

DALLES RUBS IT IN 20 TO 1

The next game will be with the Vancouver team Sunday. Last Sunday's game? You don't want to hear about it, do you? The Glacier won't say anything about it. The Dalles rubbed it in good and hard and that's enough. It was a pitiable sight to see. Veteran players fumbled and stumbled and made wild throws till the heart of every Hood River fan ached ready to break. At no stage of the game were the locals in the running. To speak plainly, the boys were rattled and the playing was rank. The fact that the visitors had augmented their nine by the addition of three or four men from the Portland Browns, seemed to unstring the nerves of the Hood River boys. They never got over the agony. The Dalles team took a flying start and scored four runs in the first inning. Dunbar's tossup went high in the sky and in the next minute Brough found a safe one that took him to second. The Hood River pitcher walked two men and the bases were full. Schmeer stepped up for a smash to the left field. The ball was fielded in an agonizing manner and lammed through to first with the wildest sort of a throw. Mahan finally got it and nearly killed three spectators as the ball to the catcher. During the melee, two men trotted leisurely over the home plate. A bungle to Dunbar, compiled with more errors at first and second, let two more men into home, and the Hood River fans groaned. Sheets got a grounder out to Williams and died at first. Haynes swung his stick through the zone without resistance, and sat down. Castner placed a fly into the hands of Schmeer, and the second inning began. Ball drew first base on balls and then finished his trot around the ring while the locals were trying to tie up with the horseshoe spher. Mahaffey's terrific line drive landed safely in Dunbar's hands, and the bleachers cheered, but the visitors ended the inning with another run to their credit. Adkins fanned. Martin got out to first and Black started him for second. Mahan walked to the bat and it looked as if Hood River was about to wake up. Not so. Another goose egg was chalked on the score board. Drubot got safely to first and the next moment Schmeer drove the ball over the left field fence and two men tallied. Williams pounded Dunbar for a safe hit and the score doubled with a dull sickening thud. The locals never reached first, and shortly after The Dalles took another try. A little side show in which Private Benson of Co. B and Deputy Sheriff Olinger took a leading part, drew the greater attraction for a few minutes. It doesn't require much to start trouble at a base ball game between Hood River and The Dalles, and had it not been for the cool work of Manager Early and one or two others, there would most certainly have been bloodshed Sunday. Just enough liquor had been distributed to make some of the boys feel reckless. Benson in a fit of excitement drew his gun on Charlie Castner. Sheriff Olinger was at hand and immediately placed Benson under arrest. As the soldier was removed from the field, some of his comrades took it into their heads that Olinger had no right with Benson in his custody. They made a rush for the gate with whiskey on the brain and blood in their eyes. They were quieted none too soon and the game went on. Benson was shortly after released. In the fifth inning, Castner drew forth a two bagger. Martin brought him home for Hood River's only score.

Hood River got to third in the last half of the ninth inning, about the only time after Mahan reached that safe. The W. W. M. Co. players went on with their established record of making four or five scores at a clip, clear to the end of the game. Everybody was glad when the time was up. Sunday's game seemed to be as fatal on the players as on the Hood River spectators. More men were hurt than during all the preceding games. Black smashed his fingers early in the mainline and Thorpe went in in his stead. Mahaffey in a mixup at first base, broke his thumb bone square in two. Several others received more or less serious injuries. There is a little consolation in the fact that The Dalles paid some good hard cash for their victory. Four or five of the players belong to the Portland Browns. The Dalles laid for Hood River and won out. There is no use to complain at how they did it. The game has been played and lost. One thing most certain, had the home team kept up its confidence and hung together the defeat would have been less overwhelming. Had the boys played like they can play, The Dalles would have no victory to crow over. The steamer Regulator brought about 300 excursionists from The Dalles, including 40 members of Co. D. Another hundred came down on the train and an equal number were up from the Cascade Locks and Stevenson, coming on the Maja and the Sadie B. The crowd at the game was the largest of the year. The score as kept by C. U. Dakin, shows the following record of the game: noon game. Frank Chandler, one of Hood River's most enthusiastic base ball fans, declared the game Saturday afternoon was the best played in Hood River this summer. The score speaks for itself—4 to 5 in favor of the Hood River youths. The Dalles boys played well but not well enough. A crowd of about 150 saw the game. The boys deserved more, but what the crowd lacked in size, it made up in cheers and enthusiasm for the home team. The good playing was warmly applauded, and all declare this was a first class game. Hood River— 2 0 0 0 0 0 3 5 The Dalles— 0 0 2 0 0 0 3 0 4 Burglar Gives a Bond for $500. Deputy Sheriff J. C. Snyder, Friday afternoon, made a neat capture of a burglar, who entered the residence of John Woodhill, on Sherman avenue, just back of E. T. Winans' house, early that morning. The man had waked the inmates of the house, but put up such a smooth talk about wandering around while drunk that Mr. Woodhill let him go. Meeting Snyder the next day, he told him the incident, and wanted to know if anything could be done in the matter. Snyder took a description of the burglar and in a few hours had him under arrest. The man gave his name as Tom Parks, and said he was a poker dealer in Blazier's saloon in Portland. He was given a preliminary hearing Saturday afternoon before Recorder Nickelson, when he did not deny being in the house of Woodhill, but said he was intoxicated at the time. The judge did up his confidence and bung together the defeat would have been less overwhelming. Had the boys played like they can play, The Dalles would have no victory to crow over. The steamer Regulator brought about 300 excursionists from The Dalles, including 40 members of Co. D.
