The programme for the meeting is one of the best ever prepared by the management of the association, and the indications are that this meeting will far surpass anything ever attempted in educational meetings in Oregon.

The best talent the state affords has been secured to take part in the programme which deals with many subjects of vital importance to the schools and educational interests of the state. Henry D. Pettengill of Lansing, Mich., one of the foremost educators of the United States, has been invited to be a guest of the association and will appear on the programme, and discuss a number of important educational topics.

Railway companies have made an excursion rate to Portland for this occasion and a very large number of teachers will no doubt be present to enjoy and profit by the meeting.

It is expected that a number of Hood River school teachers will attend these meetings. Some will also attend the summer normals in Portland, to be conducted by the Holmes business college and in the Y. M. C. A. building. The latter school will be in charge of Superintendent J. S. Landers of The Dalles; Dr. A. Grout, principal of the Harrison street school, Portland, and J. S. Robinson, superintendent of Multnomah county.

HOOD RIVER AIDS HEPNER

Hood River has raised $303 for Heppner sufferers. Of this amount $250 was raised in a few hours Tuesday morning and taken to Heppner that noon by Elmer Rand and Dr. J. F. Watt, who went up to lend what assistance they could. Several other Hood River people left on the same train, among them Ed. Williams, Ralph Savage and Frank Chandler.

Major J. S. Booth, who solicited the funds under appointment by Mayor T. R. Coon, met with generous responses from nearly every one.

S. E. Bartness returned Wednesday morning from Heppner. Mr. Bartness left Hood River Monday noon on board the special relief train from Portland. He took with him 9 coffins, and at The Dalles he was joined by Undertaker Burget, who took 10 coffins. They reached Heppner 1 o'clock Monday night and had no chance to rest or sleep until late Tuesday night. Mr. Bartness says before he got to Heppner there seemed to be no system for taking care of the dead. There was undue haste in burying the dead, and in some instances no attempt was made to identify the bodies. The people were so panic stricken they hardly knew what they were doing.

Mr. Bartness' idea of just how it happened is easily gained, says Mr. Bartness. There are no indications that a wall of water 15 or 20 feet high rolled through the town. Willow creek raised hardly 7 or 8 feet out of its banks. But there was a mass of mud and debris, with large quantities of hail and water, sweeping everything before it. A great deal of the hail remained unmelting all day Tuesday, and that day one body was found to be a morgue frozen solid. A singular thing about the awful affair is that there are no injured among those who escaped. Heppner people either escaped uninjured or perished. Doctors who reached there with relief supplies and medicines found no professional duties awaiting them. The work of uncovering bodies from the debris still goes on with a thousand men, but many of the dead never will be recovered. The weather Monday and Tuesday was about like it was in Hood River.

Saloon Licenses Rejected.

The Hood River saloon keepers were refused renewal of their licenses at an adjourned meeting of the city council Tuesday night. The vote of the council on a motion to grant the licenses stood 3 to 3—Councilmen P. S. Davidson, Blowers and Prather voting "aye," and Mayor Coon, and H. E. Davidson voting "no." The result being a tie, Mayor Coon, deciding that the saloon petitions did not have a majority of the legal voters of the city, cast the deciding vote for further consideration at the next regular meeting of the council.

MONDAY NIGHT PROCEEDINGS.

The city council met Monday evening. Three saloon petitions were presented, each containing about 100 names. A remonstrance against granting the saloon licenses, containing 100 names was presented. The petitions and remonstrance were referred to a committee to ascertain the number of legal voters on each. Committee to report at meeting Tuesday evening.

The council, having in charge the reports of Paget & Clark in regard to a sewerage system made a verbal report, which was accepted and the committee continued.

The following claims against the city were allowed, and warrants ordered drawn to pay the same:

J. L. Allen	$25.00
Dr. Dumble	42.00
Paget & Clark	200.00
G. P. Crowell	6.00

Jos. Pratt	11.20
G. E. Williams	4.35
Wm. Thompson, meals	8.84
B. R. Com. Co.	2.85
Marshall Canning	50.00

Major J. S. Booth asked permission to address the council in behalf of the sufferers from the disastrous cloud-burst in Morrow county, and asked that a committee be appointed by the mayor to solicit funds for the sufferers. Prather moved that a committee of one, with power to call to his assistance others, be

Business Lively at Trout Lake.

J. W. Clatterbos was in Hood River Wednesday from Trout Lake. "Times are lively over in our section," said he. "Chris Guler, the hotel man, has 30 campers on his grounds, and many people are coming in every week. The Trout lake farmers are experimenting with cheese making. Mr. Townsend, the Pacific coast cheese man, furnishes a cheese maker and markets the product, all for a commission of 2 cents a pound. The rest of the income is divided among the farmers on a co-operative basis. The factory is turning out about a ton of cheese a week, and has been in operation less than a month."

Mr. Clatterbos is owner and builder of the White Salmon-Trout Lake telephone line, which was put up this spring, and which is now being extended to Fulda and Glenwood. Mr. Clatterbos says the people are taking readily to the use of the phones and his line will begin to prove profitable before long. Telephone service is furnished the Trout lake farmers for $1.25 a month. At White Salmon telephone is made with the Hood River system of the Pacific States Telephone company, and the charges for 3 minutes talk between here and Trout lake are 50 cents.

The Menominee Lumber company is meeting with success in driving logs down the White Salmon. A million and a half feet of timber is now being watered the mouth of the river, the high water hurrying the timber down with a rush. Over 20 men are busy with the drive. Mr. Clatterbos delivered 1,000,000 feet of logs to the Menominee company this year, most of it being extra fine yellow pine.

A week ago last Sunday Mr. Clatterbos lost three valuable cows by eating dynamite. Some log drivers had left the explosive on a rock near the river, and to the cows who ate it, it was a deadly poison, the animals all dying within an hour.

At White Salmon C. M. Wolfard is doing an immense business. In the general merchandise trade, Mr. Clatterbos declares Mr. Wolfard is doing more business than any two Hood River stores.

How to do a Stunt.

It is no easy trick to do a stunt properly. The stunt that consists in making progress in the world is the trick that depends on perfect manhood and strength. If such perfection is lacking there is no builder equal to Palmo Table, the grocer, and the man who builds buildings carried by Williams' pharmacy. They are only 50¢ per box, and a treatment is absolutely guaranteed. Call for free booklets with full explanations.
