

ODELL
WHY HOOD RIVER
APPLES ARE BEST

By Roswell Sholley.
Odell, East Hood River Valley, Oct. 4.—This is Wednesday morning, and as we have just returned from the fair, it is too late for the usual gist of notes for this week, but here is one which promises an extended story for next issue.
Will Leuz and Walter Silliman left this morning for a bear hunt in the mountains. Like the Alaska "mushers" they carried their pack on their backs.
Aftermath of the Fair.
Odell people are home from the exposition, poorer but wiser. We all had the tale of our lives, and no one regrets the money it cost to help advertise the wonderful Hood River valley at one of the greatest and most successful of the numerous world's fairs.
Mr. Wagner, the gentleman in charge of the Benton county booth, said to me, while seated at the dining table: "I have asked 100 men why Hood River apples are better than any other apples. They could not tell, and I'll bet you can't."
I was glad of the opportunity to explain, and in a voice loud enough for all at the table to hear, gave an analysis of the soil of Hood River valley, telling of the certain elements which go toward making the keeping qualities, high color and rich flavor surpassed by no other apples in the world.
The laugh was turned on Mr. Wagner, who hauled in his horns and acknowledged the corn.
To me the moving pictures of the cattle roundup in the Wyoming exhibit was the most interesting of all the features of the exposition, having myself been a cowboy at one time, and assisted in herding the wild cattle of the ranges; rounding up the ferce animals and branding them in the corral. The wild and fascinating life thus vividly portrayed, held me as one enchanted. Like the boys of Wyoming, it was dying hard to give up the strenuous life of the plains to fall in the procession of civilization.

While at the exposition, I met three schoolmates of the class of 1877; who can beat this?
The gentleman in charge of the Wenatchee valley exhibit said to me that at St. Louis last year the fruit display of the Wenatchee valley took the lead up to the last minute when Hood River stepped in with a big bunch of fruit and captured the grand prize. He says he is afraid this will happen again.
Hundreds of our nickel souvenir badges could be sold at the exposition now. This badge was pronounced by all as the most unique at the fair. Hood River and Tacoma are acknowledged to be in the lead in the matter of advertising their respective sections. Now watch them both grow.

BARRETT.

Hood River Day at Portland! Well, with thirteen cars well packed with men, women and children, full of life and fun, bound to make merry the day, we left Hood River at 7:30 a. m. With the yell, "Who are we?" we sped along beside the old Columbia, whose waters have rolled on for ages. If they could but speak what tales might be told. We pass the towering mountains and rocky bluffs, with little streams and rivulets and high towering falls. We cross the old Willamette river, arriving at Union depot, Portland, in good shape at 9:30.
The boys gave the yell, "Who are we?" in good shape; lined up in the street for the march with Colonel Shelley mounted on his charger as marshal of the day. Following in the line are large wagons loaded with our school children. Nearly may be seen Professor Thompson with his big red apple hoisted on a long yavel. After parading the street, we find ourselves seated in street cars on the way to the fair grounds, where we are soon separated and lost in the throng of pleasure seekers.
A visit to Agricultural hall, where every one is looking for their own county exhibit, everything was just grand, and many I found who were inquiring for the Hood River exhibits, showing that our valley is known far and near. The Roosevelt cabin will not be forgotten because of the man who occupied it in days gone by. We must mention the exhibit of the Wadhams and Kerr Bros. A crowd of people are quietly waiting their turn to be served with coffee in a nice dainty cup from the hands of the lady in charge. Of course the writer had a taste of the coffee, and must say that it was fine and was highly spoken of by all; the brand is Red Cross, and you can get it at Rockford store.

The forestry building is simply grand. The California building told of the land of gold, fruit and grain. On the Trail is the din and yell of men and women offering their wares for sale. On the way to the Government building we visit the stock where we see very fine cattle, and as we view the coach horse and hunters the blood warms up, for it carries the mind back to younger days with our feet in the stirrups, mounted on a fiery steed at the sound of the horn and a huntsman's whip with the hounds in full chase and old Reynard leading the hounds in an intricate path. But those days are gone. Let us still be merry and make our hearts glad. A visit to the boys' and girls' home and much has been seen. Ascending the steps to that home is seen a man with a large grip full of nice eating apples purchased from J. J. Gibbons and presented to the home for the homeless of the institution. So we trust their little hearts were made glad. A visit on Saturday to the fair, thousands of people might be seen. In the morning the soldiers paraded in the shape and were complimented by the people. The air ship made a few voyages in space above the earth.
A pleasant trip on the little boat bridge for the sum of 10 cents was quite a treat. We made our headquarters at the St. Charles hotel, where we had good quarters. The genial proprietor of the restaurant, W. M. Robinson, served up meals in the shape. On Friday over 900 meals were served for the small sum of 25 cents, when across the way the barber charged 45 cents for a shave and a wipe down on your face with cream.
Much more might be said, but I must close by asking the editor to bear with me in my long writup. Of course you know the writer. It is Rockford.
Mr. True and family have returned from the hop fields.
P. C. Sherriob and wife were visiting the Lewis and Clark fair at Portland with the crowd on Thursday last. This was his second visit.
When in Portland Rockford made several purchases of new goods, and amongst the lot is men's women's pants.
Mushrooms are plentiful just now. What nice puddings can be made with a little mutton put with them. You can also make the very finest of catsup from mushrooms.
MOUNT HOOD.
There will be a special meeting of the Mount Hood Development League at the hall Saturday afternoon to hear the report of those who attended the dairy convention in Portland, and transact such other business as may come before the organization. The directors of the Middle Fork Irrigation Co. organized with D. E. Miller, president; R. J. Melane, vice president; J. H. Thomas, secretary, and J. Hansen, treasurer.
Mr. and Mrs. Warren Cooper left Tuesday for a week at the Lewis and Clark fair.
Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brandhorst and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Walters of Black Hawk county, Iowa, spent a few days here, the guests of R. J. Melane.
Our neighborhood was almost deserted last week, the whole community turned out en masse and helped make Hood River day a success at the fair.
Pete Felthausen has returned from Cloud Cap Inn and is now making his home with Henry Thomlinson.
Henry Thomlinson has commenced the construction of a large basement barn. He is putting in a concrete foundation and the barn when finished will be a strong substantial structure.
Jim Langille says he wishes he could go to Portland like other folks and not have to spend so much money. Jim is always pessimistic, and is even complaining of the good luck in not going kicked to death by one of the fine horses at the stock show. Langille was looking over the fancy horses with a great deal of interest. As he passed the last stall, one of the WHITE SALMON.

FROM THE ENTERPRISE.
Fred Rosegrant returned from Weath, Oregon, Sunday, having completed the school building at that place in just four weeks.
A. D. Matine is under his own vine and fig tree (so to speak) once more, having his new house on Weyer avenue so far completed as to be able to occupy it, though there is considerable work to be done yet before it is finished.
A party of surveyors passed through Bingen Saturday and White Salmon the first of the week. They were in the employ of the Gerlinger railroad and were relocating the stakes of the old O. R. & N. survey which was run six or seven years ago.
Fred Pursler, who has been sick with typhoid fever for some time is now rapidly improving and will soon be able to be around again.
The improvements on the dock have been completed, and it is now in better condition than it has ever been before. New caps have been put on the piling and the latter have been thoroughly away braced and a new warehouse constructed.
F. W. Balsiger and his family have been having a serious time with typhoid fever for the past few weeks, but we are glad to announce this week that all are rapidly improving. Mr. and Mrs. Balsiger and three children were all down at one time with the disease. Mr. Balsiger's brother, Dr. Balsiger, came down from Colfax and is now in attendance on the sick. If there are no backsets they will all be out now in the course of a week or two. The brother members of the grange have been attending to Mr. Balsiger's crops during his sickness.
BINGEN.
As there has not been anything from this place in the Glacier for some time, a few notes might be of interest.
The all absorbing question now is the railroad, or rather, as the railroad seems to be an assured fact, where the depot is to be; and as there has been no announcement made by the company where the station will be, the question is open for the people to talk about.
Three places are taken into consideration by the people—Underwood, White Salmon and Bingen. Underwood claims the shortest route to Canas Prairie and Trout Lake. White Salmon: Is it the little town on the bluff. It is rather doubtful that a railroad will climb the celebrated 350 steps to make the town a station. Or is it greater White Salmon including a part of the bottom?
But the Portland big dailies, the Goldenlands papers, and even the Glacier have all on maps, or otherwise, that the north bank railroad will be located through White Salmon; therefore, it ought to be correct.
And what of Bingen? Very little attention has been paid to the place, though a short route to Canas Prairie; also the most practical location for depot and sidetracks. Where will the station be?
No surveying has been done near Bingen. One surveying crew is working down from Lytle.
The Maple Hotel has changed hands. Mrs. Hansen of Portland has taken charge of it.
Ed H. Suedorf, having disposed of his hotel, is going on a visit to Spokane, but will probably be back before long.
Peter Tama, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Coleman and Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Byrckett have been at the fair recently.
School has not commenced in this district, as the directors are unable to get a teacher. Have you any to spare at Hood River?
