

FRUIT CULTURE HERE IN OREGON

Following is the article on fruit culture, occupying a prominent place in the recent edition of the O. R. & N. A. book-let on Oregon, Washington, Idaho and their Resources. The data was prepared by E. H. Hall, the advertising agent of this enterprising road.

Willamette valley being the section largely devoted to this fruit. The quotations show that the Oregon prune has an established place in the markets of the world. Every year dealers come to the Pacific coast to buy prunes, and, as a general thing, after looking over the markets in Oregon and California, buy in Oregon, declaring the fruit to be superior in every respect.

Especially in the case of Lumber. Charles E. Sawyer, representing the Oregon Timberman, spent Thursday and Friday gathering sawmill notes in the Hood River country. Mr. Sawyer tells the glacier that from the sawmill men with whom he has conversed during the past week or so he has come to the opinion that there will be a rise in the price of lumber before long.
