RELATIVE VALUES IRRIGATED LANDS Like everything else, have different values. An acre of land on a mountain side is as large as an acre of the finest irrigated lands, but as a gold piece compared with a dime, or a five-cent piece with a five dollar gold piece, one may be worth ten or a hundred times more than the other. The irrigated lands owned by this company lie on the opposite side of the Columbia River from Kennewick, in Walla Walla County, Wash., and near the new town of ATYLLA, which is located at the junction of the Northern Pacific, Washington & Columbia River and the O. R. & N. Railroads; also at the head of navigation on the Columbia River. The special advantages of this district are: 1—The early season. 2—High prices for early products. 3—Unexcelled transportation facilities. 4—Abundant water supply. 5—Most fertile land in the state. Some cleared and leveled lands from which crops can be secured this year for sale. ABUNDANT GRAVITY WATER SUPPLY. NO PUMPING. For prices relative to irrigated lands, or lots in ATYLLA, together with maps and descriptive literature, call on or address THE COLUMBIA CANAL COMPANY, 509, 510 Marjon Building, Seattle, Wash.
