

ODELL

HE IS SURPRISED AT ODELL'S GROWTH

By Roswell Shelley.

Odell, East Hood River Valley, Aug. 2.—L. N. Howers and family passed Odell last Sunday morning on their way to the bridge on the Mount Hood road. Returning in the evening, they lunched at the Little White Store park. Although warm and dusty, they enjoyed the day's outing. In speaking of the development of this section, L. N. was surprised at the improvements here, and ventured the prophecy that Odell would soon develop into a respectable village. The advent of the railroad will hasten this result, for then it will not be necessary to haul the ranch products to town, and the apples and other products from this and the Mount Hood section will be shipped from Odell. This accomplished, the merchant stocks will be increased, for whenever there is a demand the supply soon follows.

James Eggart, his father and Frank E. Runorn went to snow-capped Mount Hood last week. Mr. Runorn climbed to the summit, while some of the party looked at the mountain top from a point eighteen feet below.

Recently there have been some able ministers at the Union church here. For a week past Rev. H. W. Jones, who was formerly pastor of a large church at Buffalo, N. Y., has been conducting meetings. Mr. Jones is an earnest, forceful speaker. With choice language coming from the heart, he holds the audience. Quite an interest is manifested and a number of persons have responded to his call and signified their intention of leading a higher and better life. Most people, I think, desire such a life, yet for reasons which do not reflect upon the efforts of the most consecrated minister of the gospel, they listen to the most touching appeals from the pulpit orator, still failing to respond. And why? Most of us are in the shadow of the evening of life have had lessons burned into our hearts with letters of fire, until we are compelled to think and act our real selves. Intelligence and reason make demands upon us that we cannot, try hard as we may, disregard. Hence a certain class of people are constantly misunderstood and consequently misjudged by those conducting evangelistic work. And sad as it may appear to others, there are many persons in this world, who in mature years, are forced to change the convictions and mental environments had made, and perhaps in so doing they get upon a broader and higher plane of life, rather than being in a lost condition. We are always glad to note and commend any good work of this kind, for we realize that the rise and fall of nations depend upon their moral standard. Cities and governments builded with blood money cannot long endure; yet remembering this, it is well not to forget that you cannot gather grapes from thorns, nor figs from thistles; neither can the leopard change his spots.

The writer is in receipt of a letter from J. L. Ferguson, of Minn., who is strictly misunderstood and consequently misjudged by those conducting evangelistic work. And sad as it may appear to others, there are many persons in this world, who in mature years, are forced to change the convictions and mental environments had made, and perhaps in so doing they get upon a broader and higher plane of life, rather than being in a lost condition. At a school meeting last Saturday evening, the 25th, the directors were authorized by a unanimous vote to issue warrants in the name of the district to pay for the enlarging of the school house. The new building is rapidly assuming shape and will be enclosed this week. It will be an imposing structure and complete in every detail, and a credit to the district.

The Odell brothers, Will Smith and D. E. Shelley left Odell last Wednesday afternoon on a prospecting trip in the mountains. They visited Lost

Lake and Lake Chitwood and not satisfied, scouted the mountain fastness of an almost impenetrable region and discovered another lake, the banks of which they claim no whitman had ever trod. These fellows were flushed with victory on their return and are now the only original Wild Bills, of the woolly West. The music of the hunter, his horn and his horn is a precious relic of the primitive Western days and is sweeter music to the writer than "Liberati's band." Such incidents remind the old pioneer of the days of long ago, when he watched by night for the deer to come into the lick, or took his stand by day with his ear tuned to the first fresh sound of the hound on the hot trail, and as the sound grew louder and nearer, how his nerves tugged and his blood boiled through his veins on the approach of the stag in his race into the jaws of death. Then the pride that follows as he nails the velvet horns over the doorway of his log cabin, a trophy of the chase. With the passing of the ways and the passing into the history of the West the days of the hunter, comes many a regret to those who blazed the trail and who only know the rare sport of a free unfettered life in the once far off Western country, where roams the Oregon. Such men got more out of life than does the trust magnate or the bloated millionaire of the 24th century.

Mrs. Crockett left last Monday night to join her daughter, Ota, who is now at Meacham in the Blue mountains. Trouble, illness and death have visited the Crockett family during the past year, and her friends wish her a respite from trouble soon.

By the way, Mr. Olmstead has had some experience with milk separators and is somewhat surprised to know that we have no separators or butter factories in our beautiful valley. Mr. Olmstead can cite numbers of farmers in Minnesota and Iowa who are making good money every month. We say, let the farmers get right at it at once.

MOUNT HOOD.

A great many people are visiting the "lava beds" on the Lewis and Clark road these days. This is one of the most picturesque places in the valley. From the top of the lava beds a view of the entire valley may be obtained. From beneath the lava rock streams of pure ice cold water flow and wind their way northwesterly, shaded by the tallest fir trees, making an ideal place to camp and rest.

A party, among whom were Frank Stanton, M. M. Hill and W. Fike, passed through here Saturday on their way home from a week's outing. They climbed to the summit of Mount Hood, camped on Dog river, Tony creek and other places. But they said the prettiest camping place they found was in fact ever saw, was at the foot of the lava beds, between Roger creek and the Middle Fork.

Our genial postmaster and store keeper has fallen in line with the general improvement of Mount Hood and is enlarging his barn to twice its original size. Next we will hear of his buying cows and selling cream.

W. S. Griddle left for Kingsley yesterday, having heard his lost horse was in charge of Mr. Hix of that place.

Mr. L. Booth is visiting friends in this place.

APPLE CROP GOOD IN MOSIER VALLEY

By a Staff Correspondent. Mosier, Or., Aug. 2.—There never before has been so much activity in a buildings way in this city since its inception. The people of Mosier have awakened to their own importance and while the country in and around the city is busily filling up, the town is experiencing a fine growth.

There are none who have made a careful study of the soil condition in the vicinity of Mosier but what will testify that it is splendidly adapted for the growing of fruit. The settlement was made here in an early day, and there are still families or remnants of families who were the early settlers.

There is no prettier or more fertile valley than where grows the big apples and the fine berries. The ranchers who have had the nerve and grit to stick to it are today reaping the rewards. While the apple crop this year will be a light one in the great fruit growing valleys and in many cases only about a fourth of a crop, the yield at Mosier will average over a third, and in many cases a half crop will be in evidence.

Taking into consideration the high price that apples will rule at this year, the farmers will fare very well. Last year's crop was so extremely heavy that many of the orchards are resting up this year as a result.

Will send you a few items to let you know we are not all dead up here. Everybody is busy buying and trying to keep cool. The hay crop is fine here and in Camas Prairie.

Hailstorm at The Dalles. At The Dalles, Sunday afternoon a sudden drop in temperature, bringing with it a severe hail storm, accompanied with thunder, swept suddenly over the city. The storm was entirely unexpected, and after the drop in temperature had occurred the thermometer took a jump and the heat was almost as oppressive as before.

The day had been a warm one. About 3 o'clock the temperature began to drop and rapidly receded from 94 degrees to 85 degrees, a drop of 29 degrees occurring in 12 minutes. Heavy clouds came up from the southwest and were accompanied by considerable thunder, but no lightning. A hailstorm followed of a peculiar nature. Small, irregular chunks of ice drifting steadily from the regular stores, poured from the clouds.

During the time the hail fell little difference was observed in temperature. The storm passed rapidly over the river. Those who have witnessed it from above the city described its appearance as in the form of a white sheet of great dimensions moving over the ground. As a result of atmospheric conditions a thunder-storm took place there that night.

Did you ever notice the balance wheel in your watch? The balance wheel of a watch gives five vibrations every second, three hundred every minute, 18,000 every hour, 432,000 every day, and 157,680,000 every year. At each vibration it rotates about one and a quarter times, making 196,850,000 revolutions every year. In order that we may better understand the stupendous amount of labor performed by these tiny works, let us make a comparison with a locomotive having six-foot driving wheels. Let it be run until its wheels shall have given the same number of revolutions that a watch balance gives in one year, and it will have covered a distance equal to twenty-eight complete circuits of the earth. All this a watch does without other attention than winding once every twenty-four hours. Now, suppose both machines started in good order. The locomotive is oiled every fifty minutes, is carefully wiped and cleaned before being oiled. So that while doing the work of a watch for one year, it has been cleaned 6,955 and oiled 25,910, (and is now in the shop for repairs.) While your watch—suppose it doesn't look very dirty and even if it still keeps pretty fair time—wouldn't it do better service and wear much longer if carefully cleaned and properly oiled ONCE to every 14,000 time a locomotive is?
