

HE USED TO SET
JOAQUIN'S COPY

"Why, I remember this article when it was first published," remarked John Michell as he picked up a copy of the Glacier last Thursday and glanced at the clipping from the Canyon City Eagle, containing a story of one of the early Oregon newspapers published 40 years ago, and edited by Joaquin Miller.

Michell used to set Joaquin Miller's manuscript when that eccentric man of fame was the Canyon City correspondent for The Dalles Mountaineer. W. H. Newell was then editor of the Mountaineer, that pioneer of Eastern Oregon journalism which went to the bonanza last summer, and John says the contributions of the old poet became so scarce that Editor Newell was forced to dispense with Joaquin's services as a contributor.

"I was sorry to see the old Mountaineer close down," remarked Mr. Michell. "That paper had many able writers as its editors in the days gone by. Many of the men have since attained literary fame. Among those who at one time furnished copy for the Mountaineer were M. Abrey Auger, later a literary character in California; Henry Miller, who afterward was correspondent for the Alta California, the pioneer journal of the Golden State, Miller died in Mexico, where he went as a correspondent for the Alta. Lieutenant Henry Catlin, one time recorder for the city of The Dalles, edited the Mountaineer, as did W. H. Newell, another able writer.

John Michell was a compositor on the Mountaineer when a boy. Typesetters in those days received two cents per thousand ems. This was in 1865. Sixteen years later Michell became proprietor of the paper. He disposed of the business about ten years ago to John Douthitt.

Michell was apprenticed as a compositor at the age of ten, and served his full four years. He wasn't tall enough to reach the case in the office furnished a candle box on which he stood. They didn't use stools in those days. It wasn't considered that good work could be done while sitting on a stool.

Michell learned the trade at Dodgeville, Wis. He set type for years on the Morning Oregonian, when Sam Blythe was a compositor on Ben Holladay's Bulletin. John says that old Easterbrook, the slowest man in the composing room, made at least $25 a week in those days. John saved his earnings; read Blackstone after closing composition in the mornings, and in three years saved enough money to enable him to complete the law course at Ann Arbor university.

John can relate many interesting incidents of the days of "Salty" Boardman and other old-time printers, who considered they were not accomplishing much unless their night strings measured 12,000 and 14,000 ems. Those old days have gone and so has the Mountaineer. But their memory is dear to those who helped to make the history of Oregon 40 years ago.

Florida Boy in Oregon.
Ocala (Fla.), Star.

Albert Graham, who is sniffing the balsamic odors of the giant fir trees of Hood River, Oregon, will please accept the thanks of the editor of the Star for a late copy of the Oregonian, the leading daily paper of Portland and the state, which contained a very interesting account of the celebration by the Historical Society of the state of the 63rd anniversary of the founding of the state, with other news about the opening of the Lewis and Clark fair June 1. In it was the remarkable statement that of the 2000 merchants who signified their willingness to take space and make an exhibit at the Lewis and Clark fair only five failed to make good their promises.

Albert Anson Graham, the Marion county boy at Hood River, Oregon, sent the Star an illustrated postal card of a grand lake scene in the land of "big red apples and pretty girls" and sends greetings and an invitation to all come over and see and taste yourself. No invitation could be more tempting, but think of the distance and expense attached to the trip.

Just What Everyone Should Do.
Mr. J. T. Barber of Irwinville, Ga., always keeps a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy at hand for instant use. Attacks of colic, cholera morbus and diarrhoea come on so suddenly that there is no time to hunt a doctor or go to the store for medicine. Mr. Barber says: "I have tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy which is one of the best medicines I ever saw. I keep a bottle of it in my room as I have had several attacks of colic and it proved to be the best medicine I ever used. Sold by Williams' Pharmacy."

Willing to Assume the Credit.
Rev. I. D. Driver, known by nearly every one in Oregon, tells a good story on himself. While he was a member of the Oregon legislature some years ago, he was accosted at the Wiamette Hotel in Salem by a man who was very much under the influence of liquor. The man insisted upon heartily shaking hands with Dr. Driver. "Why Dr. Driver, I knew you very well (he) for you converted me over 25 years ago." Mr. Driver answered: "I thought it was some of my work, for I was sure the Lord had nothing to do with it."—Statesman.

JUDGE CALLS JUNE
TERM CIRCUIT COURT

Special to the Glacier.
Hood River, Or., May 31.—Judge Bradehaw has made an order discharging all of the jurymen called for the May term of court subject to the call of the sheriff, and it is expected to call them in and finish up the business of the term some time in June. The postponement was made mainly on account of the Ries case, which the defendant was not ready to try, and the prosecution wanted to avoid having the matter go over to the fall term of court.

The Norman Williams case is now pending on the petition of McGinn for a rehearing in the supreme court. Just how soon the supreme court will take up and pass upon the petition is not known.

People here do not give much credit to the "pipe dream" published last week in a Portland paper concerning depredations in the upper Hood River valley.

Far Prettier Than the Pictures.
"I've read about Hood River and seen a number of Hood River views in the O. R. & N. literature, but after driving out through the valley last week with Mr. Smith, I at once wrote home and told the folks there this country was far prettier than the pictures themselves. The pictures are as pretty as you could find anywhere, but this country is the prettiest I have ever seen," remarked Laud R. Rutherford, a young man here from Minnesota.

Mr. Rutherford reached Spokane last fall, where he has since been associated with Joseph S. Allen in the real estate business. Mr. Allen is a brother of the late John Allen, a former senator of Washington. Mr. Allen and Mr. Smith were old acquaintances.

Mr. Rutherford had had a great deal of experience in the real estate business, but believes he would prefer some business location in the west. He is particularly impressed with this city and valley, and if he can secure a location will settle here.

Should he do so, Mr. Allen of Spokane, his uncle, may also come to Hood River, as he believes this city to have the best future of any section of the Northwest.

He May Have Been James Foss.
The Dalles Chronicle.

James Foss, who was murdered at Mount Hood two weeks ago, left a valuable farm in that neighborhood and that his relatives (if he had any) might be advised of his death and come into their share of his possessions. Sheriff Sexton has communicated with the sheriff of Caledonia county, Minnesota, where Foss was known to have resided. An uncle was found, who directed them to correspond with T. C. Flanagan at Stoughton, Wisconsin, and in the answer received, the brother says: "I had a brother that disappeared entirely from Minnesota some 25 years ago and there is a possibility that he may be the one. His name was John Fligan and he should now be a man between 47 and 50 years old. As this happened when I was a small boy, I cannot give you any particulars about him except that he used to live around Caledonia, Minn., before he disappeared completely." No doubt this man is a brother of the murdered man.

Dr. John McLaughlin's Grave.
Dr. John McLaughlin, who came to Oregon in 1824, was for many years chief factor for the Hudson Bay Co. at fort Vancouver but died under the American flag at Oregon City in 1867. His body lies buried on the brink of the bluff a short distance below the falls in the corner of the Catholic churchyard in the ground he had donated to the church. He is sometimes called the first governor of Oregon. Being that a more imposing marble shaft should donate the resting of this eminent Oregon pioneer, Carson C. Masiker has contributed the following lines to the Glacier:

I made a pilgrimage to the grave,
Where Dr. John McLaughlin
Lies buried in the ground he gave
For the spiritual good of his fellow-men.
And I breathed a sigh o'er the little stone
"Twas for the smallness of its span
That marks unaided and alone,
The resting place of this "grand old man."
As o'er the past my memory ran,
I found my thoughts inclined to rove
To the time the Indians named this man
For the Imperial bird of Jove,
His namesake bird flies o'er his head,
And from above these rocky crests
Looks down upon the lowly bed,
Where the "white headed eagle"
rests.
The early comers to this land,
Often reached here in a state of need;
And many a tattered and worn-out band
Found in this man "a friend indeed."
Yet there were those who did not like him,
And this, too, may be said of Christ;
But for every one that cursed him,
There have been ten who blest him twice.
When this man's time had come to die,
And cease to move in his wanted hills;
"Twas fitting that his form should lie
Within sound of the roaring falls,
Whose music so long had charmed his ears.
In the home where he ended his days;
Dequiling him of his sorrow and tears,
And murmuring still their endless lays.
The cedars of Lebanon nod and wave
"Above his grand and kindly breast,"
His spirit is gone to the God who gave
"A home where weary souls might rest."
Above his brow a memorial stone
That would attract the stranger here
Should mark the spot where Fate has thrown
The dust of this grand old pioneer.
Recite his deeds to men unborn;
Do justice to ourselves today;
Mark well our actions in the morn,
"And fear not for the close of day."
I hope to see when next I land,
To muse upon those rocky crests,
A shaft of pure white marble stand

Couldn't Believe the Pictures.
Wallace's Farmer, a weekly farm journal published at Des Moines, Iowa, contained some Hood River views on the first page of the issue of May 19. The other day Truman Butler, cashier of the Butler & Co. bank, received a copy of the paper from O. L. Burney, a friend of his in Harrisonville, Mo., who wrote to know if the pictures were actual representations.

"I've heard a whole lot about your famous Hood River country," wrote Mr. Burney, "and I want to know if these pictures of your apples and berry fields are really as represented."

One of the pictures was a glimpse of the fruit fair last fall, showing the Redish land display of apples, and the other view a picture of E. S. Benson's strawberry field, which always attracts attention.

Cuban Diarrhoea.
U. S. soldiers who served in Cuba during the Spanish war know what this disease is, and that ordinary remedies have little more effect than so much water. Cuban Diarrhoea is as much as severe and dangerous as a mild attack of cholera. There is one remedy, however, that can always be depended upon as will be seen by the following certificate from Mrs. Minnie Jacobs of Houston, Texas: "I hereby certify that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy cured my husband of a severe attack of Cuban Diarrhoea, which he brought home from Cuba. We had several doctors but they did him no good. One bottle of this remedy cured him. I thank God for so valuable a medicine." For sale by Williams' Pharmacy.
