

TO TELL OF MISSOURI FRUIT

St. Louis capitalists who are interested in fruit orchards throughout Missouri are making preparations to secure statistics in regard to the production of fruit in the state...

It is estimated that there are upwards of 20,000,000 bearing apple trees in Missouri, and the state is in fact as well as in name the veritable "Land of the Big Red Apple..."

Of late the Clark country has become almost one vast orchard and year after year these fruit farms are increasing in area...

Another advantage possessed by the state is that, owing to her peculiar climate, the crops, particularly of strawberries, watermelons and peaches...

It is the intention of these St. Louis capitalists as soon as the fruit crop is disposed of, and authentic statistics can be secured to send these figures broadcast all over this country...

Advice as to Cherry Picking. At the mid-winter horticultural meeting held at Hartford, Michigan, Benton Gerhardt gave his plan for picking cherries...

Mr. Gerhardt leaves not to exceed one-half inch of stem and does not practice facing out, as he prefers to have his fruit show for just what it is...

The advantages claimed are: More fruit picked per hand, better colored fruit, better price, etc.

Mr. Gerhardt recommends low loading of the trees and trimming at least enough to allow the pickers free access to all parts of the tree...

Last Tuesday night put the finishing touches on the fruit crop of Baker valley and it also put a great many gardens out of commission...

Yesterday it was rainy and bustling all day with snow falling on the mountains. There was a cold north wind sweeping up the valley...
