

WHITE SALMON NOTES.

Mrs. Trana has again been taken away for medical treatment. This time to Portland.

County School Superintendent Clanton paid our school a visit last week. From here she went to Trout Lake.

C. F. Lansing of the Quaker nursery, Salem, was in White Salmon Saturday.

W. A. Sherman of Vancouver, horticultural inspector, was in town a few days ago.

E. N. Blythe, junior member of the Glacier office, paid White Salmon a visit Saturday. He was astonished at the development of our town since his last visit.

O. J. Smith of Trout Lake came in one day last week. He pins his faith to the Trout Lake country, and well he may.

School room—primary grade—36 pupils—seats for just 32. No space for one more bench. It's your school. Go see for yourself. That's all.

Little kid—through snow to school—cold toes—near stove, cook on one side—back by windows, freeze—snuffles—catarrh—lung trouble—little casket. That's all.

It is the squirrel with the biggest pile of hazelnuts that wears the widest smile these winter days. He puts a new rope in his sled and sharpens up his skates while his less provident neighbor hustles for collateral to put up for a grub stake.

News reached town a few days ago that a family of six children were suffering from insufficient clothing. 15 miles or so up in the snow-clad hills. Mrs. Purser and Mrs. Hunsaker interested themselves and White Salmon responded so generously that a surplus of warm clothing is ready to meet the next case of need.

There's some satisfaction these cold days, when the thermometer is crouching low and overdrifts are being made on the woodpile, to think of the flies that buzzed the summer hours away. We cannot forget the little tormentor that persisted in planting his sticky little feet on our weary eyelids when we had posed for a summer-day nap, or crawled in and sat on the drum of our ear to buzz his morning ditty. But while we do not and cannot forget, we can and do forgive—and why? Because his eyes are now closed in death. His little heart has ceased to palpitate. His lashes lie motionless on his pallid cheeks and his little body, badly swollen but serene and perfectly composed, is motionless. His little soul is gone—his, we know not where. Let us trust that it is better with him now than we hope it is. We can hardly hope that he has "gone on before." If he has, we may be excused for desiring to remain right here. And, by the way, why is it that a fly, so dingy and common-place in life, is so gorgeously arrayed in the cold and deathly hours of winter? With alabaster abdomen encircled by bands of resplendent blue, he kneels a frozen corpse, and no warm chinook can ever thaw him out.

By-bye, by-bye, dear little fly, it is so and that you must die. Alas! a tear stands in our eye—We'll miss you from both sides and fry—By-bye, in a; alas! by-bye.

THE LATEST GRAFT.

A Western man of wealth whose name has been suppressed had one ear but longed for another. Who can blame him? Two feel better, look better and make a better balanced cupola in every way. He consulted a prominent New York surgeon. The result was that the surgeon offered $5,000 for a medium sized adult ear, free from freckles and other blemishes. A German who had two good ears that were maimed but had been yearning for $5,000 in vain, consented to swap one of his ears for $5,000. So he looked up the surgeon in New York, told him that he had an ear that was a daisy. The bargain was closed and the German with his eye on the $5,000, stretched himself upon the surgeon's table and told the doctor to get his cant-hooks and meat hook ready, as he wanted to catch the next train for home. The surgeon coiled him into position, and rocking one eye along the teeth of his little cross-cut saw, he was about to get hold of the ear with his nipper, when the German raised his head and inquired if the surgeon would take both ears for $10,000. The surgeon assured him that one would be plenty, and placing a piece of choice limburger cheese under the German's cheek as a disinfectant, proceeded to operate. Well, the wealthy Western man and the thrifty German at last accounts were lying side by side, one with feet to the north, the other to the south, ear to ear. They are gradually cutting it loose from the original owner, and they speak of the "flap" as if human flaps were a drug on the produce exchange. It's a "graft." When it's all over the wealthy man will get off the table with $5,000 and go to work to get another $5,000. The German will arise minus one ear, and plugging the whole in his head with a cork, will go to a bank, deposit his $5,000 subject to check, and write to his Frauiline to come to America as a cabin passenger on the next steamer.

This throws some light on an item of ancient history. When Mark Anthony rushed in on the floor of the Roman senate and cried, "Friends, Romans, countrymen, lend me your ears!" it was no idle, meaningless appeal. He was face to face with an economic fact. He was lobbying for the Royal Roman Society of Surgeons. Whether he grafted in an assorted lot of ears on the spot, or whether they were sent to him by mail, is quite immaterial. He evidently got them, for the incident was never referred to again, and Mark Anthony was not the man to let the matter drop till he got what he was after.

Frankton News Notes.

By the School Children.

Mrs. M. H. Nickelsen returned Wednesday evening from The Dalles, where she has been visiting.

Johnnie Lindsay of Crapper has been very sick with typhoid fever, whooping cough and shingles.

Elmer Isenberg is confined to his bed with inflammatory rheumatism.

Miss Lillian Pierce returned Saturday from Condon, where she has been visiting her sister, May Jones.

A masquerade ball will be held at the home of J. O. Eastman, Thanksgiving. Thelma Phelps intends to return home Wednesday for Thanksgiving. She is getting along nicely with her school at Butler, Wash.

Rev. Dillinger's sister and mother of The Dalles have been visiting him during the past week.

Mrs. V. B. Eakin from Rutledge is visiting R. Jones of Belmont.

W. S. Boorman went down to Portland Monday morning and visited the family of G. B. Tompkins over night. He started for Ridgefield, Wash., Tuesday morning, but arrived at Vancouver too late for the train, and was obliged to ride on the pass the 18 miles to Ridgefield. Scott says there are more ties to the mile on that little railroad than he ever saw. He spent a most pleasant week visiting old Wisconsin friends, some of whom he had not seen for 20 years. He returned home Saturday evening.

A. C. Staten, Joseph Loser and Bob Ramsay returned Saturday from their duck hunt up in Eastern Oregon. They shipped 124 geese and brought a good many home with them for their Thanksgiving dinner.

Ward Tompkins of Portland returned home last week after a short visit in the Frankton neighborhood, and we know of a little black-eyed girl that is disconsolate.

The merry booming of the scatter-gun is daily heard along the Columbia, indicating that a good number of sportsmen are out rustling for Thanksgiving provender.

Charlie and Luther Miller went duck hunting up in the eastern country last week, and returned Sunday, but your correspondent has not been able to learn the results beyond glimpses of big bunches of birds hanging in their wagon as they drove by on their way home.

Dukes Valley Notes.

We have still a little snow in spots. There was quite a crowd out last Sunday to our Sunday school temperance entertainment, and a goodly number signed the temperance pledge cards. The Odell Sunday school helped us out in the programme and we were pleased to meet our friends.

The Dodson boys are cutting and hauling wood to Hood River in spite of the weather and mud.

The Salmagundi literary society had a good crowd last week and the programme was good. This week it met Tuesday evening on account of Thanksgiving. On Thursday evening, January 7, we will give an entertainment and a basket supper. We intend to have a fish pond and give everybody a chance to fish. We would like for everybody to come out and bring a basket and their pocket book, as we want to get an organ for the school house. This is much needed in our Sunday school, literary society and church.

The weather is so bad that there is not much work going on here at present.

J. A. Knox and Mrs. Kassel went to Hood River last Friday.

Charles A. Stanton was seen in our valley last week. He reports his fruit trees damaged somewhat by the snow and the wind storm. He says Mrs. Stanton is a little better since they moved to Viento. He thinks the lumber yard will close down in about 30 days, but he intends to cut wood at that place.

Mr. Massey and sons are clearing on their land they bought of L. D. Boyed.

Can You Donate Some Fruit?

The Boys and Girls' Aid Society of Oregon will be pleased to receive donations from the people of Hood River during Thanksgiving week. In a letter to the Glacier, W. T. Gardner, the superintendent, says:

It has been the custom for some years past for the public schools of Wasco county to donate fruit and provisions to this society on Thanksgiving, and as this is the only society that cares for children outside of our own county, I think we have a valid claim in this regard. For when children are committed by County Judge Blakeley, or in fact, any county judge throughout the state, they are accepted at the institution without question, and if necessary, will send an officer up to take charge of such children and pay his expenses in so doing, as we did in the Wigle case reported to us by your county commissioner.

Mr. Hibbard, our officer found the children at Viento in a sad state of want. The mother had died of consumption and the father had been taken to St. Vincent's hospital, in which institution he shortly after died, leaving these children without means, or hardly a roof to cover them, as the shack in which they lived was unfit for habitation, and they had nothing but rags to lie on and nothing to eat except what was furnished by charitable neighbors.

This case and many others comes to our notice and is acted on promptly and in a business like manner. If parents are unfit to care for their children, they are taken from them by process of law. Sincerely trusting that you may be able to assist us in obtaining the customary donations at Thanksgiving, especially fruit and provisions, I remain respectfully yours,

W. T. GARDNER, superintendent.

Irrigated Potatoes With Onions.

Three big potatoes were left at the Glacier office Friday morning, and the next Monday the following explanatory letter came to hand:

Hood River, Or., Nov. 23, 1903.—Editor Glacier: As potato stories are in season please give me space to tell my success as a potato grower.

I present to you these potatoes. They are not as large as some they tell us about, but you must take into consideration that they are ready for hash, as they are flavored with onions, for we are short on water so we must be economical and plant our onions and potatoes together in alternate rows so that the onions make the eyes of the potatoes water and they do not have to be irrigated, see? This is the way we planted them in Arkan-saw, when there was a drought.

We Arkansaw people know a few things when we can think of them; any way when it comes to raising potatoes.

Why He Let the Juror Go.

Forest Grove Times.

A Hood River carpenter was drawn for jury duty at the recent term of district court. He was building a house for a lawyer at the time and the lawyer didn't want him to stop, so he went to the judge with a batch of excuses to get him off. The carpenter, not knowing what the lawyer had done, also went to the judge with a big story about his health being so bad he could not possibly endure the strain of serving on a jury. The judge said it would be a serious handicap on his court to have two such liars in attendance at once, and as the lawyer has a right to be there he would let the juror go.

They Live Long.

Newspaperdom.

The printer's trade is not necessarily incompatible with a fair degree of longevity, if we take as a sample the case of James I. C. Cook, senior owner and publisher of the Milford, (Mass.) Journal, who has seen his 86th birthday this week, says a New England paper. He has been smelting printer's ink for 72 years. He began as devil of the Bellows Falls Intelligence in November of 1830. A happy old age to him. There have been other cases of similar long life which go to show that the "art preservative" applies to life as well as to other things.

Disastrous Wrecks.

Carelessness is responsible for many a railway wreck and the same causes are making human wrecks of sufferers from throat and lung troubles. But since the advent of Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds, even the worst cases can be cured, and hope-less resignation is no longer necessary. Mrs. Lois Cragg of Dorchester, Mass., is one of many whose life was saved by Dr. King's New Discovery. This great remedy is guaranteed for all throat and lung diseases by Chas. N. Clarke, druggist. Price, 50c and $1. Trial bottles free.

Chance to Get Organ Cheap.

The Wise Piano House has in Hood River a brand new Farrand organ, fine as made; large expensive case; 6 octave; almost 3 sets reeds; sells anywhere for $135. Have lost enough on it and first corner gets it for $87.50. Will make fair terms. Address, Wise Piano House, Boise, Idaho.

A Runaway Bicycle.

Terminated with an ugly cut on the leg of J. B. Orner, Franklin Grove, Ill. It developed a stubborn ulcer yielding to doctors and remedies for four years. Then Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured. It's just as good for burns, scalds, skin eruptions and piles. 25c at Clarke's drug store.

A Happy Man.

There is no happier man in Hood River than the man who has a strong body and steady nerves, or who, if he has not, has gone to Williams' pharmacy and bought Palmato tablets, the great tonic that costs only 50c per box, and are guaranteed with cash coupons in each box, for all forms of weakness.
