They have a fine large store room, with plenty of space for showing off their goods. Mr. McDonald has enclosed a toilet room in which will be kept towels and every convenience for ladies who may come in from the country and need a place of this kind to make their toilet after a drive over the dusty roads. This innovation in the way of storekeeping will be appreciated by the ladies. The firm will occupy the whole of the lower toor of the building. In the large room in the rear C. D. Henrich will keep on band buggies, wagons and agricultural implements. The roomy porch on the east side of the building will also be used to display Mr. Henrich's goods. John Groff of Mount Hood had a lively time with a cougar last Monday evening. He was driving home from his ing. He was driving home from his son's place when he saw a large cougar crouched on a log beside the road. He yelled to scare the fierce animal away, when it took to the brush only to appear again a few rods farther on. This time yelling had no effect, and as he whipped up his horses to hurry by, the congar sprang at the driver and struck against the hind wheel of the wagon. This is the story as told by Mr. Leasure, who got his information from Mr. Groff. Cougars must be pretty bold in the Mount Hood settlement.
