

EAGERLY AWAIT THE GLACIER'S COMING

"We look for it (the Hood River Glacier) with more pleasure in the reading of it than our own county paper," writes G. E. Pineo, of Benwick, N. S.

Continuing, Mr. Pineo says he hopes to sell out in Nova Scotia and to reach Hood River some time this fall. Mr. Pineo is a brother-in-law of G. D. Woodworth, president of the Apple Growers' union.

"Through your paper," writes Mr. Pineo, "I have become fairly well acquainted with the Hood River country and people, and from the limited idea of the country that I got when I was there a few years ago, Hood River really seems like home to me and my family. Your paper is of very great interest and we look for it with more pleasure in the reading of it than our own county paper."

"I will not go into details, but we have fully made our plans to make our home at Hood River. The only hindrance now is getting our stocks and horses which I am trying to do. There are a number of first-class men here that have got the Oregon fever through my description and your paper as well, which makes its readers so familiar with the country and what is going on there, are a number who are waiting for me to report and they will make their homes in your country. You can record me as one of your subscribers when I get out to your country."

Always Glad to Hear from Home.
Parsons, Kans., May 30, 1905.—Editor Glacier: It makes me feel good that there is one in Hood River that has not forgotten me, as it seems that way when I receive the Glacier and read everything in it even the advertisements. Now please do not get me from this that I am tired of Parsons, for I am not, only it is just the pleasant memories of Hood River.

We have been having a good many rains now and this gives the grass and different vegetables a good fresh look, also a good start.

Today is Decoration day, but the day was nothing to brag of, on account of its being very threatening all day, or up until 5 o'clock at which time it cleared off lovely, and looks as though it would stay clear for at least a while, and we sincerely hope it will.

Strawberries are nearly gone, and other fruit is coming in, namely, blackberries, gooseberries, cherries, etc., which show the advancement of the spring.

The annual G. A. R. encampment met here the 22nd, 23rd, and 24th of this month, but rain nearly two days made it rather unpleasant and kept many home that would otherwise have come, notwithstanding we entertained over 600 people from neighboring towns and cities.

I hear a good many say that they intend to come to Portland for the fair, so expect Portland will have a good many visitors.

Trusting to meet a good many of the readers of the Glacier in Portland this coming year, I am, very truly,
L. D. BLOUNT.

Moving Pictures to Boom Nebraska.

Special to the Glacier.
Portland, Or., May 30.—The state of Nebraska will exploit its resources at the Lewis and Clark exposition by moving pictures. While shows of Nebraska grain and other products will be shown extensively, the state will make a feature of demonstrations by pictures thrown upon a screen, on the principle that "the machine can't lie." The pictures shown, which will be of the morning or living variety, will enable visitors to gain a clear idea as to how farming is carried on in Nebraska. A theater has been built in the agricultural building, and the moving picture shows will be free to all.

Nebraska will feature her corn display at the fair, for the state is a leading corn producer, growing between 60 and 70 varieties of the cereal, more varieties than any other state. Two carloads of corn and wheat grain have been installed in the Nebraska section of the Agricultural building, G. L. Loomis and H. G. Shedd, two of the commissioners, with William James, state superintendent of agriculture, have arrived at Portland, and with the assistance of a corps of trained assistants, are completing the installation of Nebraska's display. The work will be finished this week, and everything will be in readiness on June 1, the opening day.

Nebraska day at the Western world's fair has not been decided upon definitely, but probably it will be August 20, the anniversary of the death of Sergeant John Floyd. Sergeant Floyd, the only member of the Lewis and Clark expedition who died during the more than two years journey to the Pacific, passed away at Dakota City, Nebraska, and was buried on the opposite side of the river, near Sioux City.

Found a Cure for Dyspepsia.
Mrs. S. Lindsay, of Fort William, Ontario, Canada, who has suffered quite a number of years from dyspepsia and great pains in the stomach, was advised by her druggist to take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. She did so and says, "I find that they have done me a great deal of good. I have never had any suffering since I began using them." If troubled with dyspepsia or indigestion who do not take these Tablets, get well and stay well! For sale by Williams Pharmacy.

Woolen Mill Forced to Close.

Pendleton East Oregonian.
Tomorrow afternoon the Pendleton Woolen mills will be closed down and the statement made to employees by Manager Ferguson is that the shutdown will be for an indefinite time. To the East Oregonian Mr. Ferguson stated this morning that owing to the extreme high price of wool at the present time he will manufacture only such goods during the coming season as he receives orders for, and even then he is not desirous of securing any new business. According to him the wool market is now in such a shape that he does not consider it safe to manufacture any more goods than he has actual orders for. First, because he feels that owing to the advanced prices the demand for woolen goods will fall off, and also, because he is afraid of a decline in the market with the stock upon his hands. "Last year the price for scoured wool was in the neighborhood of 62 cents," said he, "while now it is ranging from 65 to 70. Consequently it is necessary to advance the price of the manufactured goods, and this is a difficult matter to do. It would simply be a speculation should I keep the mill going and fill the warehouse with unsold stock as usual, and I am not in a position to plunge."

Just What Everyone Should Do.
Mr. J. T. Barber of Irwinville, Ga.

always keeps a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy at hand for instant use. Attacks of colic, cholera morbus and diarrhoea come on so suddenly that there is no time to hunt a doctor or go to the store for medicine. Mr. Barber says: "I have tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy which is one of the best medicines I ever saw. I keep a bottle of it in my room as I have had several attacks of colic and it proved to be the best medicine I ever used. Sold by Williams Pharmacy."

Fruit Wanted for the Fair.

Rural Northwest.
To the Editor.—Will you kindly publish through the columns of your paper an appeal to the fruit growers of the state for their hearty support of the horticultural exhibit at the Lewis and Clark fair? This is Oregon's opportunity, and we must rise to meet it, or lose all benefit from the large sums of money that have been expended for this purpose. We have a large space to keep filled with fruit and we must have a continuous supply of fruit in season from all parts of the state. The State Commission will pay all express and freight charges on fruit sent for the state exhibit, but we cannot afford to buy the fruit, for it will be readily seen that it would require a very heavy expense; but if each grower will contribute a little the burden will not be felt. The individual and the locality will receive full credit for anything sent in, the same as though it was exhibited in the grower's own county display.

I would suggest that fruit-growing localities call meetings and appoint committees to look after this matter. Let us show the world the finest horticultural display ever seen in any fair.

WILBUR K. NEWELL,
Superintendent of Horticulture.

The matter which Mr. Newell calls attention to is one of great importance. Owing to the fact that nearly every county in Oregon in which fruit growing is an important industry is making a county display, the choice fruits appear likely to be found at the county exhibits to such an extent as to leave the state fruit exhibit in a condition which will be creditable to the state. Mr. Newell was appointed superintendent of the state horticultural exhibit but a few weeks ago.

Prior to that time no one was looking specially after this matter. With the exception of apples, which were secured last fall, and put into cold storage, there is a woeful lack of material for the display. There is very little exhibition jar fruit except what was at St. Louis, and some of that dates clear back to the time of the Chicago exposition. Fruit preserved for exhibition does not improve in appearance with age. In order to keep up a creditable display it will be necessary for Mr. Newell to have a steady supply of the fresh fruits which are in season throughout the time of the fair. The funds which are assigned to him for the fruit display are not sufficient to allow him to purchase his fruit, but are ample to pay express and freight charges.

The space assigned for the fruit exhibit is ample for a fine display. The visitors will naturally expect to find in the fruit display a complete showing of the best that Oregon can do. Without a great amount of judiciously spirited aid on the part of the fruit growers of the state this display will fall far short of what it should be, and none will feel its shortcomings more fully than the fruit growers of Oregon themselves when they come to the fair.

The editor of this paper has personal knowledge of a case where one appeal to the farmers of a county of less than 4000 inhabitants in South Dakota for agricultural productions to be used by a railway company in making exhibitions brought in contributions worth several hundred dollars. The same kind of spirit is needed among fruit growers in Oregon in aid of this fruit exhibit. The horticultural credit of the state is at stake.

We trust that no fruit grower, who might otherwise be generously disposed, will stifle his generosity in giving fruit because he happens to be ignorant of hoglessness in Portland in connection with the fair. The human hog abounds everywhere and comes to the front whenever he has opportunity. The holding of a great fair is always an opportunity for hoglessness to display itself. There are very few of the men who are working takes and charging extra prices when they can who have done anything towards getting up the fair. The majority of the people of Portland gain nothing directly from the fair, but are for the time being out of pocket by reason of it. This paper contributed as much as it felt able towards the fair, but the amount so contributed is not one-third as much as it will be out of pocket by reason of the holding of the fair. It is so with many others. There is no way in which the majority of the people of the city gain any direct returns from the holding of the fair. The returns to them and to the people of the state will be of the indirect kind, which it takes the "long run" to bring about.

There is no class of people in the state who can be more benefited in the long run by a thoroughly good advertisement of their products at the fair than the fruit growers. One of the greatest elements of the success of Hood River as a fruit-growing section has been its persistent advertising of its fruits by taking advantage of every opportunity to display them. There will not again for many years be an opportunity for the fruit growers of Oregon to advertise their fruit such as is afforded by the Lewis and Clark fair. Good or bad, it is certain that the Oregon exhibit at this exhibition will attract more attention than it was possible for any state exhibit to attract at St. Louis. The display of fruit was so vast in extent there, that both the eye and mind became weary. It will not be so in Portland. The visitors will carry away with them a clear and distinct idea of Oregon's superior fruit and will come with high expectations. The fruit growers of the state can not afford to have a state display which is unworthy of the state.

Mr. Newell will do the best possible with everything which is sent. The fruit will be labeled so as to show where and by whom it is raised. Fruits like cherries and strawberries are needed every day while they are in season.
