MOUNT HOOD

White Salmon

CORRESPONDENCE.

ODELL.

The egg that could not hatch. Dear Sir: It is the egg of a Ochlockonee hen that hatches itself. She is the only chicken I ever had that hatched its own egg. The eggs were laid in our henhouse, and she had them for some time. At last they were hatched, and she had the babies. She was very pretty, and her eggs were large and white. She used to lay them two at a time, and the babies would come out at once. She was very clever, and she could do anything she liked. She used to lay eggs in the morning, and she would come out at night to get them. She was very useful, and she could do anything she liked. She was very clever, and she could do anything she liked. She was very useful, and she could do anything she liked.
