MISS OLINGER KEEPS WELL IN THE LEAD

The voting contest for the world's fair night is scheduled to close Saturday night at 9 o'clock. The tickets were practically all disposed of by the first of this week, although by Tuesday night less than 65,000 had been voted. This means that 60,000 remain in the hands of the voters.

The contest for the last three weeks has narrowed to three contestants, Miss Olinger, Miss Cramer and Miss Richardson. Miss Olinger began early in the contest to lead the list, and the last vote shows her well in the lead. There are sufficient ballots in the hands of voters to make impossible any forecast of the result.

Each of the three contestants well deserves the honor of a free trip to the world's fair at St. Louis, and it's really too bad all three can't go.

The contest has been a success from the start. While it means a three or four-hundred per cent expense on all sales, the applicants declare they have done well by the sale of the coupons. One applicant declares sales farmers came in and paid up notes two and three months before they were due in order to secure the coupons. One man in town paid $75 in advance on his grocery bill.

The high rush of votes is not expected before Saturday, when the suspense will be over with the announcement of the vote at 9 o'clock, Saturday night, Tuesday's vote:

Yesterday's ballot.	Total.
Mella Olinger.....37	22,781
Laura Cramer.....129	19,336
Richard Richardson.....515	17,301

Bulldogs Wallop Odell.

The invincible Bull Dogs went out to Odell last Saturday and "walloped" the stuffin' out of the boys from that neighborhood. When the game was finished the score showed 18 runs for the town boys and 6 runs for the home nine. The boys are said to have put up splendid ball. Brosius did the catching, while "Puss" Geyer twirled the horse-hair. Every one of the boys went in to win, and win they did. Ten strikeouts are recorded against the Odell nine, and for against the Bull Dogs.

The lineup:

W. R. C. Serve Dinner To Post.

The W. R. C. at their meeting Saturday, called in the members of Canby post, and together sat down to a bounteous repast furnished by the ladies. Coffee and beans and cake with other good things were highly relished. Presiding the dinner, Mrs. Goddard sang with piano accompaniment, the "Battle of Gettysburg." This is an old piece of music, but the song was new to most of the veterans present. They were delighted with its rendition. Mrs. Goddard also gave a recitation, "The Yankee," which was rendered in her usual masterly manner. M. P. Isenberg, who had been selected to return thanks to the corps for favors received, gracefully carried out his part of the program.

O. L. Stranahan rendered an account of his trip to Boston, and cited many incidents showing the patriotism and hospitality of the good people of Boston.

TEACHERS TO FORM PRINCIPAL'S CLUB.

The teachers of Wasco county holding the positions of principals have been called to meet in the rooms of the high school at Hood River, at 1 o'clock on the afternoon of Saturday, October 8, for the purpose of organizing a principal's club.

County School Superintendent J. T. Neff was down from The Dalles Tuesday afternoon and arranged with Professor Wiley of the Hood River schools for the date of the meeting. There are other organizations of this nature in several of the counties of the state, but this is the first movement of its kind in Wasco county.

All school teachers of the county are invited to attend this meeting, when there will be discussions on the subject, "The Recitation."

There are 12 principals of schools in Wasco county distributed as follows:
The Dalles—Two, superintendent of school and principal of the high school.
Hood River valley—Six, city school, Frankton, Barrett, Pine Grove, Odell and Mount Hood.
Cascade Locks.
Tsyh Ridge.
Antelope.

School Enrollment Increases Daily.

The enrollment of the Hood River public schools increases daily, and is now near the 425 mark. Two new instructors have been employed and will begin Monday with work in the new school house on the hill.

The two additional teachers make the total number of instructors eleven. The new teachers are Miss Burlingame of Oklahoma, who comes highly recommended by Professor Crouse, and Miss Bogard, who is well known in Hood River.

The directors last week placed an order for 150 additional seats. The school district has also secured the Prather library, which gives the school, with the 500 volumes it already had a library of 1200 books.

Shooting Scrape At Mosier.

As the result of a long-standing feud, S. E. Fisher was shot in the back of the head by his neighbor, James Brown, a week ago Sunday night. Both men are now near 70 years old. The birdshot made only scalp wounds, and the old man was not seriously hurt. Dr. Brosius was called from Hood River and dressed the wounds. No arrests were made.

The quarrel is understood to arise over the location of the boundary line between the two farms. Brown's horses got into Fisher's field and when Fisher attempted to drive them out Brown, it is said, stopped the operations with a shotgun.

Monday afternoon District Attorney Menefee filed information in the circuit court against James Brown, charging him with assault with a dangerous weapon on the person of Samuel E. Fisher, at Mosier, Sunday September 18.

It is said of Fisher that after the shot were extracted from his scalp, he remarked that the shooting was a cowardly trick. "There the old man lay in the brush until I had emptied all my shells

URGES THE WEARY TOILERS TO GO WEST

Rev. Arthur Cushing Dill, D. D., until recently pastor of the First Congregational church, Niagara Falls, accompanied by Mrs. Dill, spent last Saturday in Hood River. Rev. Dr. Dill is making a tour of the Pacific coast, and while visiting the bounding West is entertaining the people of his home town with descriptions of the country published in the Niagara newspapers.

Rev. Dr. Dill went for a drive through the valley Saturday morning. He was enchanted by the beauties of the magnificent scenery to be viewed here, and while he had always considered New York the lovelier spot, he declared he never saw fruit to equal the apples that hang in great clusters on the trees in the Hood River orchards. In his next letter he proposes to explain the question asked in New York—why it was that during the holidays of 1903, Oregon Yellow Newtown Pippins sold in London for $2.50 a bushel, netting the producer $2.25 a box, while the best and finest apples raised in other regions sold only for $2 and $2.25.

In a recent letter to the Cataract Journal of Niagara Falls, Rev. Dr. Dill, in urging people to leave the crowded East for the West says:

"Oregon is sure to grow. Your energy will be not unduly taxed. The power city beside the rushing cataract will overflow her banks with great industries and factory life till the rush of city life more and more wears and tears the nerves to painful reaction. Oh, that some word of mine might win from the unhealthy life of a city tenement, where pale-faced children and pulseless wives with sickly faces greet at night the still paler disheartened toiler in the hand-to-mouth struggle for bread and rent, to come out to this land of sunshine, of free land, of good natured abundance, of health, of happiness, a wealth more golden than the yellow metal so abundantly scattered throughout the state, to an enjoyment of life which seems to be the possession of every one out here.

"Oregon is the largest of the Pacific states, with only 900,000 population upon its 61,459,200 acres, covering its 99,000 square miles. Were it so thickly populated as Rhode Island it could care for its people better than New England, for there this would give to Oregon a population of 40,000,000.

"Sunshine and soil explain all. Rich, fertile, mellow, wondrously productive soil underneath in abundance for all; while above, overhead, around about you everywhere you wade through it, breathing and drinking it in, wondrous sunshine every day and all day long. Life out here, so to speak, is in the open outside of doors. Few are hurried, none have impressed me as worried. It has been a very hot summer. The old timers speak of it as "a scorcher," the hottest they have known, and yet horses and their colts choose out of preference to stand in the sun or lie down in it when shade trees are not ten feet away. This is true, though the thermometer might register 129 degrees.

"The air is pure and dry. There is oxygen in it. We have no dew, under a board upon the ground you will find it dry. From June to September it does not rain east of the Cascade range, which runs through the state from north to south about 100 to 150 miles from the Pacific coast. As Oregon is 300 miles wide and 230 miles from north to south you readily see the extent of the rainless region. Yet that very region without rain will produce two and three crops of alfalfa.

The writer then proceeds to tell of the large wheat yields of Eastern Oregon, and says he is on his way to Hood River, the pomological paradise, at the base of Mount Hood, of whose fruits and beauties he will write later.
