Wasting Water Assets.

California has learned, not only that the ground may become waterlogged by over irrigation, but that ill considered drainage works and an inconsiderate use of the water obtained from wells may so reduce the sub-surface supply of water and so lower the water plane or "table" as to threaten the reversion of large areas to comparative unproductiveness.

Chapped hands. Wash your hands with warm water, dry with a towel and apply Chamberlain's Salve just before going to bed, and a speedy cure is certain.

MOUNT HOOD. Mr. Peter Feldthausen has returned to Mount Hood. Mr. Tomlinson and his surveying party, who went up to Mount Hood last week returned Wednesday. They report that they accomplished their work but they had a pretty cold trip. They left the wagons at the Elks Beds, and packed their blankets and provisions the rest of the way on horses. They found snow drifted in to the rooms at the inn, in spite of the secure fastening of the doors. A storm of wind and snow came up while they were up there and the cables on the inn rattled in a most spooky fashion. The thermometer in the room in the inn, in spite of the secure fastening of the doors, stood 10 degrees below zero the morning they left. They were glad to get back to a little less rigorous climate. In response to an invitation from Mr. Melsaas to his Sunday school class about a dozen of the class went to his house Wednesday evening and such a good time they had. Mr. and Mrs. Melsaas proved such charming entertainers that there was not one dull moment, and indeed the guests stayed much longer than they thought proper, for they simply couldn't get away. First there was a guessing game. "All about Kate" and it was a puzzler. Miss Nan Cooper succeeded in winning the first prize, a beautiful brass candlestick, and Lawrence Puddy received a candy box for consolation. Then there was an up-to-date spelling class in which Mr. C. C. Walton distinguished himself. There were games of crib and pit and during the refreshment hour Mr. Walton entertained the company with selections on his phonograph. Those present besides Mr. and Mrs. Melsaas were: Misses Josephine Biddinger, Myrtle Tomlinson, Zora and Aida
