STARTING OF REVOLUTION

THEY FIRST DEFIED ENGLAND

Interesting Historic Documents Shows Norfolk, Virginia, Citizens Were Ahead of Philadelphia.

The coming Jamestown exposition brings to mind many historic facts long since forgotten. While loath to leave the British empire the patriots of Norfolk, Virginia, were the first to resent the aggression of the British stamp act, which led to the American revolution. Under the name of "The Sons of Liberty" they assembled in Norfolk on March 5th, and in bold determined phrases announced their intention of resisting any further aggression on the part of the English parliament. This was two months before the promulgation of the celebrated Mecklenburg declaration of independence and nearly five before the thirteen colonies assembled in Philadelphia to forever cast off the authority of the British crown and start the country on a career of prosperity and splendor, which will be celebrated at the Jamestown exposition, to be held at Hampton Roads near Norfolk, in 1907.

The Norfolk people did not declare their independence, but expressly affirmed their wish to be subjects of King George III. They merely stated their determination that they should not be taxed without representation.

The resolutions read as follows:

"Having taken into consideration the evident tendency of that oppressive and unconstitutional act of parliament commonly called the stamp act, and being desirous that our sentiments should be known to posterity and recollecting, that we are part of the colony who first in general assembly openly expressed their detestation to the said act (which is pregnant with ruin and productive of the most pernicious consequences) and unwilling to rivet the shackles of slavery and oppression on ourselves and millions yet unborn, have unanimously come to the following resolutions:

"1. Resolved, That we acknowledge our Lord and Sovereign, King George III, to be our rightful and lawful king and that we will, at all times, to the utmost of our power and ability, support and defend his most sacred person, crown and dignity, and shall always be ready when constitutionally called upon, to assist his majesty, with our lives and fortunes; and to defend his just rights and prerogatives.

"2. Resolved, That we will, by all lawful ways and means which Divine providence has put into our hands, defend ourselves in the full enjoyment of, and preserve inviolate to posterity, those inestimable privileges of all freeborn British subjects, of being taxed only by representatives of their own choosing; and of being tried by none but a jury of their peers. And that if we quietly submit to the execution of the said stamp act, all our claims to civil liberty will be lost, and we and our subjects in America are deprived of the invaluable privileges aforementioned.

"3. Resolved, That a committee be appointed who shall, in such manner as they think proper, go upon necessary business and make public the above resolutions, and that they correspond as they shall see occasion with the Associated Sons of, and friends to, liberty in the other British colonies of America."

As a result of the adoption of the resolutions Lord Dunmore, the British colonial governor, made a demonstration before Norfolk and several shots were fired into the city from the frigate Liverpool. As a result of this and other outrages, the Norfolk people were ready to throw off all authority and join with the other colonies when the Philadelphia declaration of independence was promulgated.

Improvement Suggestions.

An article on the beautifying of towns and cities in the Municipal World urges that a town's biggest charm does not lie in palatial dwellings or splendid public business structures, but rather in the development of its natural advantages. "To city officials belongs the duty of keeping the streets in good order, eliminating unsightly telephone and telegraph poles and burying their wires, abolishing the smoke nuisance, taking care of public buildings and their environs and performing many other requirements in the interest of the town's convenience, beauty and sanitation.

"But everthing must not be left to town boards and councils. Every occupant of home, whether owned or rented, should feel under obligations to keep it in good order so that the unsightliness of house and grounds may not be an eyesore to the public. In most towns local improvement societies are doing much to promote the beauty and healthfulness of their neighborhoods, and by the aid of these societies many a once unattractive country village has been made beautiful."

Effective Advertisement of State Fair.

The Oregon State Board of Agriculture is doing some effective advertising of the coming state fair to be given at Salem under its management and there is every reason to believe that the new style of publicity will be the means of greatly increasing the attendance at the fair over what it has been during previous years.

The latest bit of advertising is in the form of a four-page circular just large enough to slip into an ordinary sized envelope and these are supplied to business men and others who will send them out with their correspondence.

The full text of the circular is as follows:

"The Oregon State Fair is without doubt the grandest and the best fair held on the Pacific coast, both in scope of magnitude and attendance. No agricultural association can say they excel us in any department, while on the other hand, we have many advantages that other associations have not.

"The association owns 160 acres of valuable land two miles from the city of Salem, the capital of the state, which is reached by electric car lines. The Southern Pacific passes through the grounds, where all local trains stop; a depot has been erected and sidetracks are built for the special purpose of caring for the many exhibits.

"Extra precaution is used in loading and unloading fine stock, which is one of the best features of the fair; roomy stalls and pens, newly whitewashed are provided for breeders of blooded stock who make exhibits, and a remodeling of the pavilion gives ample room for the exhibits of agriculture, horticulture, and works of art. Special attention has been given to the sanitry conditions of the grounds, $2,600 having been spent for the perfection of the same. The septic tank system of sewerage was installed, and is acknowledged by physicians to be the best. A general clean-up of the grounds and the painting of all buildings tend to make things clean and healthful. Extra precaution will be used in the cleanliness of every department, thus assuring the patrons of the fair protection from disease.

"Ten thousand dollars is appropriated annually by the state of Oregon, not for the maintenance of the fair, but for premiums awarded on livestock, horticulture, agriculture, manufacturing, and works of art. The premiums offerred by this board in the several classes will compare favorably with fairs in the east whose magnitude is much greater than ours. Not one dollar of this amount is used for any other purpose. Special attention has been paid to the above departments, and competent superintendents have been selected to manage the same. Hay is furnished free to all livestock entered for premiums.

"The speed department is one of the greatest attractions. No other course can boast of so good a program. Ten thousand dollars is given in early closing stakes, this being the largest amount ever offered in the northwest. More high class horses are entered for these races than in any previous year. The track has received special preparation to make it better than ever before, and the grand stand has been newly painted to make it more attractive.

"Twenty acres, with the 'Majestic Oaks' furnishing the shade, is set apart for the benefit of campers. Sheds for 210 head of horses have been built for the housing of campers' horses. Streets have been laid out. The grounds and stalls are offered free to those who wish to come and camp. In conclusion will say, the state board asks the co-operation of all to make the fair of 1906 the best in the history of the organization."

Work On Bridge Slow.

Although the railroad company has had large forces of men and mchinery at work for some time, progress on the new steel bridge which it is going to erect cross the Hood River at this place is slow. Soundings taken to the depth of 80 feet have failed to locate bed rock and the company has decided to utilize the cement gravel which underlies the river to a depth of many feet.

Engineers say that while they prefer bed rock as an anchorage for abutments, cemment gravel of this depth is sufficient strong to bear any weight that can be put upon it.

The new bridge will be some distance below the present structure and when completed will enable the company to eliminate several bad curves that have been the cause of much delay to trffic and have also been the cause of a number of accidents. The abutments will be sunk in the river 22 feet and as soon as they are in place the steel work will be rushed forward as rapidly as possible. The building of the bridge is one of the improvements on its line which the O. R. & N. recently appropriated several million dollars for and which when completed are expected to allow of much faster time being made.

Merchant's Investment and Trust Co.

The Merchant's Investment & Trust company, of Portland, Ore., whose advertisement appears elsewhere in this paper, have issued a very attractive little booklet for free distribution containing information about the scope and purpose of their institution. One point borne upon strongly is the advisability for persons having estates or investments to look after, of placing their affairs in the hands of this company. The Merchant's Investment & Trust company argues that the proper care of estatess demands a talent of a high order, and that individuals of sufficient business skill for handling estates usually have affairs of their own which prevent them from engaging in such a service for any other person.

The Merchant's Investment & Trust company in soliciting business, calls attention to the fact that a trust company never sleeps, never dies and never absconds. The company declares its willingness to accept accounts of all kinds, and states they are as ready to receive five dollars worth of business as they are five thousand. Their booklet will be mailed to you free if you write and ask for it.

There is nothing so pleasant as that bright, cheerful, at-peace-with-the-world feeling when you sit down to your breakfast. There is nothing so conducive to good work and good results. The healthy man with a healthy mind and body is a better fellow, a better workman, a better citizen than the man or woman who is handicapped by some disability, however slight. A slight disorder of the stomach will derange your body, your thoughts and your disposition. Get away from the morbidness and the blues. Keep your stomach in tune and both your brain and body will respond. Little indiscretions of overeating can be easily corrected and you will be surprised to see how much better man you are. Try a little Kodol For Dyspepsia after your meals. Sold by Williams' Pharmacy.

Prof. Tyler, of Amherst college, said recently: "A man can live comfortably without brains; no man ever existed without a digestive system. The dyspeptic has neither faith, hope or charity." Day by day people realize the importance of caring for their digestion; realize the need of the use of a little corrective after overeating. A corrective like Kodol For Dyspepsia. It digests what you eat. Sold by Williams' Pharmacy

HOOD RIVERITES TAKE VACATIONS

THE TALL TIMBER ATTRACTS MANY

A Few Go to the Seashore and Many to Little White Salmon—Some Take Driving and Sea Trips.

A general exodus of Hood River residents seems to be taking place at present and those who can spare the time from business or the duties of the household are seeking a change of scene. While a few have gone to the seashore for their annual outing, the tall timber seems to be the most popular spot, and many residents of Hood River are at present camped near the cooling influences of Mount Hood and Lost Lake. In fact quite a colony of Hood River people is established there and there is hardly a section of the city or valley that has not its representative camped near the famous lake.

Trout Lake has also its share of visitors from this side of the river, numbering as its guests many from The Dalles and down the river points. The good road to Trout Lake is a drawing feature for that resort, something that Lost Lake lacks, but which it is soon expected to have. By those who have been up the Little White Salmon river it is said that it has never been so popular as this summer and that campers galore can be found along its shore in quest of the ever elusive trout.

While vacation trips of various kinds are being taken by some, others are turning their idle time to good account and have found employment in the harvest fields. To young fellows attending school this kind of a vaction is somewhat of a lark, but pulling on the ordinary Hood Riverite who is busy with his cultivator spraying apparatus, marketing apples or talking about them eleven and a half out of the twelve months of the year.

The ordinary vacation, appealing to some as slightly hum-drum, they have decided on something more out of the usual course and have taken a driving or sea trip. The latter was the kind of vacation selected by Mrs. P. S. Davidson, sr., who left here July 15 for a trip to Alaska, arriving at her home in this city Friday very much benefitted in health by the voyage. She speaks in glowing terms of the many attractions of the trip and of the interesting things she saw in that far northern latitude.

Mrs. Davidson sailed for Alaska from the port of Seattle on the steamship City of Seattle and stopped at many ports both going and returning, among which were Vancouver, B. C., Sitka, Juneau and Skagway. Sitka she describes s being a particularly beautiful and interesting place, on account of its old Greek churches, which were built many years ago by the Russian inhabitants when Alaska was under the dominion of the Czar. At Juneau the passengers were given an opportuinty to indulge in the sport of fishing and the fish were so plentiful there that the deck of the steamship was soon covered with halibut. The ship made several stops at Juneau both coming and going and the Indians there, eager to sell their wares, came alongside the vessel in large canoes, handing up their products to the passengers on the ends of oars for inspection. Mrs. Dadvison says that while the baskets and curios offered for sale are both pretty and interesting, the wily Indians of Alaska have discovered that tourists to that country are expected to be separated from their money and do not hesitate to ask fabulous prices for articles that it is said can be bought there during the winter for a song.

At Skagway, the destination of the steamer, the party were allowed ashore for seven hours and many took advantge of the opportunity to go to the top of the famous White Horse Pass which can now be reached by railroad in three hours, but which caused the gold seekers of the early Klondike days many hours of weary toil and suffering to make the journey. At Skagway winter coats and wraps were in order and the steam had to be kept turned on in the radiators to keep the passengers comfortable.

The pleasure of the trip was marred by but one incident which occured when it was about finished. Arrangements had been made to give a farewell dance on the last night before reaching Seattle. When the steamer left Vancouver it ran into a severe storm, sending passengers to their berths in a hurry and causing everything that was not secure to roll in every direction. The piano, which had been unfastened in order to be removed to the main salon, was tossed about to such an extent that it is said to have turned over three times before it was caught and properly secured. Naturally the dance did not take place under the circumstnces as most of the passengers were hanging over the edges of their berths unable to take any interest in a social function.

Apart from this, Mrs. Davidson, who was not sick, but rather anxious, says the trip was a most deilghtful one.

Board of Equalization.

Notice is hereby given that the Board of Equalization of Wasco county, Oregon, will meet at the court house in Dalles City on the last Monday in August, 1906, and remain in session one week, for the purpose of examining and equalizing the assessment roll for the year 1906, as by law provided. All persons desiring to appear before said Board will please take notice.

Dated at Dalles City, Oregon, this 31st day of July, 1906.
A. G. STODSDILL, Assessor.

Unnecessary Expense.

Acute attacks of colic and diarrhoea come on without warning and prompt relief must be obtained. There is no necessity of incurring the expense of a physician's service in such cases if Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is at hand. A dose of this remedy will relieve the patient before a docter could arrive. It has never been known to fail, even in the most severe and dangerous cases and no family should be without it.
