

HOW WALDO PASSED CONTRABAND QUININE

Members of Canby Post who failed to attend the meeting Saturday missed a very enjoyable time. There was a good attendance. In the absence of Commander Phelps, Junior Vice Commander Buck filled the chair. He not only filled the chair, literally speaking, but presided with great dignity. M. F. Jacobs was present. He came all the way from Portland to attend this meeting and help to arouse enthusiasm among the comrades to get them to go to Portland on Hood River day at the exposition. A goodly number of the comrades of Canby Post will be up to swell the Hood River crowd on that day. A brother of Comrade Rigby was a visitor. This brother served in an Iowa regiment throughout the war. The writer learned at this meeting that the Rigby family sent nine brothers to the war.

After the routine work of the Post was concluded, Comrades Stranahan and Blowers gave reports of their experience at the National Encampment at Denver. Both comrades had met at Denver members of their old regiments and companies whom they had not seen for 40 years, and it can be imagined what an enjoyable time they had. The recital of their experience made every comrade present wish he had been there.

Reminiscences of war times were then indulged in, and some good stories were told. Comrade Waldo told one of the best, and, begging Waldo's pardon, the writer cannot refrain from reporting it, though he can't hope to tell it so good as it came from the lips of Waldo.

In the days before the war, when Waldo was a little boy, a maiden aunt went to Mississippi, where she was engaged as governess in the family of a prominent physician. After years of service in the hospitable Southern family, when the war came this governess from the North espoused the cause of the Confederacy, and was loyal to her Southern friends. A daughter of this Confederate physician managed to get a pass for herself and governess to enter the Union lines at Memphis. When they returned home, or to the Confederate lines, it was necessary for the picket guards to closely search them for contraband of war. Waldo was on picket duty that day, and as the two women passed out, he with others of the reserve was called upon to search them.

Waldo, in a spirit of fun, after he had searched the younger woman, became too bold in his work and caressed the older one in a manner a little too endearing, which caused the governess to show fight, and she knocked young Waldo down. The ladies were allowed to pass the lines and Waldo hoped to live to forget the incident. After the war ended the governess visited her old home in the North. She had an interesting narrative to relate of her experience during war times, and while Waldo was present, related how she knocked out the impudent young Yankee soldier when she smuggled through the Union lines at Memphis enough quinine sewed up in the lining of her dress to supply a regimental medicine chest. Waldo kept mum during the recital of the story in which he took so prominent part, but later acknowledged to his aunt that he was the impudent soldier and was forgiven.

At 4 o'clock the ladies of the Relief Corps served a lunch of pork and beans, cake, coffee and fruit, and the members of the Post accepted an invitation to join them. The Relief Corps is flourishing. Six new members were admitted at the meeting Saturday.

Eagerly Reads Glacier Railroad News.
The Glacier's exclusive railroad articles concerning railroad developments down the north bank of the Columbia during the past summer have been read with interest by people in the East, where the Glacier has an extensive circulation. C. S. Smith, who holds a position in the machinery department of the Minneapolis & St. Louis Railroad Co., at Minneapolis, writes as follows:

"I have taken a great deal of interest in reading your paper each week, especially interesting is the railroad down the north bank of the Columbia, as we get statements from the heads of the two northern trans-continental lines in our dailies here, and also reports of actual proceedings through the Glacier. I thought possibly you would be interested in a clipping taken from the Minneapolis Journal of last evening, which is purported to come from the headquarters in the 'latter twin'. Doubtless you know all this by this time.

"I am very much interested in your country, and am of the opinion that it has a great future, my only regret is that I am so situated that I cannot make a change at present, as were I free to do so, I believe Hood River or White Salmon offer as great inducements as any locality."

CRAPPER.
Nathan Hackett and Mrs. Dunn returned from Portland on last Saturday. Mrs. Silliman and her little daughter of Seattle, Wash., are visiting with Mrs. Harry Hackett. Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Dodson have moved to the Vanandale place. The hearts of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Lyons were made glad by the arrival of a baby boy at their home on Friday of last week.

Rev. W. A. Ekins of the Christian church is conducting a series of meetings at the Crapper.
Rev. Nelson of the Unitarian church preached at the school house on last Sunday afternoon.

Professor Arneson will carry the mail on Hood River day, and give the regular carrier an opportunity to "hit the trail" at the fair on that day.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Edelman "took in" the Lewis and Clark fair last week.
Frank Gregory moved with his family to his place near Hood River on Wednesday of last week.

Thank Those Who Saved Home.
We wish to express our most sincere thanks to all those both old and young who so bravely and willingly helped to save our home and business place Sunday morning, during the fire on the heights. Gladly for plenty of water and willing hands to use it we would now be without a home, and to all we feel very grateful.

McCOY IS CRUSHED BETWEEN SAW LOGS

John C. McCoy, member of the McCoy & Thomas sawmill company of White Salmon, met the awful death of being crushed by a sawing at noon, Monday. McCoy was alone at the time, and it is believed that had some one been near when the accident occurred his life could have been saved.

The man was smothered to death rather than crushed, there being no bones broken in his body. The log lay upon him in such a manner that his breath was knocked from him, and it was impossible for him to breathe. His pipe was still in his mouth when he was found by other workmen.

The accident occurred about half past twelve. McCoy was well known in Hood River and Portland. He served for 12 years as an engineer on the O. R. & N. railroad. He was unmarried.

Mrs. M. A. Jones of this city and Mrs. Milton Odell of the East Side are sisters of McCoy. His brother Elmer is in the East somewhere, and has not yet been located by Dr. Jones, who has been telegraphing for him.

Funeral services were to have been conducted at White Salmon yesterday afternoon, provided Mr. and Mrs. Odell, who were attending the exposition in Portland at the time, can be located.

H. E. Van Deman Visits Here.
Professor H. E. Van Deman, the eminent horticulturist who has been secured by the management of the Lewis and Clark exposition as judge of the fruit display, spent several days in Hood River last week. While here he was taken for a drive through the orchards of the valley by E. L. Smith, president of the state board of horticulture.

The well kept apple orchards of Hood River were a revelation to the Easterner. He considers Hood River has very few rivals in the line of fruit culture, and was enthusiastic in his praise of the care which orchardists here give to their trees.

Saturday Professor Van Deman and Mr. Smith spent the day at Mosier. The professor was well acquainted with the father of A. P. Bateham in Ohio years ago, and was particularly anxious to meet the proprietor of the East Hood River Fruit Co., but the latter happened to be out of town that day, consequently there is a mutual disappointment. Professor Van Deman considers that Mr. Bateham has a splendid fruit farm.

Sunday, the professor accompanied W. M. Stewart, Dr. W. F. Laraway and Dr. Jenkins on a fishing expedition to the west fork.
Professor Van Deman went from here to New Westminster, B. C., where he has been secured to act as judge of the fruit display of the Royal Agricultural society this week. Mr. Smith had been asked to do this work, but he at once declined and asked that Mr. Van Deman be secured in his stead.

DeWitt-Baker.
A very pretty wedding occurred last Sunday at the cozy home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Baker, corner State street and Park avenue, when their daughter Miss Pansy was married to Mr. Henry DeWitt, son of C. Gilmore of Riverside (Congregational church officiated, and the impressive ring service was pronounced.

Owing to the illness of Mrs. Baker, very few friends were present. The parlors were prettily decorated with asters and Oregon grape, and the bride was daintily attired in a silk shirtwaist traveling suit. The ceremony was pronounced shortly after 1 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt, leaving in the afternoon train for their new home at Inglis, where Mr. DeWitt holds a responsible position with the Oregon Lumber Co.

Luncheon was served after the wedding. Mr. and Mrs. George Bonine of Clay Center, Kans., cousin of the bride, reached Hood River on a delayed train Sunday afternoon, and were very much disappointed on not getting here in time for the wedding.

Among the pretty presents were a set of silver knives and forks from the Oregon Lumber Co., a beautiful piece of cut glass from Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Early, and a set of tea spoons from the girls in the central office of the Telephone Co.

Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt will begin at once keeping house in a neat little home which Mr. DeWitt had already provided for his bride.

Temperance Workers Elect Officers.
At the meeting of the W. C. T. U. last Tuesday afternoon a very interesting business session was held. It being the last meeting before the state convention, an annual report from the officers and superintendents of the different departments of work was given. The work of the W. C. T. U. being formative rather than reformatory, these reports gave proof that the superintendents had all done a good work during the year in their different lines of work. Five new departments of work were added, that of scientific temperance instruction, Sunday school temperance work, franchise, mothers' meetings.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. E. Winans; recording secretary, Mrs. D. J. Treiber; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Deitz; treasurer, Mrs. C. T. Robins; Mrs. Winans and Mrs. Treiber were elected delegates to the state convention, which meets in The Dalles October 3 to 6. F. E. H.

Many Inquiries About the Northwest.
Last week the Glacier published in full the splendid article on Hood River prepared by James M. Irvine, managing editor of the Fruit Grower of St. Joseph, Mo. That the article has already been productive of much good for Hood River, can be noted from the following letter from Mr. Irvine:

"We thank you very much for your compliments on our September number. We have never published any matter which created the interest which this has, and within the last week I have personally talked with a number of persons who are contemplating going to the Northwest. It seems to me that the Commercial clubs and real estate men in your country could very profitably do some effective advertising for settlers at this time."

OFFERS HIM $4 BOX FOR WINTER BANANAS

Oscar Vanderbilt's Beniah Land orchard was well filled with fruit this year, and Mr. Vanderbilt has taken considerable pride in supplying the Wasco county display with his choicest products. He now has a larger display at the county booth than any individual grower in the valley.

Mr. Vanderbilt returned from Portland last Saturday, and says the fruit display is getting better each week. Among Mr. Vanderbilt's exhibit is the only box of Winter Banana apples shown from an Oregon orchard. He has some Winesaps there of which 88 fill the box, and some Yellow Newtown pippins running 54 to the box. M. Vanderbilt says he has a standing offer from a large New York hotel for any number of Winter Banana apples at $4 per box up to four carloads. This has encouraged him to plant extensively to this variety.
