Hood River should be just the place for the location of an cider and vinegar factory, such as the Jones Bros. Co., of Louisville, propose to place here. It is often the by-products which net the greatest profits. While at present there are possibly not a very large supply of cull apples in Hood River valley, when the orchards come to bearing half a million boxes a year, the amount of apples fit for a cider factory will amount to something, and if disposed of to a factory at even the small sum of 25 cents a hundred should not a profit to the growers. Cull berries can also be disposed of to advantage for the manufacture of vinegar. Hood River cider ought to bring a good price wherever Hood River apples are known. Mr. Jones will be in Hood River at some later date, when the matter will be more fully explained to the people.

The Oregonian has made a compilation of the 1904 wheat crop from distributive sources, and finds that the crop for Oregon, Washington and Idaho reached a grand total of 44,065,826, or about 3,000,000 bushels less than the government figures for the three states. The actual dimensions of the crop, exclusive of any padding, were sufficiently gratifying to please the most cautious, for only once in the history of the trade have there been exceeded, and in that record year of 1901 the carry-over from the preceding year was so much smaller than that which was available with the 1904 crop that the shipments for the season which closed June 30 were not very far behind those from the 1901 crop. Exclusive of the sales made for home consumption, the farmers of the three states sold more than 35,000,000 bushels, from which the net returns were more than $25,000,000. On account of the much higher price prevailing throughout the season, this is a much greater sum than was realized from the 37,000,000 bushels marketed from the crop of 1901.

BRAGG & GO. BUY THE CROWELL STOCK

R. B. Bragg & Co. have purchased the merchandising stock and business of George P. Crowell. Mr. Bragg has also retained the Crowell building, and expects to move his entire stock into that building, after the same has been remodeled. It is Mr. Bragg's intention to place a new front to the building facing Oak street. What was formerly the warehouse of the Crowell store has been remodeled for the grocery department. The Crowell stock of goods is being offered the public at bargain prices, and it is the intention to have this all disposed of before the other goods are moved in. Read the ad of Bragg & Co. in another column, and then take advantage of the prices this firm offers you.

Are Pleas With Professor Barnes.

Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Barnes of Frances, Wash., are in Hood River, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Outbank. Mr. Barnes was principal of the Frances public school last winter. At the beginning of the new year the board of directors without solicitation gave Professor Barnes an increase in salary, and he has been employed for another year with another increase in pay. Mr. Barnes is well known in Hood River, where he taught school for a number of years. During his vacation he spent two months at work in a saw and door factory at Seaside. He will return next week to Frances, where the school reopens September 1, and where Mrs. Barnes has been appointed deputy postmaster, to take charge of the office during the absence of the postmaster in the East. The South Bend Pilot, speaking of the commencement exercises of the Frances school, said: "It was a very pleasant and successful occasion and very creditable to Principal Fred B. Barnes and Assistant Principal Miss Clara Mucklock, and no less creditably to those two educators is the fact that the entire class successfully passed the severe examination and were graduated."

Too Good for Them to Believe.

"I could bring to Hood River a colony of 25 people if they could only believe what I have been telling them about his country," remarked C. D. Nielsen of Hendrick, Minn., who accompanied by J. L. Ferguson, who is in Hood River last week, looking the valley over in a view of establishing a creamery here. Mr. Nielsen was reared in Hood River, and since moving to Minnesota he can't help thinking there is no place in the world equal to the Oregon country. "Mr. Ferguson is highly delighted with the valley," continued Mr. Nielsen, "and his trip here will be worth a great deal to Hood River, for I shall now have some one to corroborate my story of apples and berries which I have been telling in Minnesota. 'I really didn't believe things could be as you pictured them,' Mr. Ferguson said to me, 'but now that I can see for myself I find them even better.'"

Mr. Nielsen lives in the southwestern part of Minnesota. The country is filled with lakes, and mosquitoes are so numerous that it is impossible to spend an evening on one's front porch without a struggle to drive off the tormentors. Rains are very frequent in that country, and crops are often entirely destroyed by them. Mr. Nielsen says there are many people there who would come to Oregon if they could only realize the true condition of the climate and soil of this western country. They have heard a great deal about it, but are fearful to pull up stakes and make a new beginning here. The eastern country appears at a standstill. While new houses are going up in all small towns of the West, in the East there may be one or two new buildings in a town of 5000 or 6000 people, but no general march of improvement. The trail at the Lewis and Clark exposition is now being covered with a canvas roof for its entire length along that part of which extends over the lake. This is the main section of the trail. The roof will afford protection from the sun and make the trail more popular than ever. This is said to be the biggest canvas roofing job ever undertaken.

APPLES ARE VERY LARGE

Notwithstanding the dry summer reported in many parts of the state, Hood River orchardists say that apples were never so large as at the present time. A. J. Mason informs the Glaciers that there are now in town apples in his orchard which would go to the box. Mr. Mason uses no irrigation water, neither does Mr. Silliman, who reports that his apples are all large and prospects for a crop of fine large apples are never better. While the apple crop for Hood River is light this summer, possibly not over 10 per cent of a crop, the quality will be extra fine.

Reports from the East indicate a scarcity of apples in both America and Europe, which leads the Hood River growers to believe they will get even better prices this year for their fruit than last year. Mr. Vanderbilt on the Bulah land place, says he has information from the East, which says the Newtown crop is very light there. He expects to see this variety sell this year for $2. The management of the Hood River Apple Growers' union has been over the valley and secured an estimate on the number of boxes which the growers expect to ship through this association. While the union has made nothing public concerning the size of the crop, the members state that prospects are very flattering for good prices. Several Eastern buyers have been in the valley looking at the crop. It is expected that bids on the fancy fruit will be opened in a few days.

New Buildings at Mosier.
 By a Staff Correspondent.
 Mosier Ore., Aug. 2.—While Mosier has not been booming this year, still a great deal of building is in evidence. Husbands & Root are just completing a new wagon shop to their blacksmith shop, giving them a floor space of 40x70. The business of this firm is on the increase, and when the woodwork department is complete, will be one of the best equipped plants in Wasco county. Wood has just completed one of the cozy residences of Mosier. Alex Stewart has erected a new large barn, and with the box factory under course of construction, keeps all the carpenters busy.

Examining Class Forest Rangers.

D. B. Sheller of Tacoma, forest supervisor, is in the city holding an examination of a class of 12 men who have made application for the position of forest rangers. A written examination continuing through three hours was held Wednesday morning in the State street school house, and today and tomorrow Mr. Sheller will take the young men into the mountains for some field work. Supervisor Sheller reports very few fires in the government reserves this summer, but the rangers will keep up a vigilant watch during the next two months, when everything is so extremely dry throughout the forests. He reports H. D. Langille doing work for the forestry service in California, and Will Langille in Alaska. Both these young men are well known in Hood River.

Its a Dandy.

Twenty acres of early strawberry, apple, cherry and vegetable land with a fine southern slope. Only one half mile from town of White Salmon. It commands a magnificent view of Mount Hood and the Hood River valley. The soil is rich, deep and moist. Four acres cleared and ready to plant to orchard, balance only light brush, easy to clear, some timber for fuel. It is all under fence, and a fine well of cool soft water. There is no better soil and location for an orchard or a finer site for a home east of the Cascades. And now that we are sure of the Northern Pacific building down the north bank of the Columbia river, it is dirt cheap at $100 per acre. It will be worth three times that in three years. Terms, $1500 cash, balance in three years. Don't let this slip if you are looking for a home.

He Thought it Might Do.
 When Patrick received an order he followed it implicitly as far as he could—sometimes even further than his Celtic brain realized.

"He wants a pane of windy glass tin inches by fourteen," said Patrick one day as he entered a shop where his employer, a master carpenter, traded.

In the shop was a young clerk who never missed a chance for a little joke at the Irishman's expense.

Mirrors in the Middle Ages.
 In the middle ages, when steel and silver mirrors were almost exclusively used, a method of backing glass for the same purpose with thin sheets of metal was known.
