

Hood River Glacier

THURSDAY, MARCH 24, 1904.

Forest Grove has civic improvement society, which held its annual meeting recently. Our old-time friend, Colonel Harry Haynes, was re-elected president of the society. A report from the secretary called attention to the vastly improved appearance of the city since the society was organized two years ago. Much of it was due to the influence of the society. Old barns and fences had been removed, houses painted, lawns improved, the cows shut up, and the general appearance of the city made far more attractive. Hood River plans to organize a society to work on similar lines. A society of this character can help the city council in many ways, and it is not too late to organize for effective work in time to clean up before the grand rush of visitors comes next summer.

The University of Oregon Bulletin No. 3 is just out. Its leading article is entitled "Water Power on the McKenzie River," and contains a full report of the hydrographic survey conducted last summer by the engineering department of the university. The opening paragraphs of the report set forth the policy of the university in undertaking the task of gathering accurate and impartial data respecting the undeveloped industrial resources of the state. This survey marks the beginning of that policy, and it is expected that work of this kind will be continued from year to year, as the funds permit.

The delegates to the state and congressional conventions are: T. H. Johnston, H. C. Rooper, William Reese, J. E. Kennedy, J. C. Johnson, F. H. Button, E. L. Smith, J. H. Worsley, F. H. Hendricks, A. E. Lake, A. S. Roberts, Henry L. Kuck. H. L. Kuck was re-elected chairman of the Wasco county central committee.

John Leland Henderson was re-elected chairman from East Hood River precinct; E. Locke was made committeeman for West Hood River, and G. R. Castner for South Hood River.

A convention where harmony and good-fellowship prevailed as was manifested in the gathering of Wasco county republicans at The Dalles, Tuesday of this week, hasn't been heard of in this neck of the woods for so long, these many campaigns. While many of the nominations were made by acclamation, there was no "slate." Many of the offices had been practically conceded to some of the candidates by virtue of eminent fitness long before the convention took place, while wherever it was necessary to determine upon candidates the result left no ill feeling.

Hood River asked for nothing but a member of the legislature, and for this position, Hon. A. A. Jayne has been named. The nomination was entirely unopposed by Mr. Jayne, but the enthusiasm manifested when his name was presented to the convention shows he is not a stranger among Wasco county republicans.

MORNING SESSION. Ten o'clock was the hour set for opening the convention, but the delegates shortly wended their way toward the court house, stood in groups on the sidewalk, discussing the weather and the candidates, and it was 10:30 before H. L. Kuck, chairman of the county central committee, rapped for order and announced that the convention would be in order. Within 20 minutes all preliminary work had been accomplished and the delegates were again on the streets.

Mr. Vogt, secretary of the county central committee, received the credentials from the delegates. Albert S. Roberts of Trevit precinct was named for temporary chairman by N. Whealdon. The secretary was instructed to cast the ballot of the convention for temporary chairman, as was done for each officer of the morning organization.

Mr. Whealdon was appointed by Chairman Kuck to conduct Mr. Roberts to the chair. Whealdon called for an assistant, and Frank Button was appointed for this duty. The secretary's function was performed with much dignity, while a good-natured laugh and generous applause spread among the delegates. Mr. Roberts thanked the delegates for the honor conferred upon him, pulled from his pocket a copy of Roberts' rules of order and proceeded with the order of business at hand.

H. R. Hendricks of Cascade Locks named Howard Isenberg for temporary secretary. Later, George Cooper of East Dalles was made assistant secretary. Motions were made for the customary committees, and Chairman Roberts named the following: Credentials—M. McInnis, W. J. Davidson, William Reese, G. R. Wood, Chris Detman. Permanent Organization and Order of Business—J. H. Worsley, J. H. Woodcock, J. N. Burgess, C. H. Southern, M. Waterman.

Resolutions—T. H. Johnston, C. L. Phillips, C. G. Roberts, H. W. French, H. C. Rooper. AFTERNOON SESSION. The afternoon session convened at 2:30. Secretary Isenberg read the reports as submitted by the various committees, which reports were adopted as a record. Twelve delegates to the state and congressional conventions were named, when nominations were in order for members of the legislature and the various county offices. T. H. Johnston of Dufur named N. Wheeland of The Dalles for state Senator; H. C. Rooper of Antelope presented the name of J. N. Burgess, and E. N. Blythe of Hood River that of A. A. Jayne for representatives. The nominations were all made by acclamation. The nominees came forward after urgent requests and delivered themselves of felicitous speeches.

John Leland Henderson of Hood River, with a few short and well worded remarks, named his friend A. E. Lake for county judge. In less than 60 seconds Mr. Lake was thanking the convention for the nomination. When it came to clerk, Glen Allen of The Dalles named Simon Bolton. Milton Anderson of Dufur immediately endorsed the floor to say that if things continued as they were going, it would look too much like a cut-and-dried affair. He also believed the people of Mosier deserved some recognition, so he put forward the name of Alexander Stewart for clerk. When a ballot had been taken, 99 of the votes were for Bolton and 8 for Stewart.

The nomination for sheriff was now in order, and here came the first real contest of the convention. F. C. Sexton, the present incumbent, was named, as was Levy Christman, both of The Dalles. A ballot was taken, with 58 votes for Sexton and 48 for Christman. It required two ballots to decide for assessor. A. C. Moad offered the name
