WOULD START A CREAMERY

GOOD SIDE LINE TO FRUIT GROWING

Creamery Man Canvassing the Valley in Interest of a Co-operative Creamery.

Thos. J. Davidson, of Helona, Mont., is in the valley canvassing the business men and farmers as to the advisability of starting a co-operative creamery in Hood River. He represents the Hastings Industrial company, of Chicago, who manufacture and establish creamery plants. Mr. Thomas has just finished putting in a creamery at Dufur, and says that he is well pleased with the prospects at that place. There is no question as to the profits of a good creamery in Hood River. The price of butter is always high here, and the bulk of it has to be shipped in from creameries in other parts of the state. It would take at least 200 cows to furnish cream enough to keep a moderate sized plant running at a profit, and there may be some question as to whether there is that many cows in the valley that could be made tributary to a creamery, whose product could be secured for a creamery. The Mount Hood country is more interested in a proposition of the kind than the lower valley, as they have considerable hay and pasture land in the upper valley that is not given up exclusively to raising fruit. However, there are many farmers near town who keep one or more cows, and could spare more or less cream, and many make their own butter who would no doubt be glad to get rid of that trouble if they could get about as much for their cream as for their butter after it had been brought to market.

The merchants are heartily in favor of a creamery here, if it can be shown that it would be operated at a profit. The sale of creamery butter is much more satisfactory than the ranch butter, which is of a constantly varying quantity and quality.

Many of the farmers of the Mount Hood country are sending their cream to Portland, and it is claimed that much better returns can be secured from a creamery near at home, saving the express on the cream to Portland, and an express back on the butter, while there is a saving of 10 to 20 cents in butter fat that goes to the Portland creamery.

The following advantages are claimed by the advocates of the co-operative creamery:

Co-operative factories are owned and controlled by farmers who furnish the milk.

From 20 to 40 farmers and business men of the town each owning from $100 to $500 of the stock, combine to form a factory and run it on the principle of making cows pay as much as possible.

Private or individual factories are run on the opposite principle, viz: Big profits for the factory, and obtaining their milk from the farmers as cheap as possible.

Patrons of co-operative factories realize from 88 to 92 per cent more than do the patrons of private creameries.

Each patron's milk is delivered in his own can or cans, and is separately weighed and also tested, to determine the quantity of butter that it contains.

The cream is immediately separated from the milk by running the whole milk through a machine called a "centrifugal separator." The sweet skim milk is returned at once to the patron free of charge.

The cream is made up into fancy butter and sold by the manager of the factory at the highest market price.

At the end of each month a full settlement is made with the patrons. From 2 to 3 cents per pound of butter made is taken out to pay the expense of making, packing, selling and shipping the butter, as well as the profits of the factory; the balance of the money is divided among the patrons in proportion to the amount of butter contained in each one's milk.

They are convenient. Milk can be delivered at any time between 6 and 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to suit the convenience of patrons in warm weather, and every other day in cold weather. Hence milk can be hauled six miles to a butter factory as conveniently as three miles to a cheese factory or one mile to a depot for shipment. No ice is required, as the milk is not how warm the milk is delivered as long as it is not curdled.

They will relieve you householders and families of nearly one-half of their household labors by taking care of milk and the drudgery of butter-making entirely out of the house.

They bring cash every month, supplying the farmer with ready money for his immediate wants, keeping him on a "pay as you go" basis, teaching him the true road to independence and affluence, and besides the ready money, he has produced his own fertilizer for his land, and is growing rich in a two-fold way.

Take home-made butter from fifty different farms and you will have fifty different kinds. If made in a factory, uniform color, salting and packing, and will bring a much better price.

Butter factories get the farmer into dairying, which practically takes no fertility from the farm, but will always improve it.

There is nothing produced on the farm that sells for more per pound than butter.

There is no product that can be gotten to market as cheaply as butter.

If your cows give rich milk the test shows it and you are paid for rich milk.

By the separator process practically all the cream is taken from the milk, and all the butter obtained from the cream, by which from 10 to 25 per cent more pounds of butter are obtained, which sells in the market for a much higher price than does farmers' butter.

Well Worth Trying

W. H. Brown, the popular pension attorney of Pittsfield, Vt., says: "Next to matrimony, the best thing to get is Dr. King's New Life Pills." He writes: "They keep my family in splendid health, and under their care much is expected in the way of results."

A. H. Jewett, of White Salmon, in company with several other gentlemen from that place, made a business visit to Hood River Tuesday.

GETTING READY FOR FRUIT FAIR

COMMITTEES MEET WITH SUCCESS

Exhibit Will Have Larger Space and Will Be Placed in Center of Town.

Arrangements that are being made by exhibitors and officers of the fruit fair indicate that more interest is being taken in the fair this year than ever before and that it will eclipse all previous efforts of this kind at Hood River.

After looking the matter over carefully the executive committee of the fair association decided to have the exhibit held in the same place but that it was two years ago and will provide a larger and better space for it than ever before. The fair building will be built up against the Davidson building and extend out to First street. The selection of the Davidson lot was agreed on after thinking the matter over carefully and it is thought that the fair will be far more successful and secure a great many more admissions by having it placed in a central location.

If possible arrangements will be made with the O. R. & N. Co. to have daylight trains stopped here for a few minutes during the exhibition in order to allow tourists and passengers the opportunity of seeing what Hood River fruit looks like when seen to an advantage and attractive advertising matter will also be distributed.

Invitations to visit the fair and cards of admission will be issued to prominent people throughout the state and it is expected that a good many of those invited will attend.

Officers and committees, who have the work in hand of soliciting exhibits say that they have found a williness on the part of growers to exhibit, but that it has been suggested that they be given a season pass, as the fruit requires a good deal of care and attention in order to have it make the best display. This they say necessitates having some one constantly in attendance and as they are forced to go in and out of the fair building frequently, compelling them to pay admission, makes it considerably more expensive. They also say that it is necessary to provide a close watch on their exhibits to keep them from being depleted by those who cannot resist the temptation to "sweep" Hood River fruit, and that with a season pass the matter could be soon arranged as to keep their exhibits under surveillance without an additional expense. The matter will be placed before the executive committee and it is thought that it can be satisfactorily adjusted.

While the premium list committee has not yet decided the question of premiums it is expected that the display will be governed very much by former ones. In order that those who have not exhibited before may have some idea of what they will be required of them we give below the list of premiums and winners at the last fair.

In addition to the fruit display there will be one of vegetables and any other products that it is thought will add interest to the fair including one of flowers and fancy work which will be in charge of a committee of ladies. It is urged by the management of the fair that anybody who has anything they think will be of interest place it on exhibition.

Invest in Mosier Land Co.

A. P. Bateham has sold a large block of stock in the East Hood River Fruit Company at Mosier to Portland parties, and will make extensive improvements to the big Mosier ranch. This is the ranch that had on exhibition the fine box of 3-tier Spitzbergen apples at the Hood River Fruit fair two years ago, and is being developed into one of the finest fruit farms in this famous country. The developing of this place on a large scale also means what to Mosier, as it will demonstrate what can be done in that valley. Mr. Bateham, it is understood, will continue to manage the property, and under his care much is expected in the way of results.
