PUT ON ROUTE IF ENOUGH COWS

DEPENDS ON WHAT FARMERS DO
Portland Company Willing to Co-operate with People of Hood River, Says Mr. Lea.

If the farmers of Hood River will secure a sufficient supply of cream the Hazelwood Creamery Co. of Portland will put on cream route here at once. It is all a question of whether there are cows enough, and whether or not the farmers care to go into the business.

A. H. Lea, field superintendent of this company, was here from Portland last Saturday and attended the meeting at the Commercial club rooms in the afternoon. The question of a cream route or a cream route was discussed and a committee of three was appointed by Chairman Shelby, who met later with Mr. Lea, and were of the opinion that it is best for the Hazelwood company to send a representative here next Saturday to make a canvass of the valley and find out just what can be done by the farmers and the creamery company toward establishment of this proposed route.

There was a large attendance at the meeting, and a deep interest in the subject of the valley and find out just what can be done by the farmers and the creamery company toward establishment of this proposed route.

Our company has a large line of pasturizing plants in operation throughout the country; in fact no creamery is considered complete today without a pasturizing plant. In some localities the farmers own and operate such a plant and sell us the cream.

But the first thing to be considered in this matter is the cow. Unless a cow will return a good profit, farmers cannot afford to keep her for dairy purposes. It is estimated that a cow will cost $40 a year for feed. Some cows will produce 500 pounds of butter in a year, but others are exceptions.

Mr. Lea said that he had seen 35 cows which are returning him 800 a year. There is another man at Clatskanie who made $2000 gross from a herd of 20 cows. About 800 a cow is an average return. Farmers should get good cows and breed to a high standard.

Our company is willing to co-operate with you in the establishment of a cream route or pasturizing plant. You must understand, of course, I favor a cream route in preference to a creamery here, but that is a matter for yourselves to decide upon. With our superior trade facilities we are in position to pay you the top market price for your cream. We are turning down a great many orders because we have not the facilities of manufacturing the product for which there is a ready sale.

A creamery plant would cost you $2000. You cannot expect to consume all the product here and there would be the getting of a market. We are in position to get from a cent to a half more for your butter than other creameries.

If a cream route is established here the cream would be shipped three times a week. A man would drive over the valley and collect the cans. A sample would be taken from each can and sent to Portland for testing. The man would be weighed and record furnished the farmer. On arriving at Portland, the cream is again weighed and a report of the test sent to each patron. If the business justified it we would be pleased to establish a pasturizing plant here. The tests would then be made here, and I believe this would be better than a creamery. We would make the charge for collecting the cream at whatever cost, probably about a cent a pound. Separators for ten cows could be bought for $85. There should be 30 cows to justify establishing a pasturizing plant. About 75 cows would establish a route.

J. H. Shoemaker of the Barrett district declared the farmers would be forced to interest themselves in the creamery business, as that district is a high producing section of the valley.

E. L. Smith spoke in favor of the creamery business. He also believed the proposition of sites should be considered at once if the farmers proposed going into the creamery business. "Get good cows," urged Mr. Smith, "and then endeavor to breed up to a standard of excellence. No country can excel Hood River valley in the production of fine cream, and I am confident the creamery business will add to the prosperity of the farmers and business men."

E. D. Perkins favored the Bates strain of the Durban stock for milk cows, saying he had experience with this breed in Colorado.

Leslie Butler asked how Hood River valley compared with the Willamette valley as regards qualifications for the dairy business. Mr. Lea replied that with irrigation he considered Hood River valley far ahead. Last summer the season was very dry, and feed had to be supplied the cows of the Willamette valley, while the supply of better fat ran very low.

"An average cow should test 3.5 percent of butter fat," said Mr. Lea. "The feeding of ensilage goes a long way toward the success of the dairy business. A 100-ton silo can be constructed for $75. It would also advantage the raising of kale, which keeps green all the year round. Vetches stand next to alfalfa as a feed for cows. There is a little difference in the balance of ration between red clover and alfalfa."

Mr. Staten said he obtained best results by alternating in the winter with clover and alfalfa.

J. H. Shoemaker declared the only solution of the too-much-hay problem was the establishment of a cream route for the present, and perhaps a creamery later. He preferred the cream route and proffered his support for whatever the majority concluded best.

Mr. Shelby believed there was nothing to hinder the establishment of a cream route at once, and thought the meeting should take preliminary steps toward the organization of such an enterprise.

B. F. Shoemaker moved the appointment of a committee to confer with Mr. Lea and see what could be

SIX ACRES BERRIES NET HIM OVER $1000

From six acres of plants, J. I. Miller has marketed this summer something over 100 crates. Mr. Miller expects the berries to return him an average of at least $1.75 a crate after all expenses are paid to have $1000 for his net income from the six acres.

MAKES $975 FROM 66 APPLE TREES

M. M. Hill of the East Side has an apple story, while coming late in the season, is nevertheless one of the best. From a careful record he finds that 66 of his Spitzenberg apple trees, none of them over seven years old, last year brought him $975.

Of these apples, 338 boxes were 4 1/2 or larger, and only 32 boxes went 4 1/4 or smaller. The 4 1/2 size apples declared they were among the best in the valley. Mr. Hill's total crop last year with all varieties was 2300 boxes. He does not expect to have so large a crop this year, but says they will be of superior quality.

A drive on the East Side will convince anyone that Mr. Hill knows how to keep an orchard in perfect condition.

WILL MAKE PULP FROM THE PINES

By a Staff Correspondent. Husum, Wash., July 12.—There is every indication that before very long there will be a paper mill at Husum or Underwood. Martin Thompson of Sheds, Or., who has holdings along the river and up the mountain slope, has been carefully investigating the mill and has been fully convinced that it is just the thing for pulp. It is found that the pine and the cotton wood that grows in such great abundance here can be used for paper pulp it will mean a great deal to the Washington side and especially to this section.

The alarm has been sounded by the paper mill magnates that the spruce fields in the northwest are giving out and that the consumption of white paper is greater than the pulp mills can furnish to supply the demands of publishers to cut down the size of the papers and print fewer pages, thus saving the consumption.

If the bull pine will do the trick, capitalists, independent or those allied with the so-called paper trust, will unbelt and it will be worked to the greatest extent. Those who have so much land in this section will find ready sale and it will open up one of the greatest industries in Washington. The big timber is still largely in evidence and it will be many years before the great lumber companies cease to find sufficient timber to carry on operations. If the scrub timber can be used for pulp, why then it will mean a new industry which will mean the giving of employment to hundreds, and the placing of a great deal of additional money in circulation.

Charles Walters arrived at the home of Mordecai Jones on Friday of last week and over 10,000 fine rainbow trout were placed in the streams and small lakes in the Husum and Trout Lake country. The Rattlesnake was also stocked. The stock in the hatchery at Oregon City.

R. Koolin of Montana was looking over the country last week in view of securing a location to start a trout farm. He was greatly taken up with the location near the R. D. Cameron tract and it is believed that he will eventually locate there. Mr. Koolin did not state when he represented, but it is believed that it is the Tacoma concern that has such a large farm in Suabomish county.

The finishing touches are being placed on the Falls Hotel. Mr. Carter, the proprietor, is sparing no pains and expense
