Hood River Glacier

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1903.

Hood River will entertain the Oregon editors next year. In addition to the newspaper people, we shall have the state encampment of the Grand Army, and the annual meeting of the Pacific cost norserymen's association. As these latter two will be here during the months of May or June, it has been thought best to set the date for the editors' gathering some time during the week of the biennial fruit fair, which is usually held about the first week in October. Then the farmers will have their farm work well under way and will be able to spare the time to show the visiting newspaper men and women about the valley. The biggest apple 'exhibit in the Northwest will also furnish a splendid attraction. These three conventions can give Hood River a lot of advertising, and it behooves our good people to see that every courtesy and favor is extended to our visitors.

From time to time during the last ten years rumors have been afloat to the effect that W. R. Hearst was about to start a newspaper in Portland, but few For Sale placed any reliance in them. In the interest of his alleged boom for the presi idential nomination by the democratic At a Bargain. party there is no telling what a multimillionaire might do, but surely there is no sane person who believes for a moment that the Oregonian is going to be ran out of the field. It would take accomplish such an object .- Astoria News.

The new bridge over Indian creek signs and the painting of wearisome advertisements. It's too bad such nui-Utah, the county commissioners have "No Bill Posting" notices on all county as one drives about the country, it is a sightly signs.

The United States department of agri-home. Apply to culture has just issued a bulletin giving a synopsis of the game laws in every state in the Union that should find its way into the hands of every farmer and every one interested in hunting. The pamphlet is No. 180 and can be had by
