THURSDAY, JULY 19, 1906.

Portland proposes to buy a new fire boat, to cost $100,000.

The Dalles wants a distillery for the manufacture of denatured alcohol to pickle their scorpions.

The Portland street car men threaten to strike unless their union is recognized by the company. The trouble was precipitated by the discharge of the secretary of the local union.

The Dalles Chronicle, in speaking of the cherry show at Salem, at which Hood River carried off most of the prizes, says in the head-line, "Wasco Wins." If a Dalles man had taken any of the prizes at the show would they still have said, "Wasco Wins?"

County Fruit Inspector Castner gives warning in another column not to offer for sale any fruit that is infected with San Jose scale or worms.

It is unlawful for any one to dispose of infected fruit, and if growers will neglect to spray their orchards against scale or codling moth, they must keep their fruit at home. Radical measures are needed to stamp out disease and pests, and while this may work a hardship in some cases, it will result in future benefit.

In another column is reproduced an article from the Rogue River Valley Courier, in which Hood River is given credit for carrying off so many prizes. It gives as a reason that Hood River is so much better advertised than any other section. The fact is Hood River first got her reputation by raising superior fruit. Fruit experts admit that Hood River had no rivals in strawberries and apples, when it came to quality. They are therefore willing to pay more for the Hood River product than for that of any other section. Then, the Hood River pack always has been superior to that of any other and it helped to advertise us. While we admit that advertising has helped some, and done much to give us good prices, yet without quality it would be hard to get to "repeat" orders. Eastern buyers looking for apples want the best there is. They do not care where they come from, so long as they have the quality. They would not pay $3 a box for Hood River Spitzenberg if they could get "just as good" Spitzenbergs from Rogue River, Wenatchee or some other place. Every fruitgrowing section on the coast raises "just as good" apples as Hood River, to hear them tell it. The only true test of quality, however, is the market price, based on a cold-blooded business proposition. This is the point where friendship ceases and sentiment is eliminated. Nothing would please the Eastern buyer so much as to be able to buy Hood River apples for two-bits a box. More advertising, a better pack and better organization will get better results, but it will take "quality" to top the market.

Obituary.

Louis S. Rhoades was born in Philadelphia, Sept. 12, 1833. He came to St. Paul, Minn., in 1858, to California in 1874, to Portland in 1877, securing his present farm in Hood River, Ore., in 1879. He spent 40 years of his life in the service of the railway in bridge construction department. Most bridges from Portland to Blackfoot, Montana, were built under his supervision. Impaired health led him to locate on his farm. His children were by his first marriage. His daughter, Mrs. Eva Ackerman and Miss Alberte Blair reside in British Columbia.
His only son, O. H. Rhoades resides in Hood River. In 1888 Mr. Rhoades was married to Mrs. S. Robertson who survives him. For two years he has been unable to work and his health gradually declined. And he was the constant care of his devoted wife and son. He died July 12, 1906. The funeral was held by Rev. H. C. Clark, pastor of the M. E. church, of which his wife is a member.

St. Louis Ice Men in Big Suit.

St. Louis, July 18.—Circuit Attorney Sager today filed suits against the Polar Wave and Merchants' Ice & Fuel companies charging conspiracy in the restraint of trade and asks that judgment of $71,400 be assessed against each company as accumulator fines since the alleged combine was formed.

Will Sell Ice at Cost.

New York, July 18.—Mayor Coyle, of Yonkers, is planning to supply the city of Yonkers with artificial ice at cost, the trust having raised the price to 60 cents a hundred pounds. The charity department is preparing to supply ice free to the poor.

Jerome Discovers Ice Trust.

Washington, July 18.—Officials of the department of justice, believe an ice trust exists in New York, with branches in every large city in the country. District Attorney Jerome has called the attention of Attorney-General Moody to the situation.

Will Increase Its Capital Stock.

At a special meeting of the shareholders of the First National bank, of Hood River, on Saturday, it was decided to double the capital stock of the bank, making it $50,000. This was deemed necessary on account of their increasing business.

Arrives at Destination.

Washington, July 18.—The floating dry dock Dewey, which went half around the world on its voyage to the Philippines Islands and is now anchored off Rivera Point, Olongapo, Navy Station. At this place there is 55 feet of water, so that all vessels sent to dock can reach it in perfect safety. The Dewey will be anchored by four huge mushroom anchors at each end, and as the tide rises only about one foot at Olongapo, there is little danger of the huge structure being moved.

JOHN L. KOONTZ KILLED AT DEE

Saturday at Dee, occurred a sad accident in which one man lost his life and several others were in danger from a flying cable. The millwright was adjusting some of the machinery and finishing up frame work. John Koontz was near the log carriage in the act of fitting a brace, when the machinery was started and an eye-bolt, which connected the cable to the log carriage, broke off. The sudden release of load caused the engine to speed up for an instant, before the power could be turned off. The end of the cable rolled up with the devils of a whirl, catching Koontz by the right leg and throwing him violently to the floor, smashing his head in a frightful way, and causing instant death.

Fellow workmen who saw the cable break cried out and dodged, one of them claiming that it came within a few inches of him. When Koontz was seen to go down they rushed to his assistance, but he was past help. None of the eye-witnesses can say whether the cable struck Koontz in the head or not. The cable struck his leg with such force as to break both bones and nearly tear the leg off, and he was probably thrown to the floor with sufficient violence to break the skull.

Coroner Burget was summoned and he empaneled a jury, who made the following report: Dee, Ore., July 15, 1906.—We, the jury empaneled by C.
N. Burget, coroner of Wasco county, do hereby inquire into the cause of the death of the body now before us, and as follows: That his name was John L.
Koontz, that he came to his death at about the hour of 11 o'clock, July 14, 1906, at the saw mill of the Oregon Lumber company, at Dee, Oregon, and we further find that he came to his death by being hit by a wire cable, the fastening of which was made into an eye bolt, said eye bolt breaking in two, from a faulty weld.

The funeral was held at the residence of Mrs. Baldwin, a daughter of the deceased, and services conducted by Rev. W. C. Gilmore. A large gathering of friends and relatives paid their last respects to the departed, among the relatives from out of town being three brothers and a sister from Portland, Wasco and The Dalles. The funeral arrangements were in charge of S. E. Barkness.

The deceased leaves a wife and five children to mourn the loss of a husband and father.

Otis Cushman Drowned Near Stevenson

Otis Cushman was drowned last Saturday at Home Valley, near Stevenson, in Moulton's slough while riding on a boat and several other boys were in bathing, and while a short distance from the other boys, was taken with cramps and sank. His companions did not realize the situation until too late to render any assistance, and the current carried him away from the place where he went down. Help was secured, but the body was not recovered until the next day.

His parents were visiting at Goble at the time, but were notified and arrived in Hood River Monday. The body was taken to the undertaking parlors of J. E. Nichols and the funeral held from the M. E. church Tuesday afternoon, Rev. M. D. Odell officiating.

The deceased was 29 years, 4 months and 1 day old at the time of his death.

Accident at Chacivari.

While on his way with a party of boys to Chacivari, a newly married couple near Tucker's in the valley, on Saturday, Ernest Smith dropped a loaded revolver from his belt. It struck a stone and discharged, the bullet striking his leg below the knee, bitting the bone and glancing, sent through the fleshy part of the leg.
The ball then glanced upward and grazed the cheek of Guy Crapper, but did no further damage. A physician was summoned and the wound treated. It is yet uncertain just what injury will result from the wound, but it is thought he will recover all right.

Alliance Social.

On Saturday, July 21, the ladies of the Alliance will give a 15 cent social ning, with Madames Cuning, Mar-khan, Nicols, Chandler, Whitehead and Bentley as hostesses.

tainment Mrs. Wamble, Wilbur Chandler, Mr. Bentley, Mrs. Steinhafer, and others have consented to assist. Mrs.
Louise Goddard, Hood River's famous electionist, will recite some of her favorites. No regular program can be announced, as the affair will be informal, with the main object, an enjoyable time. Continuous exercises

WE ARE NEVER UNDERSOLD

NASTY STORY OF HOLY ROLLERS

That George Mitchell was a sane man when he slew "Joshua" Creffield was the conclusion arrived at by physicians of Seattle who performed a post mortem examination on the young man's brain, which was normal in every detail.

The report that the Holy Rollers are assembling at Seattle has caused activity in the police department.
Chief Wapenstien states he has had enough of this sect, and that no more of them will be tolerated in Seattle.

The police are now working on clues which may implicate others of this sect in Mitchell's murder.

Holy Rollerism as taught by "Joshua" Creffield, had its inception at Corvallis, Ore., in the spring of 1903. Creffield held camp meetings and succeeded in getting a group of followers at once.

Previous to this he had been a Salvation Army worker. He was born in Germany and was a deserter from the German army.

On the night of January 4, his fanatical teachings had gone to such lengths that indignant fathers and husbands of Corvallis women took him out and gave him a coat of tar and feathers. They gave similar treatment to one of his followers, C. Brooks.
The men were warned that they would be killed should they ever return to Corvallis.

The next day Creffield returned coverly and hid in the home of the Hurt woman under the floor of their home.
Here he dispensed with his clothing and proclaimed himself a prophet of God and carried on his revolting organ in the name of religion.

July 28, 1904, Creffield's hiding place became known and he was taken out and put in jail.

In the meantime Esther Mitchell, because of his influence over her, had been sent to the Boys' and Girls' Aid society, after being kept there a few weeks she was sent to her father's home in Illinois. She was not permitted to return to Oregon until Creffield was sent to the penitentiary.

Other women including Mrs. O. V.
Hurt and Maud Hurt, were sent to the insane asylum, for a short time because of Creffield's influence over them while he was sequestered under the Hurt residence.

Creffield, a few days after his discovery, was brought to Portland on a statutory charge preferred by Burgess E. Starr, husband of Mitchell's elder sister, a Creffield victim.

In August Creffield was found guilty. Soon after Creffield's wife, Maud Hurt Creffield, whom he married shortly before being tarred and feathered, secured a divorce.
There were no further Holy Roller demonstrations, and seemingly the dangerous craft was broken up.

Early in February, 1906, Creffield's sentence was commuted by good behavior, and he left the state prison, going to California. From there he got in correspondence with his former wife, who had remained with her father, O. V. Hurt, of Corvallis. A reconciliation was effected. Creffield returned to the vicinity of Corvallis and got a number of women and one man, Frank Hurt, to go to a lonely place on the bench in Lincoln county.
His purpose was to found a Holy Roller colony.

He made particular efforts to secure Esther Mitchell to his keeping, saying she was to be the mother of a second Christ, who was to be born to the world.

Late in April of this year, Mitchell after being released from the Good Samaritan hospital in Portland, where he had been confined with an attack of mania, declared to close friends his intention of killing Creffield. He told several persons God had told him to remove the Holy Roller from the earth for ruining his sisters.

About May 1 Mitchell went to Albany to search for Creffield. While there he saw Maud Hurt Creffield, and following her learned that Cref-field was in Seattle. The Holy Roller prophet had gone there supposedly for the purpose of raising funds for the camp on the coast.

May 7, early in the morning, Cref-field and Maud Hurt Creffield, who he had remarried, started down town to do some shopping. As they passed down First avenue Mitchell stopped suddenly behind Creffield and shot him dead.

Esther Mitchell at once denounced the act and seemed to care nothing as to the fate of her brother. She maintained this attitude throughout the trial.

July 10, after being on trial for 11 days, Mitchell was acquitted by a jury in the superior court, after an hour and 25 minutes of deliberation.
