Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Loughery of Polk county, this state, are visiting their daughter, Mrs. J. L. Hershner.

Mr. Hershner will take up the regular work of his church as soon as domestic affliction will permit, which he anxiously hopes will be soon.

Garfield Schultz and wife of Chehalis, Wash., are spending the holidays with Mrs. Schultz's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Brace. Mr. Brace met them in Portland and accompanied them to Hood River.

The annual meeting of the Congregational church will be held at the church on Thursday, December 31, at 1:30 p. m. Reports will be submitted and election of officers take place. A full attendance is desired.

The children of the Unitarian Sunday school will celebrate in their new church Thursday evening at 7:30 with a Christmas tree and programme. The entertainment will be what is called a "German evening."

Miss Kate Earl, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Hartness for the past month or more, went to Portland Monday, where she takes a position in the Good Samaritan hospital to finish her apprenticeship as a trained nurse.

Santa Claus increased the subscription list of the Glacier by the addition of ten new names during the past week. Old Santa knows a good thing when he sees it. He knows of nothing that would make a more acceptable gift than a year's subscription to the Glacier to those who are without it.

George H. Marshall, president of the Presbyterian academy at Mount Pleasant, Utah, was in Hood River during the week visiting M. E. McCarty and family. Mr. McCarty was graduated from that institution in 1892. President Marshall is making a trip to the Pacific Northwest during his holiday vacation.

Mrs. J. C. Snyder arrived from Hood River yesterday and will visit for a few days before returning. Mr. Snyder is in the Ida Martin—Stevenson Pioneer.

Don't forget the recital at Odell the evening of the 26th, beginning at eight o'clock, to be given by Miss Nettie Kemp of the Gillespie School of Expression of Portland. Admission 15c.

Mrs. M. A. Soobie, one of the Chronicle's Hood River readers, is up from that place today. She tells us the ground was covered with snow when she left this morning.—Chronicle.

Emil Waldman, grand chancellor K of P, domain of Oregon, will meet with the local lodge in Hood River, December 29. All members of the lodge are expected to be present.

Burns Jones, who is still in the hospital at The Dalles, is slowly gaining strength. It has been eleven weeks since he was operated upon for appendicitis.

Miss Lou Flinders, Miss Kathleen Burns and Carl Jackson of Portland returned home, Monday, after a week at the fire.

Miss Ethel Woodworth and cousin Miss May Curry came up from California to spend the holidays with Mrs. G. D. Woodworth at Belmont.

James McBane is suffering from blood poisoning in his right hand, contracted from lambchop getting into a cut while mixing finishing mortar.

Walter Upson, the blacksmith, was laid up from work last week with a sprained back, caused by lifting heavy greasing machine iron.

The funeral of the late Bernard Warren was largely attended by his old friends and neighbors. The remains were accompanied from Portland by his sorrowing widow, his son William, daughter Madge, her husband, O. P. Ramsay, Mrs. Ramsay and Mrs. S. B. Crockett. The funeral sermon was preached in the M. E. church by Rev. W. G. Evans. Rev. J. H. Feary read a sketch of the life of the deceased and attested to his worth as a citizen and a Christian. The services were concluded by Rev. J. W. Rigby at the grave in Irving cemetery, where the remains were laid to rest. In the family lot alongside of two children that had gone before. The pall-bearers were selected from his old neighbors as follows: F. R. Absten, E. Locke, John A. Wilson, M. R. Noble, S. Koplin and S. F. Blythe. The Frankton school was dismissed during the time the services as a mark of respect to the memory of the old pioneer who loved to take an interest in the school.

Workmen were engaged last Saturday in tearing down the old house on F. H. Button's place. The old house stood in front of the new and partial rest land lately built by Mr. Button, and of course it had to be removed. Every part of it was consigned to the flames. This old house was one of the first built in Hood River valley. The old Coe mansion, still standing on State street, in this respect is better than the oldest house, and the house recently razed by F. H. Button was built soon after, probably about 1855. In this old house both Grant and Sheridan found shelter during their military service in Oregon before the civil war. Both were then lieutenants in the regular army. As late as 1880, this was the only house between the boatlanding and the Coe mansion. Up to this time it was the voting place for Hood River precinct.

J. M. Lenz was in town Monday and gave the Glacier a call. Mr. Lenz has a fine place on the Booth hill on the Mount Hood road. He has a beautiful land cleared as well, but he has enough to make him a living. His land, like the rest of the Mount Hood country, is excellent for clover. He had three acres in clover last season that yielded five tons to the acre second cutting. The second crop was better than the first. Mr. Lenz says he never would have believed that five tons of clover hay could be made on an acre of land, but he proved it this year to his complete satisfaction. The hay was pressed and weighed.

Rev. J. L. Hershner returned with his law office from North Pacific Sanatorium, Portland, on last Thursday. The operation on his right limb, performed by Dr. A. C. Smith of Portland, and Dr. Brosius failed to disclose the real nature of his trouble, and his physicians thought he was well off at home as in the sanatorium. He is entirely helpless and at times his limb pains him intensely, and his case continues to baffle the knowledge and skill of his physicians.

L. A. Herman of the East Side was in town last Friday. Mr. Herman is kept busy these days getting out logs on his place for the Mount Hood Lumber company. He got a nice bunch of timber from 40 acres which yielded about 300,000 feet of logs, and recently bought another 40 acres on the north which he thinks will possibly turn out even better. When his land is cleared, Mr. Herman will plant it to apple trees.

C. A. Hinkle returned last Friday from a week's trip to Portland. While in the city Mr. Hinkle called at the mill machine foundry of Crofut & Gale. Mr. Crofut was anxious to secure 500 copies of the Hood River pamphlets for a friend of his in Montana who is interesting a colony of lumbermen to locate here next spring. Mr. Hinkle says W. A. Slingerland bought in with Crofut & Gale last summer, but sold out again lately.

The new residence of B. F. Belieu, in Riverview Park addition, is nearing completion. E. Udell is doing the work of plastering on this building. Mr. Udell is an old settler in Hood River and has worked on many a Hood River building. He has probably helped as much as any one to build the town of Hood River.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Belieu visited Portland last week. Mr. Belieu accompanied them home. Mr. Oliver is a conductor on the Portland & Oregon City electric railroad, which position he has held for 11 years. He thinks Hood River is all right and hopes some day to become a resident here.

Friday evening the ladies of Woodcraft were well pleased by Mrs. Stuart's Christmas confectionery, coming in at a late hour and taking possession of the table and lading it until it groined with Boston baked beans and brown bread, of which each member gladly accepted an appropriate share.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Cole, who have been in Southern California for some time, returned to Hood River Thursday. They will go to Camas Prairie, where they will visit for awhile with Mrs. Cole's parents at Fulda.

L. E. Clark has been at Wasco, Sherman county, since the first of the month. He is spending the holidays at home. Saturday he sent his horses to be wintered in Sherman county.

Mrs. J. C. Snyder arrived from Hood River yesterday and will visit for a few days before returning. Mr. Snyder is in the Ida Martin—Stevenson Pioneer.

Don't forget the recital at Odell the evening of the 26th, beginning at eight o'clock, to be given by Miss Nettie Kemp of the Gillespie School of Expression of Portland. Admission 15c.

James McBane is suffering from blood poisoning in his right hand, contracted from lambchop getting into a cut while mixing finishing mortar.

Walter Upson, the blacksmith, was laid up from work last week with a sprained back, caused by lifting heavy greasing machine iron.

Miss Patience Cooper, who makes her home in Hood River valley, has arrived in the city to spend some time with relatives.—Chronicle.

Miss Grace Upton, who has been stopping at Arlington for the past two months, will spend the holidays at home.

Hunters' licenses in the state of Washington expire January 1. A license is not good a year after that, but only to the end of the calendar year. Those who take out new licenses will not have the privilege of shooting wild game for several months after the first of January except in the case of water fowl. The deer season closed December 15. The season for elk, moose, mountain goats, etc., closed November 1; for grouse, November 15. Water fowl may be shot as late as March 1. The fund from the sale of licenses is turned toward the enforcement of the game laws; and Game Warden Robert M. Ballou, for Klickitat county has taken care to see that the law has been well observed, several parties having been brought up roundly for violation of its provisions.

The Winchester, Ky., Sentinel boasts of a little girl not yet four years old, Eva Morgensen, who does half the milking for the family. Here in Oregon, owing to our climate, the average kid, when a week old, does all the milking for the family. Maybe though, little Eva is half a pair, and not weaned.—Salem Journal.

The Women of Woodcraft and Woodmen of the World are preparing for a joint installation of officers New Year's night, in K. of P. hall, with a good programme and 130 plates on the tables. All members are requested to respond to the call of the arrangement committee.

Mrs. C. J. O'Connell of Helena, Montana, with her two children is spending the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hammer of Hood River.

to receive and is always doing some charitable act. We remember years ago when Indian Joe Aliek's poor old mule was turned out to hustle for himself in snow two feet deep, seeing Jim gather up an armful of excelsior in rear of a store and carry it out in the street to the poor, starving beast. The mule filled up on the first ration he had had for a week or more, and no doubt would have expressed his thanks could he have had the gift of speech same as the party who sat down to the fine oyster supper at his expense. The party tried to be lively, but Jim's vacant chair was a constant reminder of his absence. The ladies of the party—the ladies, Jim—said they would n-e-v-e-r forgive you for not coming to that supper.

Hear Cosgrove Orchestra and make no mistake. The company is superb.
M. H. Nickelsen is spending the holidays with the family of his brother in The Dalles.
Percival Adams, a student at the agricultural college, is spending the holidays at home.
Mrs. John Butterworth came up from Portland Saturday night and is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Edward Dyer.
Mrs. A. B. Billings of Mount Hood attended the funeral of her niece, Mrs. Judd Fish, in The Dalles, Monday.
Fred Bailey and family moved up from Portland last week and are again on their farm four miles south of town.
Mrs. F. E. Newby left the hospital Saturday with her new son and returned to her home at Hood River.—Chronicle.
Meigs Hartness and Max Hinrichs are home from the agricultural college for the holidays. Meigs wears his captain's epauletts with dignity.
The ladies' aid of the Congregational church will meet at the home of Mrs. A. J. Graham, first Monday after Christmas, December 28. A good attendance is desired.
Get your orders in early for your New Year's Oregonians. They will be mailed from the office for nine cents or may be had at my news stand for five cents.

R. Fields of White Salmon was in town Tuesday, and gave the Glacier a call. Mr. Fields has an early place for strawberries. His berries generally go to market with the first Hood River berries.
Captain M. F. Jackson of the East Side was in town Tuesday and gave the Glacier a pleasant call. It being the 22d day of December, he was reminded that he had been in Hood River just 32 years on that date. Next day, December 23, 1871, the river was closed with ice and remained closed for 50 days.
Mrs. Judd Fish, wife of the proprietor of the Umattila house at The Dalles, died Thursday last week, after suffering but a short time with pneumonia. Mrs. Fish was a highly respected woman, and with her sorrowing husband, there are many people who mourn her loss.
W. T. Hansberry is very low, and his doctor has very little hopes of his recovery. He revived several times during the week, but the disease seems to have taken a firm hold of him, and his friends are prepared for the worst. His son Harry and daughter, Mrs. Dorrence Smith, both of Cascade Locks, are at the bedside of his father.
One instance of the unvarying commendation accorded the Cosgrove Orchestra on their Western tour is shown by the following telegram: Painesville, Wash., Dec. 18, 1903.—A. P. Bateham, Hood River, Or.: Cosgrove entertainment given here tonight for the Elks was first class. Audience delighted.
