ANNOUNCEMENT!

DAVIDSON FRUIT CO.

We wish to thank our many customers for their patronage and support which enabled us to make last season's business the largest since our organization. We intend to protect your interests in the future in every way possible, and assist in increasing your incomes at the lowest possible cost. Our experience proves that we profit only by helping you to produce your crops at the minimum cost, and market them at remunerative prices. With this object in view we have arranged for supplying a full line of consisting of Plows, Cultivators, Harrows and Garden tools of the Parlin & Orendorf Co., the Planet Jr. and Iron Age lines, Kimball Orchard Cultivator, etc.

Garden and Farm Tools

Studebaker Wagons

We have ordered another carload to arrive before March 1, and will be able to sell at Portland prices and to guarantee the goods.

Fertilizers and Land Plasters

We have been making a study of the requirements of farmers and fruit growers in this line, and we handle the goods in carload lots at prices that will make you money.

Spray Pumps

The satisfactory service given by the Gould line of Spray Pumps known as the Pomona, Fruitall and Sentinel, jr., is evidence of their superiority, and we will continue furnishing them until we find something better or as good at lower prices.

Fruit Boxes

Our BOX FACTORY has a capacity much in excess of the present demands of this section, and our experience in handling fruit enables us to turn out substantial and satisfactory boxes, and we wish to know what the requirements will be early in the season, so we can arrange for a full supply of lumber and have it on the ground in advance of the time it is needed.

Marketing

We have business arrangements with the strongest and most reliable houses in the principal fruit markets which consume our fruits at good prices, and our knowledge and experience in grading and packing enables us to market good stock at extremely fancy prices, therefore we are competent to solicit this class of business, knowing that we can do you good.

We have built up our business by helping to lessen the cost of production, improve the quality of the fruit, and add to the value by proper marketing. These are our obligations to our customers, and we will continue to serve those who are in the business for profit.

Wishing You all

a prosperous year, and soliciting your business in our lines, we are, YOUR SERVANTS,

First Mention of Hood River.

The Glacier of December 17, 1903, contained an extract from "Ten Years in Oregon," published in 1844 by Daniel Lee and J. H. Frost, the first Oregon missionaries. The article was thought to be the first mention of Hood River, but Dr. C. F. Newcomb, a former resident of Hood River but now of Victoria, sends the following communication, which shows Lewis and Clark to have made mention of our country as early as 1805, or 99 years ago. Dr. Newcomb's letter is as follows:

Victoria, B. C., January 1, 1904.—Editor of the Glacier: A short time ago I saw in the Glacier a reference to an early notice of Hood River, which, I think, was claimed as the first on record.

Some years ago the late Dr. Elliot Cones, a well known scientific author, edited an edition of Lewis and Clark's travels, a book which is especially interesting just now, in view of the approach-the terminus of the Northern Pacific railroad 5,000 acres of land in the vicinity of the city, worth $280,000, 830 city lots, worth $212,000, and $257,000 in coin and city bonds.

Anna Eliza Young, 17th wife of Brigham Young, had left his bed and board.

John Hipple alias J. H. Mitchell had applied to the county court of Multnomah county to have his name changed so that the alias might be the true name.

A pamphlet written by W. L. Adams was attracting considerable attention and winning much favorable comment from the Eastern press. It was entitled "Oregon as It Is: Its Present and Future," in which he answered many questions as to the resources and advantages of the state.

"Amos Underwood," this old paper says, "living in Washington territory, four miles below The Dalles, amused his four-year-old boy last week by giving him some matches to play with. The little fellow soon had a splendid bonfire, but Mr. Underwood is minus a shelter for his cattle and several tons of hay. Loss, $1,200."

Rev. Condon delivered an oration at Eight Mile, on the Fourth, and Colonel Humason orated at Hood River.

In the Land of Sunshine and Oranges.

Phoenix, Arizona, Jan. 16, 1904.—Editor of the Glacier: Please send our Glacier to Phoenix, Scottsdale R. F. D. We are lonesome without the home news.

We know every one in our camp of 23 people, of whom the Glacier is the only kind. We are camped 6 1/2 miles east of Phoenix, near the irrigation canal and at the edge of the desert. Every day here is as warm as our average summer day in Hood River. The nights are cool but not uncomfortable. It is very pleasant living in a tent, the way all the tents are fixed here; just like a house covered with canvas. There are 12 tents in our camp, and every one has a horse and buggy. We moved out here on Christmas day and celebrated the day by putting up our tent, and it was so warm the perspiration rolled off without coat or vest.

I am feeling fine since we came here; in fact, I am the strong man among the growers. The orange crop was at its best when we arrived, but most all gathered now except the late fruit. We drove up the canal to an orchard, the other evening, and got oranges for 10 cents a dozen. Chinese vegetable wagons come to our door every other day with fresh vegetables of all kinds. We are on a mail route, so get our mail every day.

Hot Shots at the Devil.

Hood River, January 25, 1904.—Editor of the Glacier: In last week's Glacier appeared a scurrilous attack upon the citizens of Hood River from an old Frankton meeting defeated an attempt to saddle upon the district a special road tax; which was soon broadcast through the columns of the Glacier, and fairness ought to concede the privilege of replying through the same medium.

Your reporter frothed and foamed at the mouth in his frantic endeavor to intimidate others and myself in particular by a far fetched play upon words intended to spell out "verminous." Equally foolish would have been the statement that my course in the Frankton meeting caused a bluish confusion to mount the cheeks of my fair Alma Mater, for more than 30 years ago I received the degree of Bachelor of Arts from an old and famous college in the South. I learned long ago from my observation of men that criticism of this baser sort does not require any brains. I have no desire to pick your reporter's bones for two reasons. The first is a desire to resemble in one respect, the eagle, Columbia's proud bird, which was never known to prey upon carrion. The second is that the animus of the attack shows signs of a mind still bound with swaddlingclothes. "Lose him and let him go."

There is a tissue of inaccurate statements from beginning to end, some of which I will correct. My tax would have been $3.40 instead of $1.25 as reported. It makes no figure whether it be 15 cents or $100. I have an equal right to oppose the provision of this road law, which like the devil fish, brox on its feelers in every direction to pick a money from the withered bottom of toil for the benefit of a few self-styled "progressive" gentlemen. It was intimated at the meeting that this provision of the law was unsatisfactory and "revolting" as it was and unfair application which might result in an expensive grant. It was well understood, also, that the initial point at which the road to be improved begins must be located and that the improvement must be completed at the road building proceeds. Thus why all this foolish chatter about applying tax money to the improvement of all the roads in the district.

Re-elected Member Board of Directors Hood River Apple Growers' Union.

ing exposition at Portland. In a footnote below is the following description, in which Dr. Cones identifies the place spoken of with Hood River, and your readers can judge for themselves if he is right.

After passing Menalouse island, called Sepulcher island by the explorers, from the circumstance of its having several square vaults on it, Captain Lewis goes on to say: "The river now widens, and in three miles we came to two more houses on the right, one mile beyond which is a rocky island in a bend of the river toward the left. Within the next six miles we passed 14 huts of Indians scattered on the right bank, and then reached the entrance of a river on the left, which we called Labiches river, after one of our party. Just above this river is a low ground more thickly timbered than usual, and in front are four huts of Indians on the bank, which are the first we have seen on that side of the river."

Next follows a short notice of White Salmon river, which was called Canoe river on account of the large number of canoes seen in it; the Indians being hard at work fishing at this time. A mile lower down (below Hood River that is) a river on the right north bank was noticed, and, opposite to it was a large sandbar, which contained four miles along the left side of the Columbia river, below which was a beautiful cascade on the left, falling over a precipice of rock one hundred feet in height.

The date of the entry was October 29, 1805. WACOMITE.

An Old Newspaper.

D. A. Turner has an old copy of the Weekly Oregonian of July 19, 1873, which he kindly loaned to the Glacier for perusal. This old paper of 31 years ago makes interesting reading today. W. Lair Hill was the editor, one of the brightest writers that ever wielded an editorial pen in Oregon. H. W. Scott was then editor of Ben Holladay's Bulletin and friendly to J. H. Mitchell, who, in 1872, was elected United States senator by the Holladay faction of the republican party. Both the Oregonian and Bulletin were straight-out republican organs, but the war between the two factions of the party was more bitter than it has ever been since. The Oregonian represented the Corbett wing of the party and the Bulletin the Ben Holladay crowd. The editorials and correspondence in this old paper breathe a spirit of intense hatred towards H. W. Scott and J. H. Mitchell. The democratic party in the state then, as now, was regarded as a side issue hardly worth considering, though it elected

Colonel Nesmith to congress at the special election in 1873. We condense a few items from the news columns of this old paper:

L. E. Grover was governor of Oregon and had ordered a special election for congressman, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Joseph G. Wilson. Mr. Wilson was the father of Attorney Fred Wilson of The Dalles.

The Modoc Indians were on trial for the murder of General Canby. Speeches are given by Captain Jack, Shucknasty Jim, Steamboat Frank, Bear Face Charlie and others.

Mt. Hood Lumber Company

The spirit of the meeting was for good roads, not swash trails, but the clammy provision of the law and the burden of taxation already too heavily dominated the meeting and not the moss-backs, which cannot survive in our progressive valley. In my remarks I said that if any person wished to establish a beer garden or the lumber companies are not satisfied with the present condition of the state road, let them go to work and make it better. Let the same be said about the swash trails, the way all the tents are fixed here; just like a house covered with canvas. There are 12 tents in our camp, and every one has a horse and buggy. We moved out here on Christmas day and celebrated the day by putting up our tent, and it was so warm the perspiration rolled off without coat or vest.

and on a little headboard that marks the spot is written these words: "Sacred to the memory of our first born, the rag baby." The devil tempts all men; but, it seems, a "verdant" man tempts the devil.

finding it such a reliable remedy for colds and croup, we have never been without it in the house since that time. We have five children and have given it to all of them with good results. One good feature of this remedy is that it is not disagreeable to take and our babies like it. Another is that it is not dangerous, and there is no risk from giving an overdose. I congratulate you upon the success of your remedy." For sale by all druggists.

Found a Cure for Indigestion. I use Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver tablets for indigestion and find that they suit my case better than any dyspepsia remedy I have ever tried and I have used many different remedies. I am nearly 51 years of age and have suffered a great deal from indigestion. I can eat almost anything I want to now.

Congratulations. John M. Callom, editor of the Garland, Texas, News, has written a letter of congratulations to the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as follows: "Sixteen years ago, when our first child was a baby, he was subject to croupy spells and we would be very uneasy about him. We began using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in 1887, and
