THERE IS MONEY IN CREAMERIES

CO-OPERATIVE PLAN IS THE BEST
System in Vogue at Elgin Explained.— Profits Being Made in Dairy Business.

H. M. Abbott, who is corresponding with the Hastings Industrial Co., of Chicago, relative to the establishment of a creamery here, handed the Glacier the following circular explaining the co-operative dairy system in vogue in many communities throughout the United States:
What They Are.
Co-operative factories are owned and controlled by farmers who furnish the milk.
From twenty to forty farmers and business men of the town each owning from $100 to $500 of the stock, combine to own a factory and run it on the principle of making cows pay as much as possible.
Private or individual factories are run on the opposite principle, viz.: Big profits for the factory, and obtaining their milk from the farmers as cheaply as possible. Patrons of Co-operative factories realize from 88 to 92¢ per cow more than do the patrons of private creameries.
How They Are Run.
Each patron's milk is delivered in his own can or cans, and is separately weighed and also tested in a Babcock Milk Tester, to determine the quantity of butter that it contains.
The cream is immediately separated from the milk by running the whole milk through a machine called "Centrifugal Separator." The sweet skum milk is returned at once to the patron free of charge.
The cream is made up into Fancy Elgin butter and sold by the manager of the factory at the highest market price, and often above the quoted market prices.
At the end of each month a full settlement is made with the patrons. From 2 to 3 cents per pound of butter made is taken out of the balance of making, packing, selling and shipping the butter, as well as the profits of the factory; the balance of the money is divided among the patrons in proportion to the amount of butter contained in each one's milk.
Advantages.
1. They are convenient. Milk can be delivered at any time between 6 and 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to suit the convenience of patrons in warm weather, and every other day in cold weather. Hence milk can be hauled six miles to a butter factory as conveniently as one mile to a depot for shipment. No ice is required; as it matters not how warm the milk is delivered as long as it is not sour.
2. They will relieve your wives and families of nearly one-half of their household labors by taking the care of milk and the drudgery of butter making entirely out of the house.
3. They bring cash every month, supplying the farmer with ready money for his immediate wants, keeping him out of "any as you go" loans, teaching him the true road to independence and affluence, and besides the ready money he has produced his own fertilizer, the best for his land and is growing rich in a two-fold way.
4. They have made butter from fifty different farms and you will have fifty different kinds. If made in a factory, uniform color, salting and packing, will bring a much better price.
5. Butter factories get the farmer into dairying, which practically does not fertility from the farm, but will always improve it.
6. There is nothing produced on the farm that sells for more per pound than butter.
7. There is no product that can be gotten to market as cheaply as butter.
8. If your cows give rich milk the Babcock test shows it and you are paid for rich milk.
9. By the separator process practically all the cream is taken from the milk, and all the butter obtained from the cream, by which from 10 to 25 per cent more pounds of butter are obtained, which sells in the market or a much higher price than does farmer's butter.
10. Elgin butter is a staple article. Always commanding the highest market price.
Formerly a little work on the farm brought large profits. But with the large and fertile western farms and improved means of transportation, the farmer is finding out the fact that he must think more and work muscles less. That the time has come when farming must be lifted out of the rut in which it has so long been confined, into the track of scientific knowledge along which the more commonly called professions have long been moving.
Dairying seems more completely to fill the present needs than any other branch of farming.
Co-operative Creameries.
It has been thoroughly demonstrated that the Co-operative creamery furnishes the most profitable and practical way in which dairying can be carried on, and through its agency prosperity has been brought to many farmers who before going into this line of business could hardly save a dollar from their farm from year to year, and who not only did not but could not own a herd of cows.
The latest improvements in butter making are introduced into these creameries, representing years of experiments, costing thousands of dollars in money, thus starting the farmer in business with every possible advantage. There is perhaps no other branch of our natural life that shows more immense advancement in the past thirty years than dairying, largely brought about through the agency of co-operative creameries using separators.
As the century begins dairying is rising out of the obscurity of years, and offering to the farmer not only a way to build up his farm, but a convenient and profitable way to dispose of his milk, thus bringing to him out of the many changes of the past per-

TACOMA MAN SIGNING FOR LANDS
WHITE SALMON SURE OF RAILROAD
LOOKS LIKE NORTHERN PACIFIC

A. R. Upright Admits Working for Railway Co., but Will Not Say Which One.
By a Staff Correspondent.
White Salmon, Wash., June 27.—Gossip about a railroad has settled into almost a positive fact. The merchants and a number of the leading ranchers in the valley were not enthusiastic over the proposed road for there had been so much talk for the past few years. When the Glacier last week gave it out that active operations were to commence, some strong thinking was done, and now when officials of the road are on the ground securing options on the right of way, asking for only six months' time, and adding that it is merely a matter of precedence, that active work will be commenced before that time, eyes are wide open.
On Friday of last week A. R. Upright, of Tacoma, registered at the Washington Hotel, and made arrangements with Captain Lauterbach for the entertainment of a party of five. Soon it was learned that his business was not unimportant. He was going the rounds developed into strong talk, and this one and that one compared notes on what effect the road would have on the town and where the depot would likely be located.
Mr. Upright is going about his work quietly and on Saturday secured an option of T. W. Wiers, Sr., who owns the point on the river bottom the other side of Bingen. It had long been understood that Mr. Wiers did not favor a railroad, he being unable to see where it would in any way enhance the value of his large holdings in the city. But he was offered a good price, and having been convinced that the road was coming, he consented to sell and save condemnation proceedings. Mr. Henderson is of the same mind.
The fun will commence when negotiations are commenced next week to secure the right of way through the valuable berry ranches of Messrs. Ziegler, Moore and Adams. These gentlemen hold their land at $1,000 per acre, and are not anxious to sell at that price. The right of way will demoralize the early berries of Mr. Ziegler, also of the other two gentlemen. These three men are noncommittal as to whether they will do, replying when asked, "wait and see."
Mr. Upright states that on July 1, he will be joined by the chief engineer and the general manager, of who, which, what? That is the question. Mr. Upright is from the legal department of what? While he will give out nothing definite or positive, just what is coming off, it is pretty generally believed that the Northern Pacific is back of the movement, and that the plan will be laid bare when the management arrives in White Salmon next week.
One thing is sure, the merchants of White Salmon are going to make a dextrous effort to locate the depot and save the city. Bingen is going to hold their land at $1,000 per acre, and are not anxious to sell at that price. The right of way will demoralize the early berries of Mr. Ziegler, also of the other two gentlemen. These three men are noncommittal as to whether they will do, replying when asked, "wait and see."

Realize Advantages of Road.
The advantages of the railroad are realized. Now that the region is becoming such an important apple country, it will not be long before shipments will be made in carload lots. The new orchards will soon be producing and the road will mean a great deal to ranchers as well as the merchants.
"The right of way has been practically all secured up to Judge Brykert. The Sukodort family will be easy to secure on contract, it is said, and after the work is completed along the valley there will be easy sailing. It seems a burning crime to plow through the most valuable land on the Washington side. Men with five acres this year will net nearly $2,000 clear from their berries and tomatoes, but such is the way of progress.
Real estate is advancing, and the sale is spirited. Last week was one of the best in the history of the city. Town lots are finding sale, and the holders are filling up with prospects of buyers of property. It is no wonder that all should feel somewhat interested in the outcome of the new road, for it will mean the making or breaking of the pretty and bustling little city.
On the other hand, it is argued, that even if the depot should be located near Bingen, that it would not effect the city much, for all the travel that would naturally go to Bingen would have to pass through White Salmon, and it would be impractical to imagine that the ranchers would travel nearly two miles farther to do trading.
Nearly every man I talked to had a different theory as to where building the road, and as to what the plans were, but Mr. Upright of Tacoma, the headquarters of the Northern Pacific, was saving wool. He would divulge none of the plans that had been gone over so far as he was concerned, other than to say he was securing right of way for a road, and that it would be perfected in less than six months, relative to the detail work.
Movement in Reality.
Curt Wilkie of Vancouver, Wash., a huckster, who has been in the service of Uncle Sam for thirty years, will spend the twilight of his life in White Salmon. Saturday he purchased a house and lot on the Maine & Bowman tract from the White Salmon Land company.
