Friends of Adolph Aeschoff, the forest supervisor, will be pleased to learn that he is rapidly recovering from the accident of three weeks ago, which came near terminating his life, while on duty near Lost Lake. The report is that since his misfortune, an attempt has been made to further the interests of parties anxious to obtain his office in the government service. We hope this is not so, but feel confident the authorities at Washington recognize the superior qualifications of Herr Aeschoff for this particular position, and he need have no fear of a removal, lest it be a promotion.

The Glacier this week presents a six-page write-up and general review of the White Salmon valley. The aim was to try to show the great possibilities in fruit, dairying and stock raising on the Washington side. The great progress being made in the fruit line is amazing. In making the canvas, an effort was made to see all, but many of the more prominent farmers were missed, owing to a mere lack of time. The edition was arranged at a great deal of expense to the publisher, and he is most grateful to all for the kind courtesies extended.

crop of apples, pears or peaches in this country any where east of the Rockies. Oregon can look for a big price for apples this year. Labor isn't anything here, only $1.50 a day for hiring and harvesting; $1.35 for rail road haul; flour $1.50 per sack; potatoes 10 to 20 cents a bushel; Shingola $4 a thousand; rough lumber $10 to $20.

Well, huckleberries are ripe and many are going out to the mountains to pick them. I am on my grandfather's old farm today, where I was born 67 years ago, and have been 4 years from it. The old orchard is dead; old buildings gone and new ones built, but my father's house which he built 50 years ago is left yet, adjoining this farm and orchard. They have done away with road fences in this country. All lay the common now but have pretty good roads. Yes, some of my relatives are rich, and some are as poor as I am. When I tell the people about our berries and apples and wages, they think I am telling some big ones. So I have to take the Glacier and show them that I am not overrating, either. It makes some of them almost crazy to go west and lots of them say they will be there next spring if they live that long.

The water is nearly all hard I can hardly drink. I wish and had to pick them to some of the folks—some that give the returns of the fruit and amount that was raised, and the lumber reports and wages, then that will work up what I tell them. Well, I will start for home next month, but it will take me three months to get there, for I have so many places to stop. Good-bye for this time.

DROVE MILK WAGONS FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

Wasco's New Water System. Wasco may well feel pride in its development, its water system and sewerage, says the Moro Observer. A flowing well, drilled to the depth of 120 feet, discharges into a dug well 10 feet, from which the water is elevated by a duplex pump, driven by a 15-horse-power gasoline engine into a reservoir 215 feet above the city, with a capacity for 100,000 gallons, distributed through 15,000 feet of machine laid pipe, which makes the water system. The reservoir is of concrete walls, covered with brick arches, which insures cool water in hot weather. Twenty first-class hydrants have been placed throughout the system and five streams can be placed at a fire at one time, thus assuring good fire service. There will be a pressure of 20 to 100 pounds to the square inch down town on all water pipes. The sewerage system is equally perfect. One main sewer pipe, 18 inches long and 30 feet of lateral sewers make this system. The aggregate expense of these works is a little more than $17,000 cash, on the bonds of $20,000 voted by the taxpayers.

Wheat Crop is Extra Good. The Climate and Crop Bulletin for Tuesday, July 25, reports the general conditions in the state as follows:

The past week was the hottest of the season, and no rain of consequence occurred in any part of the state. Fortunately, the wind was generally light and the wheat crop suffered but little damage. In the Grand Ronde valley and in some of the Columbia river counties east of the Cascade mountains late sown spring wheat was damaged by the hot weather and will probably be cut for hay. The second crop of alfalfa is being cut, and the crop promises to be about an average one. Hop bars are forming and the vines are growing nicely. Hop lice are still to be found, but they are less numerous than formerly. Corn, potatoes and gardens have made good advancement, but these crops would be improved by more rain. Early apples are ripe. Prunes, pears and peaches are doing well.

E. C. Rogers in York State. Troupsburg, N. Y., July 17, 1905.—Editor Glacier: As I told you that I would write to you and let you know how I made it on my trip back East, I will do so now. We went to the fine line so far, and have seen lots of old school mates and relatives that I used to know. But time has changed them so I didn't know a person only as I inquired and got introductions to them. Forty years makes a big change, and the country has changed as much as the people. But everybody knows me by my feet, for I have a mark on me that I cannot do away with, and the younger people have heard their parents tell me, so they know me, and when they see me, I have been to a good many old towns and cities and have a good many more to see yet. Some places they get my name in their papers, for they think 300 miles is a good way to go to a reunion.

I was five nights and four days getting to my stopping place, Hornellsville, N. Y. I saw some very nice country, so level that I couldn't tell which way the water would run, and some very rough country. But none so far that suits me so well as Hood River, although we have had some drawbacks there, but not like they have here. Just think of the thunder and lightning they have here. It is enough to scare any one to death. Along the first of June we had an awful storm. The flashes of lightning were so steady that one could see to read by the light in the night. I got up and dressed and so did lots of others. The lightning struck lots of buildings, tore some of them down, burnt some up and killed some people and some cattle and horses; tore telephones to the ground, and it has kept up every day—heavy showers, thunder and lightning, until last Friday, and now it is very hot. People are haying now. Lightning struck a telephone last Thursday and tore the house some. I was over a mile from it, but it sounded like a big gun in the house where I was and they had the wires turned off. I wouldn't take the best farm and live here if they would give it to me. Just think, all the timber is gone and brush lumber is high. Have to send West for lumber and shingles, and buildings are getting old. What will the rising generation do for lumber? I will advise the timber men to hold on to their timber, for I have been in a good many states and there is scarcely any saw timber. They saw poles 6 or 8 inches through and everything 6 feet long, such as we wouldn't cut out wood, and there isn't one-fourth

MARY P. JOHNSON, M. D., Supt.
...IDEAL HOME FOR INVALIDS...
Climate and view unsurpassed in the United States.

World," write to W. C. McBride, General Agent, 124 Third street, Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Hazlett and daughter of Millport, Ill., arrived Monday afternoon, and are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clarke.

Eph Winans, Mrs. Oiler, Mrs. Neff and Mike Neff, accompanied by Miss Davis from the East, left yesterday for the beach. They will visit the exposition before their return.

The following is taken from a Long Beach, Cal., paper: "The many friends of Mrs. M. A. Cook of 852 Orange avenue will be glad to hear of the serious accident which befell her yesterday morning. While in her garden she stepped into a hole, dislocating her knee and tearing the ligaments loose. Dr. Bates soon had the patient resting comfortably, and says she will be confined to her home for several weeks."

Southern Oregon Berries.
J. T. Wilder of Phoenix, is entitled to the blue ribbon for strawberries this year, says the Medford Mail. Wednesday evening a crate of berries was shipped from his patch to the Portland exposition that will cause even the Hood River people to "sit up and take notice." The berries are extremely large and fine flavored and are an example of what can be done in this section in the berry line. The strawberry season is over in Hood River, yet Mr. Wilder is picking several crates a day from his garden and selling them at fancy prices. Last year Mr. Wilder realized $35 from two-fifths of an acre in berries, and this year will crowd the $5 mark.

Heavy Fruit Shipments.
The produce companies of Walla Walla will soon be getting ready for the enormous amount of fruit which is shipped every year from Walla Walla, says the Walla Walla Union.

At present, however, the principal garden products to be shipped are onions and potatoes. W. E. Clarke & Co. yesterday shipped a carload of these vegetables to British Columbia. The Walla Walla Produce company is shipping two of three carloads of miscellaneous produce daily. Large fruits are not being shipped at present, except small quantities of apples.

During the cherry season, which is almost over, larger quantities of this fruit have been shipped than in previous years, in spite of reports from various sources that the crop was small. The Walla Walla Produce company has shipped seven cars of cherries in carload lots, besides a large amount more in smaller quantities. This is about twice the amount shipped by the same company last year.

It is estimated that the loss to the apple crop of this country from the swelling moth reaches at least $20,000,000 annually, while other orchard fruits suffer equally, making a total loss of 20 per cent of the entire fruit crop, amounting both large and small fruits. While all of this damage is suffered, there are about $8,250,000 spent each year on spraying and otherwise using preventatives. The value of the work of the United States government in experimenting in insect exterminators can best be estimated when it is known that through the agency of the government the loss to the cotton crop of $30,000,000 annually has been reduced to $10,000,000; the fight against the Hessian fly saves wheat worth from $100,000,000 to $200,000,000 annually, and the existence of the orange industry in California has been made possible only by the introduction from Australia of a natural enemy of the white scale, a pestiferous creature which a few years ago threatened total destruction to the orange and lemon crop.
