

Wood River Glacier.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 27, 1903.

The Glacier's circulation has passed the 1,000 mark. Based on the customary estimate of five readers to the subscriber, there are now 5,000 Glacier readers. Of this fact, advertisers should take note. It means an increased value to their advertising. There is scarcely a home in Hood River valley and the Mount Hood settlement at which the Glacier is not a weekly visitor; and in the communities directly tributary to Hood River it goes to a majority of the homes in Mosier, Nicolai and Viento on the Oregon side of the Columbia, and to White Salmon, Underwood, Chenoweth, Humm, Pine Flat and the Trout Lake country in Washington. Thus the Glacier completely covers a territory 200 square miles in extent, and containing fully 5,000 people. As an advertising medium, there are few newspapers that so thoroughly cover the field as does the Glacier. Hood River merchants, in the matter of advertising, are much more enterprising than business men in the majority of towns of 1,200 population. They have found it pays, and long ago learned to regard it from a business standpoint and not in the light of charity. To reproduce, we are glad to assure advertisers a growing circulation. This circulation is now 1,008, and the subscription lists are always open to inspection. It is possible to do business without advertising in the Glacier, but success is much an effort with it.

President Prater of the Multnomah Amateur Athletic club has extended a cordial invitation to the newspaper men of the state to attend the big fall carnival in Portland, September 14 to 23 inclusive, and is asking them to make it their headquarters while in the city. The Multnomah club's home headquarters on the coast. It is safe to say that the big fall carnival will be the best ever given in Portland. The Glacier thanks the managers for complimentary season tickets.

Deputy Assessor Law Morse has completed his work for Hood River valley, and the county west to Cascade Locks. He found 1,327 individual property owners, having an assessable valuation of $701,250. This is exclusive of the railroad, telegraph and telephone companies, which is expected to bring the total up to over $900,000. In 1902, the taxable property in Hood River, alone, was $717,790.

Hood River is in possession of Wasco county's winsome school matrons and staid old pedagogues. At the last teachers' institute, it was voted unanimously to come to Hood River, and from all appearances the teachers are glad to be here. The Glacier welcomes the teachers and believes there is nothing in Hood River too good for them.

The Glacier acknowledges receipt of a complimentary to the 4th annual Harney county fair, to be held at Burns, Or., September 14 to 20. A glance at the premium list, amounting $2,500, shows the people of Harney county to be a generous lot. Here's wishing the best of success for the Harney county fair.

Hood River's much-needed sewer will be built this fall. Councilman Prater is working hard on a special report which Engineer Paget has prepared, and which Mr. Prater will lay before the city council at an adjourned meeting, Monday night.

Many Teachers Attend Institute. Ninety school teachers are in Hood River this week in attendance at Wasco county's annual institute. The sessions opened promptly at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning, and are in charge of J. T. Neff, deputy county superintendent. In the absence of Rev. D. V. Poling of The Dalles, J. S. Landers, city superintendent of The Dalles public schools, is looking after the musical programme as of yore. County Superintendent C. L. Gilbert's smile is more delightful than ever to see. He attends to every want of the fair visitors, and feels gratified to see the second institute at Hood River such a complete success.

The opera house is well filled both mornings and afternoons, and close attention is paid to the words of counsel of the able instructors and experienced educators who are imparting the latest ideas of school work to the teachers of Wasco county. Frank Rieger, superintendent of the Portland public schools, and D. A. Grout, principal of
