The White Salmon Enterprise is four years old.
The Republican state ticket is a good one. Vote it straight.

Arkansas strawberries sold in Grand Forks, N. D., last week at ten cents a box, yet the people of that city prefer Hood River's at twenty cents, and most of them wait for Hood River berries for canning.

Among the many things in Oregon that look odd to an Eastern man, is to see the Irish vote the Republican ticket, prohibitionists among the Democrats, and to see water run up hill.

Those who have not yet paid their sewer assessment should do so at once, as the sewer is about completed and the contractors will have to be paid in full. With this in view the council instructed the sewer committee to force collections at once, and all delinquents not paid at once will be turned over to an attorney, which will add costs to the original amount.

The principal objection to Jonathan Bourne at the primary election was the talk about his conduct at Salem nine years ago, and it was given considerable credence. He had ignored the malicious stories until the circulation of them by printed circulars through the mail, when they have been branded as false by men of unquestioned character and standing. Republicans who before believed the stories should now have no hesitancy in supporting Mr. Bourne.

It is said that a conspiracy exists to break down the primary law and disrupt the Republican party by giving Senator Gearin the popular vote in June, and then defeat him in the legislature on the ground that the Republican Statement No. 1 legislators are not expected to vote for a Democrat. Thus they hope to defeat the law and defeat Jonathan Bourne, and throw the senatorial election into the legislature in order that the certificate of election may be auctioned off to the highest bidder. This may explain the interest some of the old political bosses had in the primary election.

Not Many Women Would Care to Vote.
If the women of Oregon themselves wanted to vote there might be some excuse for giving them the right. But, apparently, the women do not want this privilege and pay little attention to the glowing speeches made by the woman suffragists imported from other states.
That this is so is plainly proved by many recent occurrences, and the man must be blind who does not recognize them.
It is not necessary to dwell on the fact that an association of women with headquarters in Portland and branches all over the state, have sent out circular letters asking the men of Oregon not to mistake the clamor of female agitators from distant states for the sentiment of the women of Oregon. Are striking and convincing proof that the women themselves do not want the burden of the ballot forced upon them is found in a recent debate which took place in the largest church in Portland. At this debate two preachers, the Rev. J. Whitcomb Broughton and the Rev. Clarence True Wilson, took opposite sides on the woman suffrage question. The audience was composed, by actual count, of 400 women and about 40 men.
At the close of the debate a vote was taken on the question of woman suffrage and the result stood 176 against it and only 173 for it.
When it is considered that the suffragists had got out their crowd, that there were very few men in the audience and that many of these refused to vote, the result of the balloting is most significant.

Why should the burden and duties of the ballot be forced upon the women of this state against their wishes?

Birthday Party.
Little Katherine Baker entertained a party of little folks Tuesday afternoon, it being the occasion of her sixth birthday, which was greatly enjoyed. Those present were: Ann Shepard, Florence Castner, Franklin Frountz, Lucile Abbott, Lucinda Lankey, Anna May Chipping, Catherine Ross, Irene Yates, Gladys Morton, Lenora Cram, Florence and Frances Mo, Edna Jackson, Mary Whitmo, Whitehead.

Dropped Dead.
Frank Folk, who came here from Friend, Ore., to pick strawberries dropped dead from heart disease on the streets of Hood River Saturday evening, while walking with a friend. His parents were notified, and his father and a brother arrived Sunday. The funeral was held Sunday at Nichols' undertaking rooms and the remains interred in Idlewild. The funeral services were conducted by W. A. Elkins, of the Valley Christian church.

Teachers Appointed.
The school board have appointed Prof. Crouse superintendent of the city schools, and Mrs. Gove principal of the hill school. All of the other teachers have been engaged for another year, except Miss Coppel, who intends to resume her studies at the university.
The board regretted to lose Mr. Wiley, but felt that they were unable to pay the advance of $300 salary asked by Mr. Wiley. He has given satisfaction at the head of the Hood River schools, and the schools have prospered under his management.

Woodworth Property Sold.
Last week W. J. Baker sold the G. D. Woodworth place, known as the Keystone Farm, to Mr. Swick, of Grant county, for $15,000. The place contains 35 acres, and is all in a high state of cultivation. The improvements are valuable, the place close to town, and an ideal farm. It contains the largest cherry orchard in the valley, which has been very profitable to Mr. Woodworth. Mr. Woodworth has considerable land not far from the Keystone ranch, and will probably build on it near his sons, who adjoin the property.

CODLIN MOTH LAYS EGGS IN BOTTLE

E. H. Shepard captured a live codlin moth in his orchard last week and put it in a large mouthed bottle, where it laid 25 eggs and then died. The mouth of the bottle has been covered with a cloth to admit the air, and the eggs will be allowed to hatch. Pieces of apple are also deposited in the bottle for the worms to feed on, and their development will be watched with interest, and perhaps with profit. It is on exhibition at the office of the Fruit Growers' Union.

While all apple growers are fighting the codlin moth many of them do not know the codlin moth from other insects when they see it, and few of them have seen the eggs to know what they are. The eggs are about the size of a pin head, and are round and of a greyish color.

The codlin moth comes out of the cocoon, lives a few days, lays from 20 to 30 eggs and then dies. The eggs hatch out in about eleven days, and the worms immediately bore into the apple, which they inhabit for about twenty days, and then go into a cocoon to form the moth later. It takes about fifty days to complete the cycle. This period would take it to about the 15th of July for the second brood, and would be the time for spraying. Of course all of the moths do not hatch out on the same day, but probably the bulk of them are out within a few days of each other.

The time for the third brood of moths is about the first of September, and two years ago this third brood did great damage in the valley, to orchards that were not properly sprayed. Last year the damage in September was very slight, perhaps due in a measure to the cold rains that were prevalent for a couple of weeks about that time.

Very little arsenate of lead spray was used two years ago, and the spray was easily washed off by rain, while the arsenate of lead sticks more firmly to the outside of the apple after the manner of paint.

Hood River vs. Stevenson.
The ball game at Columbia Park last Sunday between Hood River and Stevenson was well attended, and although at the beginning the article of ball played by Hood River was not of the best quality, after the fourth inning the home team settled down and played gilt-edged ball.

Hart, the young pitcher for the locals, struck out nine men and allowed only six hits, which, considering that this was his first game with the team, classifies him as a most promising young pitcher. His work at the bat was also good he securing two hits, one of them being a two-bagger.

Pond, the local catcher, played an errorless game, and except for a couple of poor throws to second, played league ball.

The finish of the game was the kind that causes the fans to go into ecstasies, as the score was 9 to 7 in favor of Stevenson until the last half of the ninth, when the locals held a batting rally and scored three runs, winning the game.

The Strawberry Situation.
Berries are coming in slowly, owing to the cool weather, and the demand far exceeds the supply. This has kept the market firm, and prices are expected to hold up well. Berries were still being billed out at $3.25 yesterday, and only about 500 crates per day coming in.
Reports are general of a light crop. The hard frosts hurt all berries that had started to grow prior to the freeze, many reporting only half a crop. The White Salmon crop is hurt probably over 30 per cent, while many within five miles of Hood River are hurt 50 per cent. The foot-hill berries suffered very little, as they were covered more or less with snow. Their best posted estimate this year's crop at about 60 per cent of last year.

Halt-English.
Chas. H. Hall and Miss Annie English were married Thursday, May 17, at the residence of the bride's parents, in Portland.
Mr. Hall is proprietor of Williams Pharmacy here, and has made many friends during his residence among us. The bride is well and favorably known in Portland, and is a violinist of some note.

Mr. and Mrs. Hall arrived in Hood River Monday evening and went to housekeeping at once in the Marcellus residence, which Mr. Hall recently purchased. The Glacier offers congratulations.

GILMER.
Will Gilmer lost his house by fire about two weeks ago. He saved most of the things down stairs. Loss about $500. It was fortunate the old folks got out all right. He is rebuilding.

W. Peterson, one of men working for Wickens & Tompkins, got badly hurt by a falling limb but is getting along very well now. It struck him on the head and arm, knocking him unconscious for awhile.

Richardson, the county surveyor, has been here locating a road down Gilmer creek to connect with the Trout Lake road. He says he will have a fine grade about 2 1/2 miles, where now they have to travel 14 miles to get to the same point.

G. B. Tompkins lost a fine mare while logging. She got snagged and he had to shoot her. She was valued at $200.

C. M. Douglas took a flying trip to Portland on business last week.

Mr. Tompkins was at Hood River last week on business.
Mr. Pittman and family have moved up from Portland for the summer on their homestead. They proved up last fall. Mrs. Pittman's health being better up here, will stay during the summer.

WE ARE NEVER UNDERSOLD

To the Voters of Wasco County.
During the past week there has been and there is still being circulated a report throughout the country to the effect that the saloonmen of The Dalles had given me $250 to use as a campaign fund to defeat my opponent, Mr. Simon Bolton, for county clerk. I was first informed of this at Hood River by a prominent Democrat who is also a prohibitionist, and who at first did not want to tell me where he got his information. He said that Mr. Moore, foreman of the fruit farm at Hood River owned by County Judge Lake, and County Clerk Bolton told him, and that he (Moore) got it straight from Mr. Lake, and further, that I told Mr. Lake.

Now for the facts:
About six or seven weeks previous to the primaries, and about five days before I decided to sign my nominating petition, I met Mr. Lake on the street and in the course of our conversation the matter of my running for county clerk came up. Mr. Lake, Mr. Bolton's partner in The Abstract books of Wasco county, very kindly said to me that I was the strongest man that the Democratic party could put up, but that I would be defeated. I said to him that I was not going to run, and did not intend to at that time. I told him that a number of my friends were anxious for me to make the race, and one man, who is in the saloon business, told me that the saloon men would give me $150 toward my campaign expenses, as several of them were sore, not because Mr. Bolton was not a drinking man, but for another reason, that I did not tell Mr. Lake, nor am I going to put it in print at this time, as very likely many of the readers of this paper. In conclusion, I will say to the voters of Wasco county that I have lived in The Dalles for twenty-nine years, grown from childhood to manhood in your midst, and those of you who know me will believe me when I say that on my honor as a man the saloonmen of this county have not given nor loaned me one single cent to carry on my campaign, and further, that there is not an office within your gift that I can get. I would knowingly tell a falsehood, either in regard to myself or about my opponent.

Yours to win honestly,
JOHN HAMPSHIRE.
