Work was started on the ditch of the Hood River Irrigating District yesterday. It was expected that the work would commence the first of the week, but so much difficulty has been experienced in getting material for making a camp on the ground, that the men engaged to start on the work were able to reach there. Gebisch & Joplin have the contract, but have sublet it to Nick Caserio who with a party of Italian contractors, worked yesterday. Mr. Caserio has been in charge here of some of the work on the Mount Hood railroad for the same firm and has had considerable experience in this kind of work in Portland and at other points. ANNOUNCEMENT. To the Republicans of Wasco county: I hereby announce myself as a candidate for nomination upon the Republican ticket for Sheriff of Wasco county, subject to the vote cast at the primary election to be held April 20, 1906. If nominated and elected, I promise to fulfill the duties of the office to the best of my abilities by being courteous to all and giving the office the same careful attention that I would if it was my personal business. Yours respectfully, LEVI CHRISMAN.

HOOD RIVER'S EXHIBIT BEST

If numbers, enthusiasm and the quality of exhibits count for anything in the session of the Oregon State Horticultural Association, which opened in the Marquam building at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, will go into history as the most successful meeting the society has ever held. Never before have so many prominent Oregon horticulturists come together to interchange courtesies and ideas on fruit-growing. Hood River, Salem, Independence and McMinnville, Portland and Eastern Oregon were represented. Those who are uniformly successful have come to teach others; those who have met with failure have come to learn. When President J. R. Carlwell called the meeting to order, fully 75 fruit growers from all parts of the state occupied seats in the hall. The pick of the apple crop of the respective growers was piled in profusion on long tables. Visitors were reminded of the days of the Lewis and Clark expedition, when they saw so much fine fruit that they ceased to wonder. But in quality this exhibit was said by the horticultural men to surpass the exhibit of the fair. Competition was keen. Hood River had by far the best display, for outside of this section there were but two other entries of apples, both from the Willamette Valley. Millard O. Lownds, of Dundee, has seven boxes of choice Redwines, while F. W. Wallace, of McMinnville, had an entry of the same variety. Outside of one kind of apple, it looks as if Hood River men were able to retain their long-held supremacy. Southern Oregon seems to have forgotten entirely to make any entries. Hood River also enjoyed the distinction of sending the largest delegation to the convention, more than 25 persons going from here. The list includes the following: R. C. Brock, A. I. Mason, E. H. Shepard and wife, G. R. Castner, A. P. Bateham, James A. Wilson, Edwin Knowles, Thomas E. Avery, J. L. Carter, C. Porter, B. R. Tucker, C. E. Markham and wife, E. L. Smith, Peter Mohr, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Egger, C. E. Warren, W. H. Marshall, S. J. LaFrance and E. Shelby Morrison. In the distribution of cups Hood River secured five out of the seven offered, and of the four honorable mentions made, was given one. The exhibition of apples is said to be the finest ever held in this state and that it far exceeds the one made at St. Louis and also at the Lewis and Clark fair. Following is a list of the cup winners: Northern Spies, A. Holladay, Scappoose. Jonathan, A. Holladay, Scappoose. Arkansas Black, William Ehrek, Hood River. Baldwin, M. O. Lownds, La Fayette. Lady Apple, A. I. Mason, Hood River. Yellow Newtowns, Thomas E. Avery, Hood River. Spitzbergen, A. P. Bateham, Mosier. First best commercial exhibit, J. L. Carter, Hood River. Second, commercial exhibit, R. B. Tucker, Hood River. Honorable mention: Orley, Peter Mohr, Hood River; Ben Davis, M. O. Lownds, La Fayette; Jonathan, Captain Gordon Voorhes, Medford; Baldwin, F. W. Wallace, McMinnville. The judges were J. B. Pilkington of Portland; R. H. Lambertson of Salem, of the state board of horticulture, and Colonel Henry E. Doseh of Portland, and the prize winning apples were given to the persons who donated the cups. In speaking of the Hood River exhibit, the Oregonian says: "The Hood River orchards are not so extensive as those of Southern Oregon, but when it comes to showing the right kind of fruit and carrying off prizes the little valley is right [to the front. In this exhibit it took five of the seven cups offered, and had one honorable mention in the four given. The Redwines were also exceedingly difficult to judge, for the displays were all of such excellence that it was hard to differentiate. The prize finally went to Mr. Lownds, but the specimens displayed by Mr. Markham of Hood River and Mr. Wallace of McMinnville were just as good as the ordinary observer. There was no cup offered for the Orley variety, but the display of those apples made by Peter Mohr of Hood River was so perfect that it caused unusual comment, both size and quality being beyond criticism. The Spitzbergen exhibit was in close competition, but after much deliberation the judges awarded the prize to A. P. Bateham of Mosier. "G. R. Castner of Hood River, who is known over the state as a successful appleman, was taking great interest in the proceedings, and A. I. Mason and Claude Markham were also active. J. L. Carter was expressing his gratification over the handsome cup he has to carry home for the best commercial pack. Mr. Carter's apples won the first prize in the big display which was sent to St. Louis from Hood River, so he feels that his apples are the best in the world, and thus reason for so thinking." He was followed by A. I. Mason, of Hood River, in a "Plain Talk to Fruit Growers," who said: "The duties of a fruit grower in this broadest sense are unlimited. They are never completed until he has crossed the divide to the happy beyond. Let me ask you: Are you doing your duty as an orchard grower or chard? Are you doing everything in your power to keep your trees in a clean, healthy and thrifty condition? Are you making fruitgrowing a business or are you making it a side interest? "If the latter, are you not permitting your fellow fruitgrowers to build up the quality, price and reputation of the fruit growing in your respective districts without your sharing the responsibility. "Are you drifting along in a careless and indifferent manner? If so, wake up. Clean out your orchards, spray and prune your trees and do your work carefully, intelligently and diligently. Give you ever thought that if each fruitgrower would do his duty we would need no fruit inspectors to condemn our fruit or compel us to spray our trees. A fruitgrower who knowingly has an orchard infected, and who has to be officially notified by a fruit inspector to clean it, is maintaining a public nuisance. "After a grower has his crop ready to place on the market, comes a time when duty calls upon him most forcibly. Do you know that one unscrupulous packer and shipper of fruit can do more towards tearing down the good reputation of fruit in your district than 30 men can do toward building it up? It is at this time when duty calls upon you. Cooperate is the call. It means a more uniform packing of your fruit. It means a better method of disposing of it, and it means better prices. "The large buyer will not buy from the individual fruit grower to any great extent. They want the fruit in a larger bulk, and especially desire a uniform pack. A large commission firm in Germany told me of my neighbors who visited there last fall that it would buy our Newtowns f. o. b. cars at Hood River if it could be assured not less than 10,000 boxes in the deal. This illustrates the necessity of fruitgrowers of any locality selling under one management. "In Hood River Valley we have raised the price of our standard varieties of apples, Newtowns and Spitzbergs, from $1.25 to $2.00 a box, adding our entire crop at one deal f. o. b. cars at Hood River. We are placing on the market of the world a better quality of fruit and are packing it in such a uniform and perfect system that we fear no competition. "Levi Chrisman of The Dalles was in town Wednesday. Mr. Chrisman announces himself as a candidate for sheriff, as can be seen from his card in another column. It will be remembered that he was candidate for the nomination two years ago and came very near being successful.
