The Wonderful Hood River Apple.

A wonderful apple is the Hood River apple— Perhaps you have heard this before; Perhaps while you slept, of our prices you dreamt, Of our fame and gold medals galore. We intend to keep on top of the heap In Hood River valley with climate and view, Mt. Adams, Mt. Hood, the Newtowns so good, And the Spitz that we all like to chew. The people all say, "Are they real or just wax?" And cry, "What a marvelous show!" Other towns in disgust look as if they would bust, When Hood River comes to blow. —E. H. Shepard.

THE BANQUET.

That the enthusiasm and good will manifested at the banquet given by the commercial club of this city was gratifying to its members goes without saying. That an affair of the importance and magnitude of this was so successfully carried through speaks well for the character and ability of the citizens of Hood River. Admirably planned there was neither hitch or break to mar the pleasure and entertainment of the evening.

While the social side of the gathering was of course paramount. The tendency of segregation is toward selfishness and individualism and it is necessary to awaken most of us to the fact that there are other interests about us that should be of more importance than mere personal gain.

The remarks of the speakers on this occasion were, we think calculated to make us forget ourselves for the time being at least and remember the needs of a larger and better community. Much can be accomplished by intelligent organized effort, toward the goal of progress and prosperity, while little can result from each one trying to reach it by pulling in a different direction.

The good feeling engendered at the banquet cannot fail to have its impression. The enthusiasm exhibited was genuine and expressions of good will toward the club in its efforts to further develop the resources of the valley were many. The club and the gentlemen who had the affair in charge are to be congratulated, the speakers are to be felicitated and the residents of Hood River should be pardoned if they hold their heads a trifle higher than they did previous to the occasion.

We think that Hood River should be allowed to pat itself on the back a little over the showing it made at the meeting of the Horticultural Society at Portland. Five out of the seven cups offered as prizes were captured by the home growers. This will do very nicely, thank you. It looks, however, as though we were entitled to another one, but that the judges wanted to give outside growers some little consolation for exhibiting their fruit. However, to repeat, we have done nicely and it is a source of much satisfaction to the Glacier that its statements as to the fine quality of this year's apples have been borne out by such tangible proof. Cups, like figures, don't lie, and the proof of the pudding is in chewing the string.

The cartoon man of the Oregonian caught A. I. Mason, E. H. Shepard and E. L. Smith on the fly at the meeting of the Horticultural Society yesterday. We think he must have got his suits slightly mixed, as it were, as the dignified president of the society is clothed in the habiliments of a bookmaker; A. I. sports a white vest, and the irrepressible Shepard is seen in a clawhammer coat.

We do not remember any previous time when local newspapers throughout Oregon have shown so much interest in the subject of fighting the San Jose scale and other insect pests as at the present time. A part of this interest has been aroused by the county inspectors who are almost without exception good men.—Ex.

NATIONAL BANK ELECTS OFFICERS

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the First National Bank was held Tuesday afternoon. The meeting was well attended and all the shareholders were represented. F. W. Mulkey, of Portland, the bank's attorney was also present.

An election of officers for the ensuing year was held and the following directors elected: F. S. Stanley, E. L. Smith, R. Smith, J. C. Ainsworth, J. W. Hurlburt.

The election of officers of the bank for the new year was then held, which resulted as follows: President—F. S. Stanley, Vice-President—E. L. Smith, Cashier—E. O. Blancher, Assistant Cashier—V. C. Brock.

The latter is a new office and was made necessary by the increased business which the bank is doing. E. O. Blancher was granted a leave of absence of two weeks during which time Mr. Stanley will have personal charge.

The affairs of the bank were found to be in a most prosperous and satisfactory condition and the business outlook for it for the coming year is equally satisfactory.

Don't forget that Clark's cut glass exceeds any in town. Come and see.

WORK ON THE SEWER COMMENCED TUESDAY

The work of excavating for the new sewer was commenced Tuesday between the Columbia River and the railroad tracks. Page & Clark, who are the engineers on the sewer contract, have engaged Hall-Lewis to look after their interests here while the sewer is in course of construction. About 30 men have been placed at work so far and it is expected that as soon as the pipe arrives that as many men will be put to work on the job as can be handled to the best advantage.

There have been a number of applications for work on the sewer by men whose homes are here and it is understood that they will be given the preference. The work has been started about 1400 feet north of the O. R. & N. station and is progressing quite rapidly. The excavating will be the most tedious part of the job, as once the ditch is dug the pipe can be placed in position very rapidly.

The pipe has not yet arrived and until it does operations will necessarily have to be confined to staking out and excavating. The city charter makes the appointment of an inspector to look after the interests of the city necessary, but as yet no one has been selected. It is thought that this provision will be complied with in a few days. The sewer committee of council has the matter under advisement and their intention to select some one who will be conversant with sewer matters and competent to fill the position.

A Wonderful Automaton.

In the year 1770 the most wonderful automaton that has ever been constructed was exhibited at Exeter exchange, London. This automaton was a country gentleman's house, and was of such intricate and elaborate construction that no one disputed the claim of the exhibitor when he declared that he had worked twenty-seven years in perfecting it. It showed the regulation English country house, with parks, gardens, cascades, temples, bridges, etc., besides over 100 appropriately clad human figures in the garden, on the bridges, chopping wood and at various building operations. In the park were several deer moving naturally about and four horses and a coach following the meandering road. Besides the above the figures of boys were seen fishing from the bridges, while a boat load of ladies and gentlemen regularly rowed across an enlargement in the brook, much to the consternation of the natural looking figures of geese and ducks which were paddling about in the water. The interior of these automata and intricate figures were included in a space only four and one-half feet square.

When the Duke of Ormond, whose family name was Butler, was going to take possession as lord lieutenant of Ireland, he was driven by a storm on to the Isle of Man, where a Rev. Mr. Joseph, a poor curate, entertained him as hospitably as his means permitted. On his departure the duke promised to provide for him as soon as he became vicar. The curate waited many months in vain and at last went over to Dublin to remind his grace of his promise. Despairing of gaining access to the duke, he obtained permission to preach at the cathedral. The lord lieutenant and his court were at the church, but none of them remembered their humble host till he pronounced his text, which it must be acknowledged, was well chosen. "Yet did the chief ruler remember Joseph, but forgot him." The preacher was at once invited to the castle and a good living provided for him.

A Winning Text.

When the Duke of Ormond, whose family name was Butler, was going to take possession as lord lieutenant of Ireland, he was driven by a storm on to the Isle of Man, where a Rev. Mr. Joseph, a poor curate, entertained him as hospitably as his means permitted. On his departure the duke promised to provide for him as soon as he became vicar. The curate waited many months in vain and at last went over to Dublin to remind his grace of his promise. Despairing of gaining access to the duke, he obtained permission to preach at the cathedral. The lord lieutenant and his court were at the church, but none of them remembered their humble host till he pronounced his text, which it must be acknowledged, was well chosen. "Yet did the chief ruler remember Joseph, but forgot him." The preacher was at once invited to the castle and a good living provided for him.

The Theban Sphinx.

The Theban sphinx was said to be a monster sent by Juno to lay waste the country around Thebes. It had the head and bust of a woman, the body of a lion and the wings of a bird, the paws of a lion and a human voice. It at once became the terror of the neighborhood and devoured all who could not solve the riddle which it propounded. "What animal walks on four legs in the morning, two at noon and three at night?" Oedipus, attracted by the promise of King Creon of his crown and his sister in marriage, came to Thebes and declared that man goes on all fours in infancy, erect on two legs when grown up and supports the infirmities of age with a staff. On hearing this correct solution the sphinx dashed her head against a wall, and the land had rest.

The Work of the Heart.

One of the most remarkable things about the heart is the amount of work it does. Considering the organ as a pump whose task is to deliver a known quantity of blood against a known "head," it is easy to show that in twenty-four hours a man's heart does about 124 foot tons of work. "In other words," says a contemporary, "if the whole force expended by the heart in twenty-four hours were gathered into one huge stroke, such a power would lift 124 tons one foot from the ground. A similar calculation has been made respecting the amount of work expended by the muscles involved in breathing. In twenty-four hours these muscles do about twenty-one foot tons of work."

A Chinese Custom.

A quaint custom practiced by Chinese mothers when a child is restless and does not sleep is to write the following verse and pin a copy of it on each of the four corners of the house, that the passersby may read and the child find rest. Literally translated the verse reads: Brilliant sparkling heaven, Brilliant sparkling earth, In my house there is a child who cries at night. The gentlemen coming from the four quarters behold Peaceful sleep till break of day.

Le Hirro represents a dentist's servant opening the door to a patient.

"And whom, sir," asks the servant, bowing low, "shall I have the misery of announcing?"

An Excuse.

Patience—What reason had she for marrying him? Patience—Why, she had money. Patience—That is not a reason that is not a reason.

NO TALK BUT HERE TO "DO SOMETHING"

When W. H. Moore, of Portland made the statement at the banquet Saturday night that he intended to "do something," considerable interest was awakened in the minds of his hearers. Rumors to the effect that an electric road was to be built out the west side from Hood River to Mount Hood have been persistent for some time and it is thought that this is the project of which Mr. Moore had in mind when he made the above statement.

The proposed line it is said will go out the Belmont road, taking a course that will bring it around by Barrett and the planing mill of the Stanley-Smith Lumber Co., and back into town near the bank of the river.

The lumber company is also said to be interested in the new line and if it is constructed it is understood that it will be made to conform to the standard railroad gauge which will permit the company to have railroad cars hauled out to the planer and there loaded. Such an arrangement would give the lumber company an opportunity to market its dressed lumber at a great advantage.

Abundant water power could be obtained from the nearby river for operating a power plant of almost any magnitude, and it is thought that a plant may be built at a point near Tucker's bridge. From this point it is claimed that power could be distributed to a greater advantage than if placed at either end of the line.

The ultimate destination of the line is said to be Mount Hood, with the view of handling the local trade and also for the purpose of securing the tourist traffic which it is expected will be developed by the large amount of money being expended by the O. R. & N. in advertising the attractions of the Hood River Valley and the matchless beauty of the mountain itself.

It is said by those who ought to know that an electric road through this first section mentioned, which is so closely settled and which taps one of the most fertile fruit localities in the valley cannot help but be a profitable investment and that its construction would be comparatively inexpensive.

Walked 20 Miles to Skip Board (B. H.). Last Thursday Ed Doan was arrested here and taken back to The Dalles by Constable Wood for skipping a board bill. Doan was accompanied by his wife and the couple had walked the railroad track from The Dalles to this city during the night, a distance of over twenty miles.

Doan was taken back Thursday afternoon, but his wife was so fatigued that she was unable to accompany
