The results of the wel directed efforts of our enterprising East Siders is a valuable object lesson to every road district in the valley. There is no other improvement public or private which so enhances the value of our farms as a perfect road. No matter what state of cultivation we may attain in the operation of our ranches, or we have to offer to the market, our holdings will always be placed on the "undesirable" list by prospective purchasers if they should be compelled to haul these products over swampy, rocky,ill-kept roads; nor can we take the pride in, or derive the comfort from our rural homes when obliged to use the perfection or value of the products our rural homes when obliged to use ceeded the legal limit, and when that such roads as we can with a smooth, firm highway to drive over as that being built special to the Glacier. Underwood, Wash., Jan. 3 — There was quite a little excitement among the workers on the new road last week when they began to unearth Indian relics. Billy Wheeler uncovered perfect bowl, hammers and other pieces of stone the Indians had used. A skeleton and parts of a skeleton were found. Harry Olsen found the largest number of relics.

Amos Underwood was in the city Monday and gave some later informa-tion regarding the finding of Indian relics and skeletons. He says workmen on the new grade from his store to the bridge over the White Salmon unearthed the skeletons, of which there were four. None of the Indians have any recollections of the burial of the bodies at that point, and from this fact Uncle Amos beleives the bones to have lain buried here for a century or more.

Linderwood states that among the relics found was a mortar and pestle. The mortar was unusually large, having a bowl twice the size of a man's hat. This should be quite valuable.

Underwood considered it nothing more than right that the skeletons of the dead Indians should rest in peace, and he directed that they be buried again. The graves were all found within a space of 15 feet, under a foot or so of ground. No arrow points were of ground. No arrow points were and counseled that the saloons remain found with the bones.

The finances of the Congregational church of this city are in very good condition. Something over $1100 was raised during the year 1904. A few outstanding bills are to be met, but the sum is small. Had all subscriptions been collected during the last quarter December has been a peculiar month, with not a clear day in it. There were but 10 partly cloudy days and 21 cloudy. There were 19 days on which .01 of an inch or more moisture fell, the greatest precipitation was 1.14 inches on the 29th. The first snow fell on the 9th, 1½ inches, the next, on the 23d when ½-inch of snow fell. Total moisture for month, 6.06 inches including the snow. There was a light fall of sleet on the 22d and again on the 28th and 29th, but not enough to do any damage.
