

CORRESPONDENCE.

WHITE SALMON.

An interesting event took place at Cook's addition last Wednesday, when her daughter, Miss Ruth Wilson, became the bride of Charles E. Parrish.

The building recently constructed and occupied by the White Salmon Valley bank is a fine one and would be a credit to a city of most any size.

The Citizens bank which recently opened for business in the building next to the office of the White Salmon Valley Land Co., is a branch of the well known Goldenstate banking institution.

A. H. Jewett has the usual large number of guests this summer at his fine place. Mr. Jewett is having erected a neat cottage near his present large dwelling.

The White Salmon Water Co. was recently incorporated and within a few days definite action will be taken toward getting this important project to the town under way.

The new Colburn hotel opened up for business last week. It is situated next to the residence of C. M. Wolfard and the location is considered a good one.

White Salmon leads all other points on the river in the amount of freight shipments received. The river boats are doing such a big business of late that they are refusing to stop at a few points down the river.

Wolford & Co., the merchants, have recently added a furniture department to their already large store and have also added many other features.

County Fruit Inspector Ingram has been at White Salmon for several days looking after the interests of better fruit in that section.

Bingen is picking up a little these days. A corner lot sold there recently for $250, several houses have been built and improvements are being made on others.

Old residents of Bingen, and there are few older any where in this neighborhood, say that this is the first time in their recollection that two seasons have the rain.

Extending sixteen miles straight away with a grade that will be on only two-tenths of one per cent. Through Bingen the new road bought 4,500 feet of right-of-way 300 feet wide.

The saying that "everything comes to him who waits" is exemplified in the life of Theod. Sukadorf, of Bingen.

The Sukadorf family landed at Bingen many years ago, what was known as White Salmon then, but is now named after the far more prominent "Bingen on the Rhine."

The Sukadorf family was not the only one of thrifty Germans who landed at this point as White Salmon landing was known long before the now famous fruit town of Hood River.
