What Hood River Orchards Can Do

Apple packers throughout the valley have about finished with this year's crop, and it is said that the total number of boxes will come very close to the estimate made early in the season of 50,000 boxes. The apples are of excellent quality and some of the yields are remarkably good. Following are some of the reports brought to the Glacier office.

F. W. Angus and crew packed for G. E. Castner 486 boxes of 4-tier Yellow Newtowns which sold for $1.80 a box, and 157 boxes of 4 and 5-tier of the same variety, which brought $1.25 a box. These 643 boxes, worth $1,071.00, were gathered from three acres, containing 240 trees planted in 1894. In addition to this there were at least 650 worth of cull apples. Two boxes were reserved for the St. Louis fair. Mr. Castner's place is about three miles southwest of town.

Con Rupp at Mitchell's point on the Columbia, five miles below Hood River, had three boxes of Hyde's King of the West which went 45 apples to the box. Charles Castner did the packing, and brought to the Glacier office three fine samples of the apples, one of which weighs 22 ounces, the second 19 and the third 18 ounces. Mr. Rupp had 106 boxes of apples this year, and only seven boxes of cull and wormy ones. He made thorough use of the spray. Mr. Castner said he never saw a nicer lot of apples. They were all purchased by the Davidson Fruit company.

The little city of Wasco in Sherman county had a $200,000 fire a couple of weeks ago. Speaking editorially, last week's Wasco News says:

What are we going to do about a fire department, fellow citizens? Are we going to wait until the next blaze wipes our city from the map? The present charter puts it in the power of the city to build and own its water works and fire department. Are we to use this power and protect the good name of Wasco as a safe business center? Or are we to remain ignorant in our own defense, when by accident or intent fire chieftains to gain a foothold. By the expenditure of a few thousands we can easily protect our property; by failure to spend it, we can in a few short minutes see our homes and businesses reduced to ashes.

Does this apply to Hood River?

Next Tuesday is the date for Hood River's city election, when successors are to be chosen to Councilmen Blowers, P. S. Davidson, H. F. Davidson and G. J. Gessling. Two tickets have been placed in the field, though there is little indication that the contest will be so hard fought as in former years. The Glacier believes the city's interests will be properly conserved whoever is made councilmen, leastwise if they shall be as conscientious in their public duties as have been the out-going councilmen.

Councilmen Have Lively Session.
With Mayor Coon casting the deciding vote, a motion carried at the special meeting of the city council, Monday night, approving the mayor's action in employing council to answer the injunction suit filed against the city of Hood River by D. McDonald and others restraining the common council from allowing a bill of $200, incurred in the recent trial of the city against P. F. Fouts for violating the ordinance regulating the sale of liquor, and which injunction case has been set for hearing before Judge Bradshaw of the circuit court Thursday of this week. The vote on the motion stood:

Aye—Councilmen H. F. Davidson, Mayes, Gessling and Mayor Coon.
No—Councilmen Prather, P. S. Davidson and Blowers.

This adjourned meeting of the council was for the purpose of listening to a report from the sewer committee. After disposing of the business of the evening, the council was about to adjourn when Mayor Coon reminded the councilmen that the injunction suit was to be heard this week and that some action by the council in the matter would be proper. This woke up several of the council members, and there was a general sprinkling of gingered remarks. Blowers wanted to know why this matter had not been brought before the council at previous meetings. Notice of the injunction had been served on the councilmen on a Saturday and the council met the following Monday. Mayor Coon replied that inasmuch as all the councilmen were concerned in the matter, he had considered it as much their business to bring up the subject as himself. In regard to the prosecution of the liquor men, Mayor Coon stated that he had conferred with three or four of the councilmen about the matter, and that furthermore, in so far as his prerogative as mayor had to do with the affair, he didn't consider action by the council necessary.

Councilman Prather declared that everything that he had done as a member of the council was what he regarded as best for the interests of the city. He had not been interviewed by the mayor about the prosecution and stated emphatically that he could not vote for the motion to sustain the mayor in employing counsel to answer the injunction.

Councilman H. F. Davidson was of the opinion that it would be cheaper for the city to answer the injunction than to let it go by default and be charged with the costs of the case. He did not think that the injunction could hold, and that as the matter of paying the bill of expenses for the liquor prosecution had not come before the council for final settlement, the injunction case should be fought out and the whole question adjusted later by the council.

Councilman P. S. Davidson felt it unjust to be forced into court on a matter of this kind when he had not been given a chance to be heard. He did not think the costs which might be charged against the city could amount to very much and was not favorable to the motion.

The motion was again urged by H. F. Davidson, and the mayor put the question as to the result as stated. Previous to the dismissal of the chief topic of the session, the report of the committee on streets and public property relative to the sidewalk on State street west from the bridge was accepted. On motion of P. S. Davidson, the committee was given power to purchase material for the sidewalk provided construction work was donated as agreed to by the petitioner.

The matter of opening River street came up, and Councilmen Prather and H. F. Davidson stated that objection had been made by the O. R. & N. Co. to the removal of the fence around the green lot in front of the Mount Hood hotel. Prather stated that the O. R. & N. had gone so far as to intimate that if this was done the council need not expect any further favors from the railroad. A motion then carried deferring action in the matter until another meeting of the council.

On motion of H. F. Davidson, the street commissioner was empowered to require property owners when laying sidewalks to place their fences on their property line.

Councilman Mayes presented a plot of Coon's addition to the city of Hood River, and the same was referred to the committee on streets and public property. On motion of H. F. Davidson, the judicial committee was instructed to examine the city's ordinances covering the filing of plats, and to report with an ordinance compelling all property owners offering plats for filing to file a copy of the same with the city recorder.

The sewer committee regretted to report it had failed to see a man about some right of way somewhere in the city, and the matter went over indefinitely.
