HOOD RIVER FRUIT Hood River has never used any methods to gain publicity that were not honorable and strictly above board. All we have ever done is to

R. Lowusdale in a communica ducers of fine apples, and lots of them. The Oregonian and other nowspapers, and in fact, every public tion to the Oregonian Sunday endeavors to show that apples elsewhere are the equal of Hood River apples and in fact, every public states his reasons as as follows: It is an amusing, as well as an un-worthy spectacle, to see The Oregon ian defending itself against even a fancied slight to the reputation of Hood River apples. For several years the Oregonian has been very indus-triously worked by the advertising bureau of Hood River, and it must be admitted worked with a masterly hand. Landation of that fruit grow-ing section at the expense of o her lo-calities had become such a habit that when a slip was made in which the willamette valley received a dole of offered prime apples at 85 cents per box is quite true, and they went like hot cakes, in fact we did not have enough to go around. That is easily explained. Hood River farmers made Willamette valley received a dole of praise, it was to be expected that the great paper would be called to ac-But, seriously, it is gratitying to note that a paper of the standing of The Oregonian should even at this iste date berald the fact that as fine aples can be grown in the Willamette his catalogue, so as to have early, midwinter, late, green, red, in fact, all the varieties of the apple kingdom in their orchards. We have found in valley as in any section of the state. The claim that Hood River valley and the Rogue River section are the only real centers of apple growing has been due in a great measure to a lack of information as to the real status of the fruit market, and not, I imagine, to any desire to ignore or slight the Willamette valeliy. For instance, it is not generally known that two orchards in the Wiliamette valley produce more Spitzen-bergs than the whole Hood River this season by the carload at 65 cents a box, and I know of sections where they are offered at 50 cents a box. Hood River people say least of all about their apples being better than they are in other sections. We feel so happy over our good fortune, we are so full of joy it makes some of me almost speechless. But it is the press which is pleased to show off the re-sources of its own state that is draw-ing its conclusions from the prices. country. It is not generally known, but is neverless a fact, that at least one grower has for many years receiv-e1 exactly as much for his appies as have the growers of any other section in the stree. It is not generally known that, notwithstanding the great cry about 83 apples and the puzzle about the poor man's supply, Hood River is offering today prime sources of its own state that is draw-ing its conclusious from the prices we are receiving for our goods. There is no man, woman, or child in Hood River that is not willing, yes, glad to tell the fruit growers of this or any other state how we achieved our suc-cees, so they can improve their own methods. Every fruit grower in Hood Kiver valley knows and admits that a good mon' varieties, but we ad-mit it cheerfully, and not with the least thought of jealousy. It is to be hoped that every fruit grower of this state will make exhibits of their fancy apples at every opportunity, one of which is at the annual meeting of the State Hartientend apples for 85 cents per box, while the same fruit is selling in Yambill at considerably higher figures. With trumpet blast it is announced that "Hood River apples are the best in the world because they keep until midsummer." (A rather ticklish assertion for an horticultual authority

Hood River farmers made the same mistake that was made in other apple growing sections ten or fitteen years ago by planting every variety that the nurseryman had in his catalogue, so as to have early, midwinter, late, green, red, in fact, all the varieties of the apple kingdom future, the cost of which was estimat-ed by Mr. Henderson to be $50.
