PLENTY WATER 10,000 PEOPLE

The city's spring on the Tucker farm, as gauged by engineer W. J. Roberts of Pullman, Wash., shows a flow of 1,000,000 gallons in 24 hours, or a supply sufficient for a city of 10,000 population.

Engineer Roberts was present at the council meeting Monday night and made this informal report. The distance as surveyed, from the spring to the street intersection near the Ideal market is 29,360 feet, and the fall in that distance is 75.5 feet. It is estimated that a 14-inch pipe will be required for about 22,000 feet and a 12-inch pipe for the remaining distance.

The location of the reservoir is under construction, and Engineer Roberts is at work upon the proposed distribution system. As soon as the plans and estimates are submitted to the council it is proposed to call an election to see whether the citizens wish to secure a muncipal water system.

But little business was transacted Monday night, besides the allowing of some bills and the receiving of Engineer Roberts' report. Mr. Roberts has been secured by the water committee of the council to find out about what the proposed city water system will cost, in order that the taxpayers may have an intelligent conception of the question when voting on the proposition of bonding to secure city water.

McDonald reported for the street committee that he had gone over the city with the street commissioner and ordered about 100 loads of gravel distributed at the crossings and at points along the street leading in from the country.

Recorded Nickelsen made complaint that a number of drunken men in the old Chinese wash house near his implement wareroom raised a big disturbance every night, and that he feared they might be the cause of a serious fire in that end of the city. McDonald thought the marshal should look after the matter.

Bill were ordered paid as follows:

Is a Local Institution.

A first-class chef has been secured by the management of the Country Club Inn, and it is the intention to have this splendidly equipped resort ready for guests in a few days. The number of Portland visitors and Eastern tourists who are expected at the Country Club Inn this summer will be larger than ever.

Nestling among a grove of large oaks and seemingly set apart from the busy whirl of the business world, yet but a few moments walk from the depot, the Inn offers decided attractions for the business man and his family from the city. Hood River has long been known as a beautiful summer resort, but in the mad rush of commercialism, this factor in the country's resources has been rather slighted of recent years. Being within but a few hours' ride from Portland, Hood River is one of the most conveinent and beautiful outing places in the state.

Mr. Batchelder regrets that the people of Hood River have not accepted the Country Club Inn in the spirit of a local institution. The supplies for the hotel are all secured here and the summer hotel is the means of bringing many influential persons to Hood River, who will tell of the recources of the country to their friends, and in this way the city has returned to it many beneficial results.

Mr. Batchelder has spent large sums of money in advertising Hood River and in Portland he has many people questioning him daily about this wonderful fruit country. The O. R. & N. last year pictured the Country Club Inn in their annual book of summer resorts. When the fact becomes more thoroughly advertised abroad that this city has every convenience for a summer outing, many people from the cities will make annual visits to Hood River.

New Box Factory Machinery.

The new band saw at the box factory of the Davidson Fruit Co. is certainly a hummer. This new piece of machinery does away with two other machines, in addition to reducing the number of operators, increasing the rapidity of production and making crates cost the grower less.

An inch board is sliced into halves; run through again and comes out in quarter-inch thicknesses. A boy receives the thin slices of wood as they come from the saw.

Another interesting sight is the machine which gouges out the hand holds in the ends of the berry crates. The wood used in the construction of the crates is larch and white fir. Both are very fine quality, and give off no odor of pitch which the fruit is likely to retain when packed in boxes made of such lumber as pine.

The box factory is turning out about 75,000 crates this summer. The growers are hauling out the crates at a rapid rate these days. A reduction was made to the farmers who wanted to purchase crates in knock-down condition, but many of the growers have concluded it is decidedly easier to have the crates nailed up at the factory, and will buy them that way hereafter.

Peter Mohr President of Board.

Rev. L. P. Desmarais, pastor of the Catholic church at The Dalles, returned Thursday to Hood River from a missionary tour up the valley. He held services at Peter Mohrs' residence on Wednesday and at Mrs. John Mohr's Thursday morning.

Friday morning Fathre Desmarais held services in the parlors of the Waucoma Hotel. About 40 Catholics presented themselves at these several services for their Easter communion.

Mr. Peter Mohr was elected president of a board of directors to look after the building of a Catholic church at Hood River. Father Desmarais reports great prosperity in the Catholic church cricles though Wasco county. He oganized the League of the Sacred Herat which numbers at pesent 250 members.

Strictly Genuine.

Most of the patent medicine testimonials are probably genuine. The following notice recently appeared in the Atchison (Kan.) Globe: "Joe Tack, a well known engineer, running on the Missouri Pacific between Wichita and Kiowa, lately appeared in a big one with a picture and when he was in this office today, we asked him about it. He says he had terrific pains in his stomach and thought he had cancer. His druggist recommended Kodol and he says it cured him. He recommended it to others who were also cured." Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat and cures all stomach troubles. Sold at Williams' Pharmacy.

Significance of Memorial Day.

William W. Blackmar, commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, has sent out the following order form his Boston headquarters, urging the old soldier to remember Memorial day, which is Tuesday, May 30:

"Killed in yesterday's battle." "Dying in the field hospital." "Badly wounded." "Wounded and in the hands of the enemy."

Forty odd years ago my comrades, we were thus accounting for the rosy-cheeked, bright-eyed, manly boys, darlings of their mothers, who with the elastic step and merry laugh of youth marched by our sides as we bade good-bye to our homes and dear ones and answered "Here am I," to the call of our country, and cherred the sad heart of our God-given Lincoln with the refrain, "We are coming Father Abraham, three hundred thousand strong."

Recall today the hastily delivered message and token from these dying boys as you grimly continued the charge over their bodies or as you sullenly retreated, most reluctantly, leaving them on the field. You have sacredly kept the promise hastily given to your dying messmate: "Yes, Jack, I'll tell your mother." "Sure Joe, your wife shall get your ring and message." "Never doubt, Charlie, your people shall know what a brave soldier you were, how pluckily you died to save your colors."

As you moved carefully among the dead and dying over the battlefield after the fight was over; as you walked through the rude field hospital hopelessly searching for the comrade you saw fall, but could not stop to help, the dear boy who had been your playmate at school, and to the appeal of whose weeping old mother as you marched away you had tossed back the cheering well-meant promise, "I'll take care of Billy." As you steadied yourself, and helped to bear across the deck of the battleship to the cockpit, slippery with the life-blood of your shipmates, the body of the sailor boy with whom you had left home to ship in your country's service.

Did you not promise the dying and God for the dead, that your comrades and their supreme sacrifice never should be forgotten, that their dependent ones should be tenderly and fully cared for? Have you kept that sacred promise? Our glorious Grand Army of the Republic has helped you to keep it. It has collected and helpfully disbursed in relief millions of dollars. It has made possible, kept alive and cherished the sacred memories and friendships of the war. It has established, by the order of one of my honored predecessors, Commander-in-Chief Logan, and given to the world Memorial day on which day you annually redeem your promise to keep green the memory of your comrades by decorating their graves with the fairest flowers of spring, or casting them upon the sea or the rivers which flow from the mountains to mingle with its waters, which are the sailors winding sheet, and by securing the services of your most eloquent and gifted speakers to recount their deeds of self-sacrificing devotion that our country might not be disgraced, dismembered and destroyed, but might live as a nation, the grandest on the face of the globe.

Memorial Day Exercises.

It has been decided by the program committee in charge of the Memorial day exercises, that the members of the Grand Army and the ladies of the Relief Corps shall gather at the K. of P. hall, at 9:30 o'clock, Tuesday morning, May 30. They will march in a body to the county bridge over Hood River, accompanied by the band, from where flowers will be cast upon the waters.

At the bridge there will be some special exercises, and a program as arranged for such occasions by the Grand Army headquarters. After returning from the bridge, there will be short services at the opera house, and those who so desire may arrange to take their lunch with them to the hall.

In the afternoon, teams will be secured to take the Grand Army men and women to Hershey's corner, where a line of march will be formed at 2:30 o'clock, which will proceed to Idlewilde cemetery, where the regular ritual services will be conducted over the graves of dead comrades.

Sunday, May 28, Rev. Chambers of the Episcopal church will deliver a Memorial day sermon in the opera house. The churches of the city will unite in these services, and it has been decided to have a large union choir to furnish music for the occasion.

Regular Schedule on Portage Road.

The portage road around the Celilo rapids is now completed and equipped, and it will be put in operation as soon as the minor details for opening the road can be arranged. There will probably be special observances of the opening day, which will likely be set for sometime next week.

It has not yet been determined who will be in charge of the road. Members of the commission are now conducting correspondence regarding this matter, but are not yet ready to make any announcement. As soon as this step is taken, final arrangements for opening the road will be made at once.

The road will be operated under a regular schedule. The opinion has been generally expressed that trains on the road would run only as the traffic demanded, but it is the present intention of the Portage Railway Commission to establish a regular schecule.

The road is nine miles in length and is well constructed. The equipment of the road consists of one engine, eight flatcars, four boxcars, six stockcars and one combination passenger and baggage coach.

So wonderful was their effect, that in three days I felt like a new man and today I am cured of all my troubles." Guaranteed at C. N. Clarke's drug store; price 50 cents.
