If your eyes trouble you and cause headache or throbbing pains with blurring vision when reading or doing fine work requiring close and steady observation, come in and let me examine your eyes by means of the perfected American Optical Tester and secure relief and comfort by the use of properly-fitted glasses.

HUSUM GRANGE HOLDS FRUIT FAIR.

Husum, Wash., Nov. 28.—Editor Glacier: Following is a report of Husum Grange's doings Thanksgiving day. Had you been at Husum on that day you could have seen the people going to the school house with baskets filled with everything to satisfy the inner man. But as grangers did not stop with well filled baskets but brought along samples of vegetables, fruits and chickens as well to exhibit, all of which your humble scribe can say rivaled anything in that line seen this year. At 10 o'clock the master's gavel fell and the labors of the day began. We initiated a class of eight in the 3d and 4th degrees, followed by a dinner prepared by the worthy matron of our order. And if your editor had been here he surely would have gone home with an attack of indigestion or gout. To say the least, Husum grangers are good cooks. But we as grangers look for something more than means to satisfy the inner man. So, after doing justice to all the good things to eat, the following literary programs was rendered: Instrumental music by Miss Bird Williams and Harry Matthews, followed by an address by George M. Cole on education. Song by George Curtine. Declarations by Miss Della Williams, Fred Mickelson, David Cole, Miss Cole, Annie Mickelson, Leonard Mickelson. Reading by C. Mickelson and Mrs. Mickelson. We were also favored with music from the graphophone from time to time. Husum grange was organized Thanksgiving day a year ago with 18 charter members. It now has a membership of 34. And now for the exhibit table which fairly groined under its heavy load. The first to take our eye was a huge head of cabbage raised by Bro. Fred Mickelson. There were also fine carrots, pumpkins, potatoes and beans on exhibit by the mile. We all had oyster plants there, so you see we grangers do not have to buy our oysters, even if we don't live near the sea. The fruit exhibit was the best part of our little fair. I can hear one of the sisters remarking: "I'll bet my chickens, and that pullet of mine, which was hatched on the 22d of March, and laid her first egg the 24th of August, if any Hood River people can beat that!" Let's see if they can. To return to the fruit exhibit. We had Yellow Newtowns, Spitzenburgs, Red Cheek pippins, Swaar, York Imperial, Northern Spy and a lot of other varieties. And say, Mr. Editor, our folk here challenge Hood River people to a fruit and vegetable exhibit next fall. About the grange once more. We, as patrons, believe in the farmers, and shall ever strive to elevate our calling by proper schooling in the nature study as well as in agriculture and in horticulture. While we are endeavoring to have these subjects taught in the public schools, we believe in getting acquainted with the things which we see in our every day life. Therefore we believe all our granges should take up nature study. To those who are indifferent to our noble calling, we sit Husum Grange and its record for one year. The farmers institute held at White Salmon was the work of the Husum Grange. The branch of the state library to which our people belong, is the fruit of our work. Besides it has proven a great stimulus to our people in an endeavor to excel others in raising fruits, vegetables and all other farm products. GRANGE.

stateboard at the state price. It was peddled about by their agents, whose profits may well be imagined.—Eugene Guard.

Fight Will be Bitter. Those who will persist in closing their ears against the continual recommendation of Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, will have a long and bitter fight with their troubles, if not ended earlier by fatal termination. Read what T. R. Beall, of Beall, Miss., has to say: "Last fall my wife had every symptom of consumption. She took Dr. King's New Discovery after everything else had failed. Improvement came at once and four bottles entirely cured her." Guaranteed by Chas. N. Clarke, Druggist. Price 50c, and $1. Trial bottles free.

Will Halt Their Efforts. Hall of the Pine Grove Temperance Union, Dec. 8, 1903.—The members of the Pine Grove Temperance Union hail with pleasure any efforts brought forth by the Law and Order forces of Hood River, and may they continue to act until they receive such an inspiration as will totally drown all endeavors to gratify weak indulgences and that calculated to do harm, and only harm, to all. The money paid to dispense any evil brings its own terrible recompense sooner or later. Mrs. J. A. Hurt, Pres. Pine Grove Temp. Union.

HAD A FIXED INCOME. An Unfortunate Question and a Perfectly Frank Reply.

A lawyer who formerly practiced his profession in Georgia tells in the New York Telegram this amusing case which he was once tried in that state. He was then a student in the office of his uncle, Colonel Culver, who figured in local politics. A "trifling" negro, Ben Sutton, had been arrested at the instance of his wife, who was tired of supporting him and insisted that the court make him work. I defended Ben at the instance of my uncle, who was, I am sorry to say, inclined to curry favor with the colored voter. Ben was on the stand, and I was examining him. "Now, Ben," I said, "Amanda declares in her complaint that you don't give her any money, and—" "Dat ole woman's always complainin'," interrupted my client. "Yes, I know, but what I want to ask you is: Are you able to support her? Have you any income—that is, any fixed income?" Ben looked puzzled. I tried to explain and told him that a fixed income was an income on which a person could rely absolutely, not one contingent on odd jobs—in other words, a certainty. My uncle was sitting at my elbow coaching me, and I thought I was doing right well. "Now, tell the court," I concluded, "have you a fixed income?" "Yessar," answered the black scamp. The answer almost took my breath away, for I had not counted on it. "What!" I thundered. "You mean to say that you, Ben Sutton, have a steady, reliable and fixed income on which you can absolutely depend?" "Yessar." "What is it?" I gasped in desperation. "Well, sar, you see," returned Ben, "Colonel Culver, that a'fays gives me 'for bits an' a sack you four on ever'lection day."

GEMS OF THOUGHT.

Pardon others often; thyself never.—Publius Syrus. We like to divine others, but do not like to be divined ourselves.—Rochefoucauld. The Good Spirit never antedates. He never gives us today what we shall need tomorrow.—Emerson. Do not make excuses to yourself for your failures, but look them squarely in the face and study how to avoid their repetition. Life is a burden imposed upon you by God. What you make of it, that will be to you. Take it up bravely, bear it joyfully, lay it down triumphantly.—Gail Hamilton. We dig and toil, we worry and fret, and all the while close over us breeds the infinite wonder and beauty of nature, saying: "Look up, my child! Feel my smile and be glad!"—L. E. Merriam. God has put it into man's power not to fall into evil, and the fact that we cannot avoid death shows that it is not a real evil, else God would have put it in our power to avoid it.—Marcus Aurelius. A man who lives entirely to himself becomes at last obnoxious to himself. I believe it is the law of God that self-centeredness ends in self nauseation. There is no weariness like the weariness of a man who is wearied of himself, and that is the awful Nemesis which follows the selfish life.—J. H. Jovett. The One Above. I especially remember Emile de Girardin, editor, sponser, intriguer—the "Grand Emile," who boasted that he invented and presented to the French people a new idea every day. This futile activity of his always seemed to me best expressed in the American simile, "Busy as a bee in a tar barrel." There was, indeed, one thing to his credit: He had somehow inspired his former wife, the gifted Delphine Gay, with a belief in his goodness, and a pretty story was current illustrating this. During the revolution of 1848 various men of note, calling on Mme. Girardin, expressed alarm at the progress of that most foolish of overtures, when she said, with an air of great solemnity and pointing upward, "Gentlemen, there is one above who watches over France." ("Il y a un la-haut qui veille sur la France.") All were greatly impressed by this evidence of sublime faith until they discovered by the context that it was not the Almighty in whom she put her trust, but the great Emile, whose study was just above her parlor.—Andrew D. White in Century.

THE CODE IN ANCIENT TIMES

Famous Deed in the Days of Good Queen Anne. In the reign of good Queen Anne duels were no less frequent than in the rowdy, riotous days of Charles II. Lord Mohun, a dissolute, remorseless nobleman, was the terror of honest London citizens at this time, and many were the infamous escapades in which he played chief character. He was guilty of one act which bears no other name than that of murder—the killing of poor Mountford, the actor, in cold blood because he endeavored to protect the honor of Mrs. Bracegirdle, the famous and beautiful actress. It was Lord Mohun who fought and killed the Duke of Hamilton, an affair which all will remember who have read Thackeray's great novel, "Edmond."

The duel was fought with swords in Hyde park, the challenge having been sent by Mohun to the duke, who had, with perfect accuracy, stated that one of Mohun's creatures "had neither truth nor justice in him." The Duke of Hamilton received a wound in the right side of the leg about seven inches long, another in the right arm, a third in the upper part of the breast, running downward toward the body; a fourth on the outside of the left leg. Lord Mohun himself was mortally wounded, receiving a large wound through the groin, another in the right side through the body, in which the sword plunged right up to the hilt, and a third in his arm. There is no doubt he rightly deserved his death, because, departing from the rules of fence among men of honor, he shortened his sword, thrust under his opponent's guard and stabbed the duke in the manner of a common assassin.

PHILIPPINE VOLCANOES.

Mayon is the Most Famous, and the Taal Comes Next. The most famous Philippine volcano and one of the finest volcanoes in the world is that of Mayon. Its height is 8,070 feet, and the volcano is visible at a great distance. Since 1763 records have been kept of its eruptions. In that year many plantations and villages were buried under a stream of lava which flowed down its eastern slope. About 1,200 lives were lost in the eruption of 1814, which buried the country around a part of the base of Mayon under the outpourings of lava and dust. A similar calamity in 1825 destroyed the lives of about 1,500 persons. In the nineteenth century there were a number of severe eruptions, including one in 1890-91 which continued about nine months. An eruption in 1897 killed 350 persons and destroyed much property. Twenty-two violent eruptions of this volcano are on record. Next to Mayon the Taal volcano is the most remarkable. It is on an island in the lake of Bombon, and the island, built up by its outpourings, has an area of 230 square miles. The volcano is incessantly ejecting dust and vapor from its crater. Taal, as well as Mayon, has been the center of numerous destructive earthquakes, but no very great eruption has occurred since 1864, when four villages around the mountain were completely destroyed.—Bulletin of the American Geographical Society.

THE CUSTOMS OF NORWAY.

Sunday Begins Saturday Night and is a Time For Pleasure. One marked characteristic of the people of Norway is their intense and artistic love of flowers. They never keep them in indiscriminate masses, but the poorest peasant woman will gather a few of the wild blossoms which grow at her door and arrange them in a glass at her window which are good to see. The custom obtains with high and low, and flowers are as necessary to a Norwegian dinner table as the food. The religion of the country is Lutheranism, but Sunday is not observed with Puritan strictness, for the settlements are small and far apart, so that the hard worked pastor must travel miles from one to another, and even in summer service is only held once in three weeks. Sunday begins on Saturday night, so that Sunday evening is a time for pleasure, and wherever a squeaky musical instrument can be found the peasants will dance together in the street. The men dance together as well as with the women, grasping each other's shoulders and wearing crowns made like dizzy human tops. A wedding is a festivity for the people for miles around. It is celebrated at the nearest village church, and the guests row in enormously long boats across the fjord, wearing gay colored dresses. The bride and bridegroom bring to the ceremony the silver spoons which were presented to them when they were christened. These are then linked together by a silver chain and are hung up in the new home, to be an heirloom for coming generations. Provide for the worst; the best will take itself.
